Full of Meaning to Republicans.

Next President May Be the Present Chief.

Democrats Unable to Unite on Candidate or Issues.

Ohio Rebukes the Spirit of Assassination—Croker Declines to Leave.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BROOKLYN, Nov. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Eagle's Washington special says that the general result of yesterday's election is regarded by political leaders as meaning that the tide that set toward the Republican party and its policies seven years ago still follows in that direction, though with lessened force. They argue that as no signs of the ebbing of the tide is visible this year, none will be three years hence, and that President Roosevelt's successor, therefore, whether himself or another, will be a Republican. Already they are attempting to forecast the effect of the election upon his fortunes, and are wondering whether it means that he will be the first Vice-President succeeding to the Presidency by the death of his chief to be nominated by his party as his own successor, a nomination that they assert will be equivalent to an election.

A powerful factor in the situation is the evident inability of the Democratic party to find an issue upon which they can unite, or a man who can unite them regardless of issues. Of course, if this condition continues in the Democratic party, it will work to the advantage of whomsoever the Republicans may name. This condition may, however, pass away before 1904. To those who recall the political situation that followed the Presidential election of 1872 and its marvelous revival two years later, when it elected a big majority of the House of Representatives and only missed the Presidency by the action of the returning boards of the carpet-bag governments of three Southern States and the eight-to-seven decisions of the Electoral Commission, a stranger thing than the resuscitation of the Democratic party in time for the Presidential election three years from now might easily happen.

However, the Democratic revival of a quarter of a century ago was preceded, if not caused, by the great financial panic of 1873. A similar cause might have the same effect now, for the return of the Republican party to power in recent years was preceded by the great financial panic of 1893. True, no panic is in sight now, but neither was one in sight in 1872 or in 1892.

The party leaders of both sides at this time, viewing the situation in the light of the late elections, assume, as practical politicians, that the conditions under which the next Presidential campaign will be contested will be substantially those that now prevail, and that being the case, the Republicans will win.

CONGRATULATING LOW.
THE PRESIDENT'S DISPATCH.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Mayor-elect Low was the recipient of scores of congratulatory messages. The following dispatch was received from President Roosevelt: "I congratulate the city even more than I do you on the overwhelming triumph of the forces of decency."

Mr. Low replied: "Your hearty congratulations have done me good."

He sent the following reply to the telegram sent him last night by the defeated Democratic candidate, E. M. Shepard: "Your hearty and generous congratulations are highly valued. Accept my sincere thanks."

CROKER HANGS ON.
DENIES ABDICATION STORY.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Richard Croker denied today that he had given up the leadership of Tammany Hall or that he would do so. He said: "The report that I am to quit politics is absolutely false, and it is not true that I am to sail for Europe. I am in good health and shall stay right here for some time to come."

GREATEST BLOW YET STRUCK.
LONDON EDITOR'S OPINION.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

LONDON, Nov. 6.—[By Atlatic Cable.] The most vindictive opponents of Tammany Hall, even in the thick of the campaign, could not have painted that organization in blacker colors than do the editorial writers in the afternoon newspapers here today in congratulating New York on the result of the election.

"The success of Seth Low is an event on which every friend of America and every lover of virtue and honesty anywhere has good reason to raise paeans of congratulations," says the St. James Gazette, adding: "It is the greatest blow yet struck at the most nefarious system of organized, triumphant villainy ever foisted upon a civilized community by a gang of corrupt blackmailers, but the terrific power of such an organization can only be finally crushed by a counter-organization, and equally far-reaching."

The Pall Mall Gazette says: "The gods that preside over honest government deserve a libation from every good citizen throughout the world."

The Westminster Gazette remarks: "The New Yorker seems at last to have grasped the fact that he has a citizen's responsibility for the good government of his city. With a President who has declared against the spoils system and a de-Tammanyized New York, the administrative outlook for the United States is brighter than for a long time past."

SETH LOW'S SALARY.
ALSO APPOINTIVE POWER.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Seth Low, as Mayor of Greater New York, will have a salary of $15,000. He will, in the first place, have the privilege of appointing such clerks and assistants in the Mayor's office as he may choose. The first of the appointments in his disposition is that of a private secretary, at a salary of $5000. He may appoint commissioners and heads of department to succeed the incumbent in most of the executive departments of the city government.

UNOFFICIAL RETURNS.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Complete unofficial returns from Greater New York give Seth Low for Mayor, 298,992, and Edward M. Shepard (Dem.,) 265,128, making Low's plurality 29,864.

Edward M. Grout, Fusionist candidate for Comptroller, received 290,713 votes, and William Ladd (Dem.,) 254,738, making the plurality of the Fusionist, 44,976.

Unofficial returns from every election district in New York county give William Travers Jerome (Fus.,) a lead of 15,880 over Henry W. Unger (Dem.,) in the race for the District Attorneyship. The vote of the two follows: Jerome, 163,999; Unger, 148,079.

A revised recapitulation of the vote on president of the Board of Aldermen shows that Charles V. Fornes (Fus.,) has George M. Van Hoesen (Dem.,) beaten by a plurality of 31,684. Complete unofficial figures from the borough of Queens show that Joseph Cassidy (Dem.,) has defeated Doht (Fus.,) for the presidency of the borough by 3593 plurality, in a total vote of 24,921.

Complete unofficial returns show the election of Louis F. Haffen (Dem.,) as president of the borough of Bronx, with a plurality of 1470 over Wells (Fus.) The vote: Haffen, 19,509; Wells, 18,039.

Complete figures from Richmond give the presidency to Cromwell (Fus.,) with a plurality of 408 over Nicholas Muller (Dem.)

Complete and revised returns from Kings county show the election of Guden (Fus.,) over Hesterborg (Dem.) The vote was Guden, 108,050; Hesterborg, 94,244.

Complete revised returns gathered unofficially show the election of the following Justices of the Supreme Court:

Morgan J. O'Brien (Dem. and Fus.:) Samuel Greenbaum (Fus.:) James A. Blanchard (Fus.:) John Proctor Clarke (Fus.) Clarke, who got the smallest plurality of any of the men elected, headed Charles Dayton, the nearest to him on the judicial ticket, by 6116 votes and beat Robert A. Van Wyck, the present Mayor, by 29,082.

MILLION CHANGES HANDS.
WAGERS ON THE ELECTION.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] It was pay day for election bets in Wall-street district today, and it was estimated that stakes aggregating $1,000,000 were turned over to those who bet on the Fusion candidates. A great deal of Tammany money from uptown was placed in Wall street.

Among the big winners were John W. Gates, Jacob Field and W. R. Oliver, while Jesse Lewisohn backed Shepard heavily and lost $75,000. Gates had $30,000 up on Low. Field's winnings are $59,000, while Oliver raked in $40,000 of Tammany cash.

The Tammany inside clique dropped the biggest wad of Shepard money wagered in this city. In this clique were Croker, Tim Sullivan, Frank Farrell and John F. Carroll, among others, and a pool placed about $250,000 on the result. Croker's share of the loss was $75,000.

JUSTICE JEROME'S PROMISE.
WILL NOT SPARE THE GUILTY.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LAKEVILLE (Ct.) Nov. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Justice Jerome, though he sat up late last night to receive election returns and celebrate his victory with party friends, was astir early this morning. He spent most of the forenoon in examining the election figures in the newspapers. He was extremely gratified by the fact that he ran ahead of most of the other candidates on the Fusion ticket, but said he could not discuss the returns in detail until after he had compared them by districts with those of previous elections.

"One thing that this election means," he said, "is the disruption of Tammany Hall as an overwhelming force in New York City. It cannot control the Brooklyn Democratic vote. Tammany will continue to be an important factor, but not a controlling one.

"The defeat of Shepard shows that the strength of the independent is not in his personality, but in the principles that he ties up to. The election will tend to eliminate partisanship from municipal politics. It will put heart and courage into the police. If we can bring about the amendment of the Raines law, as I believe we can, the District Attorney and police together can put an end to blackmail. East Side 'cadets' will have to go to work and make an honest living."

Jerome emphatically declared there would be no difference in his treatment of the criminal rich and the criminal poor.

"I shall not spare any man who is guilty before the law because he imagines his influence and wealth will insure him safety from punishment for his guilt," said Jerome. "Men who make millions by leasing buildings for prostitution are morally more guilty than the unfortunate inmates thereof, and I will not spare them."

Discussing the effect of his Lyric Hall speech, he told of a conference between Senator Platt and William C. Whitney. He said: "I think that speech did much to help win the election. It took the Platt tag off the ticket. I do not believe Mr. Low ever was Platt's man, but the feeling that he was became one of the most serious things we had to contend with. I did not intend to say in my speech last night that Mr. Platt had worked against the ticket. I simply referred

THE SCHLEY INQUIRY.

Rayner Thrills the Large Audience.

Brilliant Argument in His Client's Behalf.

Applause and Handshaking End Remarkable Scene.

Admiral Dewey Joins in the Demonstration—Lemly to Speak Today.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—The climax of the Schley court of inquiry came this afternoon, when Rayner, chief counsel for Rear-Admiral Schley, concluded a brilliant argument of over three hours with a peroration so eloquent and impassioned that all within sound of his voice were profoundly touched.

This remarkable trial, he said, sought to condemn the man who had brought to a successful termination as great a naval triumph as was ever won. In vivid colors he painted the picture of the Brooklyn, with Commodore Schley on the bridge, fighting the entire Spanish fleet until the Oregon appeared out of the smoke. The thunders of the Brooklyn, music for the ears of his countrymen, he said, aroused Rear-Admiral Schley's envious foes. He pictured the victorious sailor suffering as few have suffered for three long years while the fires of persecution leapt around him, and now awaiting the hour of his vindication in the verdict of the court.

"And when it comes," he concluded, "he can, from the high and exalted position that he occupies, look down upon his traducers and maligners, and with pride exclaim: 'I care not for the venomous gossip of clubs, drawing-rooms and cliques and the poisoned shafts of envy and malice. I await, under the guidance of divine Providence, the verdict of posterity.'"

The scene in the courtroom as he finished with these words was thrilling. The attendance had been large all day, and at the morning session a lady had fainted from excitement. As Rayner began his eulogy of the rear-admiral, those in the audience, many of whom were ladies, leaned forward in their seats. The spell of his oratory was over them, and when he described the rear-admiral's gallant deeds and the long persecution to which he had been subjected, many of them broke down and wept.

The members of the court displayed evidence of emotion, and Rear-Admiral Schley was plainly moved. He sat, leaning back, with his hands behind his head. His chin twitched, and as his counsel said he could afford to await the verdict of posterity, two big tears rolled down his cheeks. He moved uneasily to conceal his emotion and, under the pretense of adjusting his glasses, brushed the tears aside.

For fully thirty seconds after Rayner closed, there was not a sound. Then the tension broke in a loud burst of applause. Admiral Dewey, after about a half-minute, arose to remind the spectators that such a demonstration was out of place. A moment afterward the court adjourned, the Judge-Advocate pleading that he could not well go on today. Then a remarkable thing happened. As soon as the gavel fell, the entire audience surged forward to shake the hands of Rear-Admiral Schley and Rayner. But the oncoming spectators fell back a moment as they saw Admiral Dewey and his two assistants move around the table, as if by a common impulse, and congratulate Schley and his counsel.

Capt. Lemly, the Judge-Advocate, joined in the congratulations. Then the hand shaking began, and for half an hour after the court adjourned the rear-admiral and Rayner were kept busy shaking hands.

Rayner's argument today consumed the whole time of the court except for half an hour at the opening, which Capt. Parker, his associate counsey, occupied in concluding. Rayner took up the specifications one by one, reserving those relating to the "retrograde movement" until the last. So far as he was able to do so, he used the testimony of the department's witnesses to prove his contentions. With regard to the "retrograde movement," which he discussed with greater seriousness than the other specifications, he adduced in justification not only all of Rear-Admiral Schley's reasons for believing the Spanish fleet was not in Santiago, but argued that every officer taxed with the responsibility of command necessarily must be clothed with discretion in carrying out instructions. He displayed good temper in adverting to the testimony of most of the officers, and especially the ranking officers who seemed to contradict his case, giving them in each case credit for honesty of purpose. But with a few he dealt unsparingly. Wood, Potts and Bristol he held up to ridicule.

Capt. Lemly will begin the closing argument tomorrow afternoon, as the court will not hold a session tomorrow morning.

Troops for the Philippines—Corbin-Patten Wedding. Postal Report.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—President Hutin of the Panama Canal Company finally has submitted to Admiral Walker, the head of the Isthmian Canal Commission, a proposition on behalf of his company for the acquisition of all its rights by the United States government. The Panama company has been restrained up to this moment from submitting a direct proposition, owing to a clause in the concession which it holds from the government of Colombia, which prescribes forfeiture of the concession as a penalty for the making of an effort, by the company, to transfer its rights to another government. The Company's agents there have been obliged to act with extreme caution in making overtures, but, in some way, the Colombian government has been induced to wink at this technical violation of the concession. Its terms are not yet disclosed, and it is probable that they will not be until the Isthmian Canal Commission publishes its report.

It is understood, however, that they are considerably more favorable to this government than when the figures were made to the President three years ago.

GEN. CORBIN WEDDED TO FAMOUS BELLE.

NOTABLE GUESTS ASSEMBLED TO WITNESS CEREMONY.

It Was a Military Wedding, All the Army and Navy Officers Present Wearing Full-dress Uniforms — Senator Jones Gave Away the Bride.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Maj.-Gen. Henry C. Corbin, Adjutant-General of the army, and Miss Edythe Agnes Patten, were married at noon today at the Patten residence, No. 2122 Massachusetts avenue, in the presence of a notable assemblage, which included the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Alice Roosevelt, and representatives of official, diplomatic and resident society. Cardinal Gibbons performed the marriage ceremony, assisted by Rev. Dr. J. D. Stafford of St. Patrick's Church. A wedding breakfast followed. Gen. Corbin and his bride left this afternoon for New York, where tomorrow they will attend the marriage of Col. George R. Dyer and Miss Grace Scott, before continuing on their honeymoon trip, via Niagara to Montreal. Upon their return, they will reside at the Arlington Hotel here, until their future home in the West End of the city is completed.

The impressive ceremony took place in the drawing-room, elaborately decorated for the event. The bride's sister, the elder Miss Patten, as hostess, and the others as attendants, were her only relatives present. Miss Patten, the bride's sister, received the guests. When the President, Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Roosevelt arrived, they were received by the Secretary of War and escorted to the places reserved for them.

Gen. Corbin's daughter, Mrs. William M. Parsons of New York, and her husband, were present.

The bride entered the drawing room with Senator John P. Jones of Nevada, a long-time friend of the Patten family. Her wedding dress was of heavy white satin, having a very long train. The waist was laid in soft, loose folds of the satin down to the belt line, and across the shoulders and chest was a cape or yoke of finely-plaited tulle, bordered by a wide fall of rare old point d'alencon lace. The neck was finished by a softly-folded stock collar of white satin, and the sleeves were made after the most recent Paris fashion, growing very large at the hand, and gathered at the wrist into a long, closely-fitting cuff of shirred tulle, held in place by narrow pipings of white satin. On the sleeves was also much of the same point d'alencon lace as on the waist. The wedding veil was very long, falling to the edge of the train, and was of rich point lace.

The bride was preceded by her sisters, Miss Josephine Patten and Miss Helen Patten, who wore gowns of white silk muslin. Each wore a diamond bar pin, souvenir gifts from the bridegroom. Gen. Corbin, who was attended by Col. Dyer of New York, as best man, wore his full-dress uniform, as did also his staff, who acted as ushers, and all other army officers present.

The wedding presents filled several large rooms, their number running into the hundreds. They included laces, fans and antiques in gold, silver and porcelain, as well as jewelry, of which there was a dazzling collection.

TRANSFER OF PROPERTY.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] At 11 o'clock this morning, just one hour before the Corbin-Patten wedding occurred, a document was filed with the Recorder of Deeds of the District of Columbia which transfers from Miss Edythe Patten (now Mrs. H. C. Corbin) to Mary E., Josephine A., and Helen Patten, her sisters, an undivided fourth interest in property on the corner of Second and Q streets, Washington.

It is understood that the income from the property is in excess of $40,000 a year, one-fourth of which Mrs. Corbin has been receiving, but now transfers to her sisters. The publication of the transfer in the Washington papers this evening caused no small amount of gossip among the fashionable and notable people who were in Washington today to attend the wedding.

Bad Penmanship Responsible for Extra Work on Over Seventeen Million Pieces of Mail—Many Employees Injured in Accidents—Important Suggestions.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—The annual report of General Superintendent White of the Railway Mail Service for the fiscal year 1901, shows that at the close of the year there were 138 full railway postoffice lines, 1102 apartment car lines, 19 electric and cable lines and 47 steamboat lines in operation. The total mileage of railway, steamboat, electric and cable lines covered by the railway postoffice service was 187,154. The pieces of mail matters handled, exclusive of registered matter, was 14,181,224,420, an increase of 2.51 per cent. over last year. The number of errors in distribution was one to every 10,626 pieces. There were 17,198,995 pieces of mail matter illegibly addressed so as to require special attention before delivery could be made, an increase of over 2,500,000 over last year.

There were during the year 835 casualties, in which seven clerks were killed, 63 seriously injured, and 229 slightly injured. This is the largest number of casualties ever recorded in one year, in the history of the service. Recommendation is made for the relief of injured and disabled employés of the Railway Mail Service by withholding 2 per cent. from the salaries of the clerks, and with it creating a fund to provide for disabled and superannuated clerks. The organization and reclassification of the service is again recommended, also the passage of an act for the protection of clerks while in the discharge of their official duties in postal cars.

The general superintendent recommends that the mailing divisions of all offices in which the gross receipts amount to more than $300,000 per annum be consolidated with the railway service and placed under its control. The work of inducing publishers to separate their mails before depositing them in postoffices in the large cities, has been pressed with vigor, and a substantial gain made.

CUBA'S COMMERCE.

LARGE INCREASE IN EXPORTS.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—The following comparative statement concerning the commerce of the island of Cuba for the eleven months ended May 31, 1900, and 1901, has been prepared in the division of insular affairs of the War Department:

The total value of merchandise imported during the eleven months ended May 31, 1901, was $59,968,848 against $65,714,738 for the same period of 1900, and the total value of merchandise exported during the eleven months ended May 31, 1901, was $57,799,885, as against $40,417,682 for the same period of 1900. The value of imports of merchandise from the United States during the eleven months was $25,882,769, a decrease of 7 per cent. The value of exports of merchandise to the United States was $41,008,183, an increase of 33 per cent.

TROOPS FOR PHILIPPINES.

WAR DEPARTMENT ORDERS.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—The orders of the War Department for transferring troops from the United States to the Philippines, and from the Philippines to the United States, were published today. The Second Squadron of the Eleventh Cavalry will sail from New York on the Crook about December 1.

The headquarters, field, staff, band and Third Squadron will sail on the transport Buford from New York near the middle of January, and the First Squadron from San Francisco about December 16. The two battalions of the Twenty-eighth Infantry will sail from San Francisco on the Grant about November 15, and the other battalion will sail about December 15. It was supposed that this battalion would go on the Warren, but as that vessel has been disabled, the battalion will probably go later on the Hancock.

The department also directs that the Fourth, Seventeenth, Twentieth and Twenty-second regiments of infantry, now in the Philippines shall sail for the United States as soon as the transports are available.

WARREN IS DISABLED.

CONFIRMATION OF REPORT.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—A dispatch fom Manila was received at the War Department today confirming the news that the transport Warren had been disabled, and stating that the Hancock, which had just arrived at Manila, had been coaled and dispatched to Kobe, Japan, where the Warren now is, to bring the Warren's passengers to San Francisco. The Congressional party which has been visiting the Philippines was among the Warren's passengers.

LIEUT. BROWN'S PERIL.

MUST BE TRIED AGAIN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The findings of the court-martial of First-Lieutenant Preston Brown, Second Infantry, have been returned to Gen. Chaffee without either approval or disapproval by Secretary Root. They were returned with a letter from the Secretary suggesting that the members of the court-martial read the articles of war and familiarize themselves with the penalties provided. The general is directed to reconvene the court.

If the court follows the suggestion, Lieut. Brown may be hanged or imprisoned for life for murder. He killed a Filipino last winter because the native made no effort to save a drowning soldier. The court imposed a purely nominal punishment. The department has not disclosed just what it was. The young lieutenant, who is now in this country, is a son of John Brown, who was Governor of Kentucky in 1891, and the candidate for the gubernatorial office in 1898 of independent Democrats, in opposition to William Goebel.

to him as a man who had done much to debauch politics in general."

Justice Jerome said he could not say whether there was any evidence that the Republican machine had cut him until after a more careful examination of the returns. Among hundreds of messages of congratulation he has received, there is not one from any man of prominence in the Republican organization. Justice Jerome renewed the pledge made in many of his speeches that the district leader would be eliminated as a factor in the conduct of his office. He declared that no man accused of crime could do business with him through his district leader.

"And the criminal rich will get just the same treatment as the criminal poor," he continued.

TO REVOKE TAMMANY CHARTER.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—In commenting on the election, the Times tomorrow will say: "One of the results of the election will be the immediate attempt of the Democratic anti-Tammany forces to rehabilitate the party in this section. To bring this about, ex-Senator Jacob E. Canter, president-elect of the borough of Manhattan, favors, if necessary, the revocation of the charter of the Tammany society. The Greater New York Democracy purposes to undertake the reorganization of the Democratic party here and to make the effort forthwith to secure, to the exclusion of Tammany, recognition of the State and national conventions. The first steps in this movement will be taken at a meeting to be held tomorrow night, which will be attended by representatives of all Democratic bodies opposed to Tammany Hall."

John McCullagh, superintendent of State elections, asserted today that in spite of all the precautions taken to prevent violations of the election laws, and all the work done by the bureau, he believed that at least 10,000 illegal votes had been cast in this city Tuesday.

OHIO.

"OFF YEARS" ALL EXCELLED.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

COLUMBUS (O.) Nov. 6.—With almost complete returns in, tonight, it is noted that the Republican plurality beats all records in what has become known as the "off year," and with two exceptions the records of other years. In the "off years," or those following a Presidential election, the Democrats have carried Ohio, the exceptions being in 1881, after the death of Garfield, and in 1885 and in 1892 after the Cleveland elections. In two of these three years the President was a Democrat, and they were considered "off years" for the Democrats. With the single exception of Hoadley, in 1883, the Democrats never elected a Governor of Ohio in any other than "off years" since the Republican party was organized, and then they won on a local issue of liquor taxation.

Wherever local issues were paramount this year, the Republicans sustained losses, notably at Columbus, on account of local option, and at Cleveland, on account of Mayor Johnson's agitation of "taxation inequalities." Where no such conditions were confronted, the Republicans made gains. They carried some Democratic counties that never before were represented by Republicans. The State was carried on national issues involved in the support of President Roosevelt and the indorsement of Senator Foraker for reelection.

In interviews, Senator Hanna, Gov. Nash and Chairman Dick, on the Republican side, and Col. Kilbourne, Chairman Daugherty and Secretary Gilliam, on the Democratic side, agree that the result was due to the trend of sentiment in national affairs. None of these leaders or others in interviews refer to the financial question as a factor in the contest.

Chairman Daugherty added, with emphasis: "I believe the Republican success is due to the assassination of President McKinley and the prevailing prosperity."

Secretary Gilliam said: "The sympathy aroused by McKinley's death, just before the election, removed that antagonism which always exists in opposition to the administration. Undoubtedly we were greatly handicapped by our inability to go upon the stump and criticise the policies of the administration."

CHAIRMAN DICK'S FIGURES.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

COLUMBUS, Nov. 6.—Late tonight Chairman Dick of the Republican State Committee had the returns from eighty-six counties in Ohio, with only two missing, and the two missing counties were estimated from the newspaper reports, with the following results:

Sixty-two counties have Republican pluralities, aggregating 90,860, and twenty-six counties have Democratic pluralities aggregating 23,179, making the plurality of Nash over Kilbourne for Governor 67,681, and approximating 80,000 plurality for other candidates on the Republican State ticket. The total vote will not exceed 900,000.

The Republicans elected 68 Representatives and the Democrats 42. The State Senate stands 21 Republicans and 12 Democrats. The Republican majority on joint ballot for United States Senator is 35. The official count will not change these figures on the complexion of the Legislature.

CUYAHOGA COMPLETE.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CLEVELAND, Nov. 6.—Complete returns from Cuyahoga county give Nash (Rep.,) for Governor, 31,726; Kilbourne (Dem.,) 332,510. The Democrats elect their entire legislative and county ticket with the exception of Hatfield for Judge of the Common Pleas Court, who was defeated by Phillips (Rep.) Phillips's plurality is 1687.

HAMILTON UNOFFICIALLY.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CINCINNATI, Nov. 6.—Complete unofficial returns from Hamilton county shows the vote for Governor: Nash (Rep.,) 42,468; Kilbourne (Dem.,) 36,866; Binney (Pro.,) 242; Juregensen (Socialist Labor,) 824; Richardson (Union Republican,) 102; Thompson (Socialist,) 3170; plurality for Nash, 5821.

The entire Republican county ticket, including sixteen members of the Legislature, is elected by an average plurality of 12,500. Kilbourne ran about 3000 above the average. The lease of the Cincinnati Southern Railroad was approved by a majority of 32,335.

SOME OF THE ISSUES.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

COLUMBUS, Nov. 6.—Revised returnes show that the Republicans gained almost everywhere except at Columbus, where disaffection over some of Gov. Nash's appointments and "local option" caused great Democratic gains, and in Cleveland, where factional fighting and Mayor Tom Johnson's crusade against taxation predominated.

"Local option" was made a distinct issue in Franklin county. Last night it was said many Silver Democrats would not vote, but the Silver Democrats deny this charge, and say that Kilbourne was one of the original free-silver men.

"We have heard from fifty-three counties, fifteen still being out, including Cuyahoga," said the chairman of the Republican Central Committee today. "These counties show gains sufficient to make a Republican plurality of over 56,000. With Cuyahoga county conceded to the Democrats, the Republicans have 21 of the 33 State Senators and 70 of the 110 Representatives, with a probable increase when the other counties have been reported."

MISSISSIPPI.

DIVIDING UP THE VOTES.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

JACKSON (Miss.) Nov. 6.—Returns received from yesterday's elections from fifty-one counties show that Power has 4033 votes; George, 1534; Quinn, 1520; Eckford, 900, and Dial, 715 for Secretary of State. Carlisle has 4500 and Evans 3200 for Treasurer. It is not believed this lead can be overcome. All the candidates are Democrats.

GAGE A "DEAD ONE," SAY THE POLITICIANS.

INFLUENCE OF SAN FRANCISCO'S ELECTION ON GOVERNOR.

Waterfront Unionists Fail to Stand by the Republican Machine in Its Hour of Need—The Examiner Has Most Influence With New Mayor.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The politicians here have been made to see stars by the election of Musician Schmitz to the Mayoralty, and the crushing defeat of the Republican machine, and Gov. Gage may read his answer in the stars to the question: "Will I succeed myself to the Governorship?"

Going back into recent history, it will be recalled that Gov. Gage settled the "great labor strike in San Francisco," as union men call the recently-crushed brief reign of anarchy in this city. For months the downtown district had been the scene of thuggery and riot; the Mayor was inactive, and the strikers, foreseeing defeat, made more desperate efforts daily to intimidate the law-abiding people of the municipality. That utter rout was to be the fate of the strikers in a very short time, was amsolutely certain.

Then Gov. Gage appeared. What he was reported to have done was to have walked in full plumage along the waterfront; to have talked with the labor leaders, and to have declared that he saw no evidence of riot or intimidation by the unions. Then he was supposed to have gone into a period of self-communing and to have arrived at an agreement on both sides to end the strike. The Examiner sang loud his praises; the strikers were to go back under a secret plan of settlement, which was understood to favor the unions considerably. Everywhere was Gage said to be labor's friend. Over their steam beer the waterfront unionists swore he was a good fellow, and should have their suffrages whenever he held out his hand. When he did extend it, in the election of last Tuesday, all he got was what the empty balloon had in it.

But there is a storm yet to break from the same quarter, which will force the Governor to swim for dear life in the next few weeks, and which will, before the political season is over, cast him high and dry on the shore of Salt River. The unions know that Gage tricked them; the leaders knew it all along, and the rank and file showed they felt it in the defeat of the Republican machine Tuesday. The union men know that "through the Governor's mediation" they returned to work without even a shadow of concession from the employers, and that now they are working daily with the despised "scabs," whereas before they struck they did not so work. They know that many of their fellow-unionists have not succeeded in getting back the jobs they forsook so lightly; they feel that Gov. Gage, for political effect, posed as a friend of labor, while he also curried favor with the employers.

Everywhere one hears it—the growls that "Gage betrayed them" in the hopes of delivering the goods for his machine at the election just past. The storm, but a squall now, will grow in intensity in the coming fortnight, and will settle forever any hopes Gage has had of votes from the union element.

Schmitz's election as Mayor of San Francisco was the direct outcome of the strike. The party which nominated him met during the hottest part of the struggle. It was at first intended only to try to control the State offices, the legislators and the Governor, but when the agitators got together, they forgot their first intention and put up nearly a complete city ticket. They have won with this; now they look for a wider scope. Gage, who had been looked on by the Republican machine as a strong lever with the labor men, turns out to have been a "stuffed prophet," who is despised by the men he deceived and who is now looked at askance by the machine operators of his own party here.

The two offices with any patronage which the Gage machine won, those of County Clerk and Sheriff, are already filled with men who must be retained, and there is little sop for Gage's heelers in them. The gang is out in the cold. One of the Klondiked gang said tonight:

"Gage and our crowd lost thusly: When Gage came here to settle the strike, he said there was no rioting or lawbreaking by the strikers; this he told the reporters. He was said to be absolutely opposed to the calling out of troops to quell the disorders. The strikers were a nice, peaceable set, he said for publication.

"Now, what Gage really said and did was this: He summoned the strike leaders and accused them of fomenting a riot. When the general shooting affray at Kearney and Market streets between the strikers and special policemen occurred, Gage threatened the strike leaders with State interference. He forced them to send their dupes back to work. He made a secret of the agreement between employers and strikers, and claimed the prestige of the settlement.

"For some weeks, the men who took up their jobs believed in some mysterious concession alleged to have been made by the business houses. But when they saw nothing real, had to work with 'scabs' and colored men, they began to see through Gage's scheme. They showed their feelings when they threw down his gangsters and elected a labor Mayor and a mixed city ticket."

The opinion of shrewd thinkers here is that Schmitz will not please the unions greatly. It is believed that he will not cater to their prejudices to the extent desired by them, and that he will, early in his conduct of the Mayoralty, antagonize the leaders of his own crowd. The fact that he was supported by the Examiner makes many mistrust him, though he declares he is unhampered in any way. The Examiner has sought for years to control the office of Chief of Police, as the source of greatest returns, and there are whispers that Schmitz will aid the yellow journel this way.

Politicians here are all at sea as to the chances for the various candidates for the Governorship, but agree that Gage is a "dead one," and that nothing can galvanize his corpse.

MAYOR-ELECT SCHMITZ.

PROMISES TO BE GOOD.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6.—Mayor-elect Schmitz in an interview today said:

"I am going to give the people of San Francisco a good, solid, conservative administration. I believe that capital as well as labor must be protected. There need be no fear on my account of unfavorable conditions, so far as the investment of capital in our midst is concerned. I shall do everything I possibly can to safeguard the interests of all the people.

"My aim shall be to bring the employer and employés into better relations with each other. Both shall be treated with perfect fairness. I shall give them exact justice, and I believe that, so far from suggesting further labor troubles, the success of the labor party will have the effect of lessening the danger of such unfortunate clashes of labor and capital."

REASSURING CAPITAL.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6.—Mayor-elect Schmitz today issued the following statement:

"I wish to say to the merchants and financiers of the city that they need entertain no fears whatever of any actions upon my part tending to inaugurate a radical or revolutionary policy of municipal government. Invested capital will be given the consideration it deserves, and it will be my aim to see that business interests suffer nothing. I will consider all classes and try to harmonize all interests which stand for the upbuilding of San Francisco."

Eugene E. Schmitz, the newly-elected Mayor, is a professional musician, and is also part owner and manager of the Economy Engine Company, a manufacturing concern. He was born in San Francisco 37 years ago, and for several years has been leader of the Columbia Theater Orchestra. He is a graduate of the University of California, and until the recent election has been a Republican in politics.

The success of the Union Labor party brings a new and important factor into Californian politics. Last May, the members of the Teamsters' Union went on a strike, and the City Front Federation, composed of stevedores, marine firemen and other water-front employés, struck in sympathy. The Employers' Association, composed of the principal merchants and manufacturers, was organized to oppose the strikers, and there was a bitter struggle, lasting for several months. The strikers held out for a formal recognition of the unions, and the employers refused to accede. Finally the men went back to work with the understanding that their employers would not discriminate against them because they were union men, and that union men should not be discharged to make rooms for non-union men. The result of the struggle was the formation of the Union Labor party and the nomination of a complete union municipal ticket.

The labor men evidently voted solidly for the head of the ticket, but scattered their votes on candidates for other offices. They may elect three Supervisors. The patronage offices go to the Republicans, while the Democrats elect nine out of eighteen Supervisors. Under the new charter, the Mayor has the power and appoints the boards of Education, Public Works, Police, Park and Fire Commissioners.

THE MAN AND THE PARTY.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6.—The complete vote for Mayor is: Schmitz (Union Labor,) 21,806; Wells (Rep.,) 17,497; Tobin (Dem.,) 12,684.

The complete returns for Sheriff show the following result: Lackman (Rep.,) 26,788; Loughery (United Labor,) 17,488; Wardell (Dem.,) 6180.

NEW PUBLIC OFFICIALS.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6.—The complete unofficial returns, as compiled by Registrar Walsh, show that yesterday's election resulted in the choice of the following to fill the principal public offices at the disposal of the people:

Mayor—Eugene E. Schmitz (Union Labor.)

Auditor—Harry Baehr (Rep.)

City Attorney—Franklin K. Lane (Dem.)

Sheriff—John Lackman (Rep.)

Tax Collector—Edward J. Smith (Rep.)

Treasurer—John E. McDougall (Rep.)

Recorder—Edmond Godchaux (Dem.)

County Clerk—Albert B. Mahony (Rep.)

District Attorney—Lewis F. Byington (Dem.)

Coroner—Dr. Thomas B. W. Leland (Dem.)

Public Administrator—John Farnham (Rep.)

The Democrats elected nine Supervisors; the Republicans six, and the Union-Labor party three.

COLORADO.

LARGE COUNTIES REPUBLICAN.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

DENVER, Nov. 6.—In the election of county officers yesterday in Colorado, the Republicans won in most of the large counties, except Arapahoe. Complete returns from all the precincts in this city, and all the county precincts except one show that the Democratic candidates were elected in Arapahoe by majorities ranging from 2000 to 4000.

The Democrats also carried Teller county (Cripple Creek.) The Republicans won in Pueblo, El Paso, Lake, Jefferson, Boulder, Larimer, Gilpin and La Plata counties. In many counties the result is mixed, the offices being divided between Democrats and Republicans.

IOWA.

NINETY THOUSAND PLURALITY.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

DES MOINES (Iowa) Nov. 6.—Today's returns from the county auditors of Iowa indicate that the ultimate official vote will give A. B. Cummins, the Republican Governor-elect, something like 90,000 plurality. The returns on the Legislature indicate that the Republicans have increased their already-large majority by eight or ten.

PROHIBITION'S GAIN.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

DES MOINES, Nov. 6.—The Prohibition vote has increased from 9000 last year to 25,000. Practically every precinct heard from shows a falling off in the Democratic vote. Of the ninety counties in the State the Democrats have carried only six.

KENTUCKY.

MAKE-UP OF LEGISLATURE.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

LOUISVILLE (Ky.) Nov. 6.—Returns up to 10:30 o'clock indicate that the General Assembly in Kentucky, which will elect a United States Senator, stands: Senate, 25 Democrats, 13 Republicans. House, 73 Democrats, 26 Republicans; 1 Independent Democrat.

LOUISVILLE'S MAYOR.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 6.—Returns from every precinct in Louisville show the majority of Granger (Dem.) for Mayor to be 6628. The Democrats made a clean sweep of all the offices in Louisville and Jefferson county.

MARYLAND.

LOWER HOUSE REPUBLICAN.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

BALTIMORE (Md.) Nov. 6.—Returns received in this city up to midnight and including every county in the State, partly official and partly estimated, indicate a result in the legislative contest which is almost without parallel in Maryland. The most careful estimates and calculations give the Democrats forty-six Delegates and seven newly-elected Senators, which, combined with the ten who hold over in the Senate, assures the friends of Gorman a total of sixty-three on joint ballot. The Republicans, it appears, have elected forty-nine Delegates and six Senators, which, added to their three hold-over Senators, gives them a total of fifty-eight on joint ballot. These figures indicate that the Republicans will be able to organize the House of Delegates.

The situation in Baltimore city is a peculiar one, in that the returns from the Second Legislative District are in such an incomplete state as to make the result there uncertain as to two legislative candidates. The election judges in two precincts became involved last night in a controversy over the rejection of several ballots, and finally locked the ballots and the poll-books in the ballotbox and turned them over to the supervisors of election with the statement that they declined to sign the returns.

One of the Democratic candidates lacks but ninety-seven votes of election, and another needs but 103. The Republicans seem inclined to concede the election of the first mentioned when the returns are in from the two missing precincts, but assert that the other will be beaten. In the table of members, therefore, but one Democrat in Baltimore city is put down as probably elected, while the Republicans are given sixteen. The ballots will not be counted until noon tomorrow, until which time nothing definite can be known.

One of the surprises of the day was the close vote in Allegheny county, heretofore safely Republican, by majorities ranging from 1200 to 2000. The Democrats have elected their Senator and one Representative in that county, and the result as to the remaining four Delegates is close. St. Mary's county, which has been considered doubtful, has gone solidly Democratic, and Washington Wilkinson, one of the picturesque figures in the Republican side in the Senate, is relegated to private life.

MASSACHUSETTS.

STATE FIGURES REVISED.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

BOSTON, Nov. 6.—Revised and corrected returns from the entire State of Massachusetts show that Gov. Crane has a plurality of 70,116.

Revised returns from the Legislature show that the political complexion will be as follows: Senate, 31 Republicans, 7 Democrats; House, 165 Republicans, 73 Democrats, 1 Social Democrats. This is a gain of 2 Republican Senators and a loss of 15 Republican Representatives.

NEW JERSEY.

EVERYTHING REPUBLICAN.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

TRENTON (N. J.) Nov. 6.—Revised returns give Franklin Murphy, Republican candidate for Governor, a plurality of 14,763 over James M. Seymour (Dem.) The Republicans have a majority of forty-one in the Legislature.

VIRGINIA

REPUBLICANS MADE GAINS.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

RICHMOND (Va.) Nov. 6.—Conservative estimates place the Democratic majority on the State ticket at about 25,000. The indications are that the Republicans have elected one Senator and fourteen members of the House. This is a gain of eleven on the present Assembly, but that body will still be overwhelmingly Democratic in both branches.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

THE SUCCESSFUL JUDGES.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SIOUX FALLS (S. D.) Nov. 6.—In the result of the election for District Judge, Smith (Rep.,) First District, has 2000 majority; Jones (Rep.,) Second District, 3000; Bennett (Rep.,) Third District, 600; Frank B. Smith (Rep.,) Fourth District, 7000; McCoy (Rep.,) Fifth District, 600 to 700; Goff (Rep.,) Sixth District, no opposition; McGee (Fus.,) Seventh District, probably elected by a narrow majority; Wooshabaugh (Rep.,) Eighth District, 800. Less than half the vote was polled.

UTAH.

WAS A GOOD MIXTURE.

Tale of Stolen Horses and Murder.

Arizona Rangers Beat by Outlaws.

Considine Murder Trial—Non-Contempt Case—Puget Sound Oysters.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BISBEE (Ariz.) Nov. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Capt. Burt Mossman is just back from the scene of the fight on Black River between a squad of Arizona rangers and the Jack Smith band of outlaws, and brings the first authentic news of the battle.

Smith and two of his brothers have been seen near Springerville, traveling south with a band of stolen horses. Their pursuit was taken up by the rangers, Carlos Tofella and Dee Hamblin, reinforced by four St. Johns cattlemen. The posse found the hoof thieves encamped in the pines, four miles south of Springerville. A blood hound in the Smith camp warned the outlaws, who were caught as they were preparing a meal. They showed their willingness to surrender.

Apparently with the intention of giving himself up, the elder Smith started toward the nearest member of the posse, William Maxwell. When within a few feet of Maxwell, he dropped behind a tree and opened fire. He had dragged a rifle unseen behind him. His brothers, from the shelter of trees, joined in the fusillade. Maxwell and Tofella were killed. Two of the Smiths were wounded. The bloodhound joined in the fight, and was killed. A hundred or more shots were exchanged, and the trees were peppered with bullet holes. The fight was in the dusk of the evening, and the outlaws escaped in the darkness, afoot, leaving their camp, horses and full equipment behind.

Capt. Mossman, with three more rangers, soon joined the party, and led a chase that lasted eight days. Then the Smiths, in sorry plight, stole horses and saddles from Rancher Hyde. Smith and two of his brothers had been seen near Springerville, traveling south with a band of stolen horses. Their pursuit was taken up by two rangers, Carlos Tofella and Deane Franklin, reinforced by four St. John's citizens. The posse found the horse-thieves encamped in the pines, forty miles south of Springerville. A blood-hound in the Smith camp warned the outlaws, who were caught as they were preparing a meal. They shouted their willingness to surrender.

Apparently with the intention of giving himself up, the elder Smith started toward the nearest member of the posse, William Maxwell. SUES LABOR UNION FOR DAMAGES.

WILLIAM WEBER APPEALS TO THE COURT FOR RELIEF.

Plaintiff is a Baker and Asks Five Thousand Dollars Compensation for Wrongs to Which He Has Been Subjected by Defendant.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6.—William Weber is suing Bakers' Union, No. 24, for $5000 damages, which, he alleges, he suffered by reason of a conspiracy formed by the members of the union to prevent him from working at his trade of baker.

Weber alleges that he was expelled from the union without his knowledge, and that the union, after expelling him, compelled his employer, John Langsdorf, to discharge him. He secured a position in Alameda, and was discharged because the union, he alleges, threatened to boycott his employer, if he was kept at work. He then secured a position with Ruediger & Loesch, and he alleges the union is boycotting the bakery owned by them because they refuse to discharge him. He asks that a receiver be appointed to take charge of the funds of the union until the suit is determined, and that an order be issued from the court restraining the union from boycotting any firm by which he is employed.

MERCER ON THE STAND.

NOME CONTEMPT CASE.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6.—In the Nome contempt case today the prosecution introduced a new witness in the person of Capt. John F. Mercer, chief Deputy United States Marshal under Vawter. Mercer testified that within a week after his arrival at Nome, C. A. S. Frost spoke to him about the employment of detectives to watch Judge Johnson, W. H. Metson, Samuel Knight, Charles D. Lane, Kenneth M. Jackson and other attorneys. The witness said Frost introduced him to C. J. Garrett, who refused to act as a spy on other people. George Carson was afterward employed, also George D. McLain and a man named Harrow. These men reported orally and also in writing.

According to the testimony, the witness overheard many conversations between the detectives and Frost. Once Frost told Mercer that there would be a raid on the bank to get possession of the gold dust, and that this must be prevented, at any cost.

One of the conversations between Frost and Mercer was full of moment. On the stand the witness testified: "Frost said the gold must be protected, and, if necessary, the marshal must swear in a posse comitatus. He said the gold must be protected against the Lane crowd."

"What did Frost say about Judge Noyes and the writs?" asked Pillsbury.

"He said Judge Noyes would do as he pleased about them," replied the witness.

The cross-examination continued throughout the greater part of the afternoon. Nothing of any great importance developed. Judge Noyes will probably take the stand tomorrow.

CONSIDINE MURDER TRIAL.

CASE OPENED FOR STATE.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SEATTLE (Wash.) Nov. 6. — This morning the State put on its first witness, in the trial of the case of the State versus John Considine, charged with the murder of William L. Meredith, late Chief of Police of the city of Seattle. When the court opened, Prosecuting Attorney Fulton told what the State expected to prove.

According to Mr. Fulton, the State has witnesses who will testify that Tom Considine had a gun with him while in Guy's drug store, prior to the time that he wrenched from Meredith's hands the gun that he (Meredith) had drawn. This is to be a connecting link in the State's sixth-shot theory. An effort will undoubtedly be made to show that the first of the six shots, which the State claims were fired, was fired by Tom Considine, a minute and a half or two minutes before Meredith fired his first charge from the shotgun, and that it was this shot which led Meredith to attack John Considine.

STOCKTON, Nov. 6.—Thirty insurance agents met tonight, to present complaints to Manager Duval of the Underwriters' compact, charging a local agency with cutting rates, and also objecting to business firms and corporations holding agencies to save premiums to themselves.

Demand will be made on local banks that they discontinue agencies in their offices, which are held to make money for bank officials. The insurance men may organize a local board to deal with these evils.

MANY LIVES LOST IN FIRE.

Vaudeville Troop Caught in Deadly Trap.

Nine Men and a Woman the Victims.

Flames Started in Theater When Actors Were Asleep in Rooms Above.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

HURLEY (Wis.) Nov. 6.—The Klondike Theater, owned by Edward Le Clair, caught fire early today, while most of the inmates were in bed, and the wooden structure was a mass of fire in a flash. Nine men and one woman are missing, and there may be others who have lost their lives in the fire.

The dead:

C. W. CLEVELAND, attorney, Hurley.

TOM RYAN, comedian, Ironwood, Mich.

F. L. GAY, stage manager, St. Louis.

THOMAS OZZONNE, property man.

THOMAS LE CLAIR, bartender, brother of owner.

H. H. CLIFFORD, comedian.

HARRY RAYMOND, porter.

GEORGE BENERT, pugilist.

CLARA BONNE, vocalist.

D. B. MEYER, musician.

The injured number five.

The Klondike Theater building was a structure 125 feet long, three stories high, and 50 feet wide, and valued at $10,000. It was occupied by twenty-five people, consisting of the Le Clair family and a stock company, who gave a vaudeville entertainment six nights a week. On the first floor were the auditorium, bar-room, gambling-rooms, dressing-rooms, kitchen, dining-room, stage and proprietor's bedroom. On the second floor were the boxes and a number of bedrooms. The third floor was partitioned into sleeping apartments.

The fire was thought to have been caused by the explosion of an oil stove in the proprietor's bedroom. When the alarm was sounded, the flames had cut off exit by the stairway. The only remaining exit was through the side and front windows. Some of the women crawled through the side windows, dropped to the adjoining buildings, and reached the ground in safety, with slight injuries.

Laura Russell of the musical team of Meyer and Russell, was thrown from the third story, by her partner, D. M. Meyer, and fell heavily to the sidewalk, sustaining a broken elbow and was badly bruised. Meyer is thought to have tried to rescue or alarm his friends, for he did not follow through the window. He lost his life. William Rushbolt, an Ironwood (Mich.) man, jumped from the second story, and in his fall was caught by a telephone wire, and turned over in the air. He fell on his face and side, and had his limbs broken. His recovery is uncertain.

Clara Bonne, the only woman victim, was warned of the danger, but after starting for safety returned to her room. It is supposed she hoped to secure a portion of her diamonds and other jewelry.

Frank L. Gay, the stage manager, had been in his room about an hour when the fire broke out, and no one saw him after he left the dressing room. Seven bodies of the missing have been found, but their identity cannot be determined.

ANOTHER THEATER BURNED.

TWO MEN INJURED.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

ATLANTA (Ga.) Nov. 6.—The Lyceum Theater, a vaudeville house, was destroyed by fire this afternoon. A huge electric sign in front of the playhouse collapsed and fell to the street, causing a fire by the crossing of wires in the theater. To avert a panic the audience was dismissed a few minutes before the department arrived. Later the flames burst from the roof and were soon beyond control.

About ten vaudeville actors, including Carroll Johnson, the minstrel, lost their wardrobes. All the scenery was burned. Fred Jones, a fireman, and Roy Denner, an electrician at the theater, were badly burned.

PUGET SOUND OYSTERS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TACOMA, Nov. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] State Fish Commissioner Little announces that the necessity of importing eastern oysters from San Francisco Bay and Baltimore will soon be over. He is convinced that absolute success can be attained in the propagation of eastern oysters in the waters of Puget Sound. They are being grown at several points, but the largest measure of success has been obtained on Cook Inlet, twenty miles from Victoria. M. Young has been experimenting for five years, and now has large quantities of oysters two years old, which show all the marks of healthy growth, and promise to command as high a price as Atlantic Coast oysters.

Young is so sanguine of complete success that he is investing a large sum in planting more beds. He has recently imported a quantity of Japanese oysters, and thinks they will thrive, although their very thick shells will make propagation somewhat slower. It has generally been supposed that Puget Sound waters were too cold to grow eastern oysters, unless they could be gradually acclimated. The demand for oysters in this State and Alaska has recently increased so rapidly that Puget Sound oysters now demand nearly double the price asked two years ago.

Chairman Lindsay of the Republican State Committee says it will not be less than 7000, and this is a conservative estimate.

Chairman De France of the Fusion Committee concedes the election of Sedgwick by from 3000 to 5000.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The Herald prints the following:

"From a source of information on the situation in Colombia which has thus far furnished no news not subsequently verified by wire, has been received the copy of a cablegram saying that the city of Panama has fallen and is in the complete control of the Liberal party. It is believed by the New York representative of the Liberals that Gen. Alban, the Governor of the Panama department, is a prisoner, unless he has escaped by sea.

"To A. P. Echeveria, who is an active member of the revolutionary party in the United States, the cablegram came at 9:30 o'clock last (Wednesday) evening:

"'Panama, Nov. 6.—Rindicronse todo nuestro. Publique. [Signed] SAUL.'

"This is translated: 'Government has surrendered everything. Publish.'

"The dispatch is signed by Saul Cortissoz, chief of staff, who was the military chief in command of the troops of the Liberal party who were assembling in Chame, several miles north of Panama.

"At the headquarters of the Liberal party in this city all were jubilant at the news of the fall of Panama. Dr. Restrepo, who is the head of the junta here, said: "All foreign interests will be protected. The Isthmus will be kept open and the Panama Railroad guarded from guerrilla attack if necessary. St. Louis Detectives Succeed in Running "Kid" Longhbaugh to Earth.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) Nov. 6.—The police today made another important arrest in connection with the Great Northern Express robbery of July 3 last, near Wagner, Mont., and secured a valise containing $8000 in bank notes, supposed to have been part of the proceeds of the haul.

A woman who had registered at Laclede Hotel as "Mrs. Lillie Rose," was taken into custody by city detectives and escorted to Chief Desmond's office, her arrest following that of Harry Longhbaugh, alias Longhbaugh, alias alias Harry Alonzo, last night.

The arrest of Mrs. Rose was made first, as she was leaving the hotel. She carried a bag, in which was a mass of $20 bills. This, with her trunk, which was just being loaded into an express wagon, is now at police headquarters.

Mrs. Rose was remarkably calm when she reached the Four Courts. At first she refused to make a statement, except that she had done nothing, and that the authorities were holding her without warrant of law. She maintained that she had not been West and knew nothing of any Montana robbery. She said she came here with her husband direct from Vicksburg, Miss., and in response to Chief Desmond's questions, said the latter place was her home.

Longhbaugh and Mrs. Rose registered at the Laclede Hotel last Friday. They were assigned to room 100 on the second floor.

"I never saw them about the hotel," said Clerk Green. "Usually they were away in the evenings. There was nothing about them to indicate that they had a great deal of money. Mrs. Rose dressed rather neatly and carried herself with perfect dignity."

The couple gave their address as Vicksburg, and told the clerk they would probably remain two or three weeks. Mrs. Rose is small and slender. She apparently is ... ears of age.

CAUSE OF DETECTION.

The arrests came about through information filed Tuesday afternoon at police headquarters by Max Barnett of the Globe Loan agency. Mr. Barnett said that a man entered his business office and bought a watch, the price of which was $35. The stranger proffered four new $20 bills. They were accepted without question. Barnett later took them to the Mechanics' Bank for deposit, but the teller would not accept them, as he believed they were a part of the bills stolen at Wagner.

Barnett went to the Four Courts and related what had occurred to Chief of Detectives Desmond. He gave an accurate description of the man wanted, and detectives were at once detailed to find him. It was after 11 o'clock last night when the detectives located him in a Chestnut-street restaurant. The man was taken by surprise. He attempted to draw a pistol, but the officers overpowered him before he could draw either of the revolvers he carried. In his pockets were found $400 in new bank notes, which the police believe to be a part of the proceeds of the express robbery. He also carried a valuable watch and jewelry.

Longhbaugh was in Chief Desmond's office for several hours today, and was photographed. Secret Service Agent Murphy and F. J. Hoffman, the local agent for the Pinkertons, were present. Longhbaugh was identified through Pinkerton circulars issued immediately after the robbery, describing him. Longhbaugh would make no connected statement to the Chief. He declined to answer questions. The only statement he would make was that he had obtained the money in a gambling game in Memphis.

When arrested at the hotel, the Rose woman is said to have told Detective Shevlin, who reported it to Chief Desmond, that she had forged the names of bank officials to the notes. She denied this to Desmond afterward. In answering questions, the woman told Chief Desmond that her home was in Kentucky, and that the money found in her possession was given her by a man named Williams. She would not give the name of the town in Kentucky or any further information about herself, or the money.

In looking through the belongings of Longhbaugh, the detectives discovered a small dictionary with "Wagner, Mont.," written on the fly leaf.

REVEALS HER RIGHT NAME.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 6.—The prisoners were put through another "sweating" tonight, and the woman finally admitted that her right name is Laura Bullion, and that her home is in Knickerbocker, Tex. Her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Fyler, she said, resided on a ranch near Douglas Postoffice, Ariz. Longbaugh finally admitted that he had not won the money by gambling, as he had at first said, and said that he would in due time prove to the officers where he secured it. Then he resumed his stubborn attitude and maintained it.

When the woman was asked by Chief of Detectives Desmond where she got the money she said "Longbaugh gave it to me. My share was over $7000, and he had as much."

She would not admit that she had any knowledge of his complicity in any robbery, or that she had participated in any hold-up. The woman laid great stress upon the eminent respectability of her grandparents, and begged the officers to withhold the fact of her arrest from them.

Chief Desmond is of the opinion that Miss Bullion, disguised as a man, actually participated in the express robbery.

In a notebook found among Miss Bullion's personal effects were several letters written to her by W. P. Carver, from Sherman, Tex., and Ponca City, Okla.

During a heavy gale yesterday two fishing boats capsized off Galilee, N. J., and John Wilson and Thomas Laison were drowned. The combined crews of the boats numbered fourteen men and the remaining twelve were rescued by the life savers.

Santos-Dumont will divide the Deutsch prize of £100,000 awarded to him, as follows: Fifty thousand francs for the poor of Paris, £30,000 for M. Santos-Dumont's assistant, Emanuel Aime, and the remaining £20,000 to the aeronaut's other co-laborers.

SCHLEY INQUIRY.

ral Sampson to look after the latter's interest before the court of inquiry today sent a letter to the court protesting against the inclusion in the record of certain statements deemed to reflect upon Sampson's conduct at Santiago. The letter is addressed to Admiral Dewey, as president of the court, and is as follows:

"While fully cognizant of, and abiding by the decision of the court that Rear-Admiral W. T. Sampson, U.S.N., is not a party interested, and that notice will be given the admiral when the court so considers him, I have the honor to make the following request on behalf of Admiral Sampson:

"Arguments by counsel being matters of record and receiving wide circulation, it is respectfully submitted that argument by counsel upon matters regarding any official acts of Admiral Sampson, which he has not been permitted to defend, and which the court, by an expressed ruling, has excluded, it is eminently proper that the references of counsel to Admiral Sampson to the effect that Sampson permitted the Spanish cruiser Colon to lie in sight without attacking her, from the time of his arrival on June 1, 1898, to about 10:30 a.m. of that day, be stricken from the record in the case, or evidence be introduced by which Admiral Sampson may be permitted to defend such a grave accusation involving his honor as a naval officer.

"It is further most earnestly and most respectfully requested that counsel in the future be restricted to the evidence adduced as regards the official acts of Admiral Sampson, and not be permitted to include those matters expressly ruled out by the court, and which the admiral has not been permitted to defend, by preventing a manifest injustice, and the introduction of accusations against the admiral in the record by indirect means, which was deemed improper by the court by direct means."

Admiral Dewey announced privately before the opening of the court of inquiry that there would be no morning session of the court tomorrow. Mrs. Dewey has been indisposed recently, and the admiral will devote the forenoon to removing her to their city residence from the suburbs.

Capt. Parker concluded his address, after talking for twenty-five minutes. He maintained that the blockade of Santiago was effective. He commended Rear-Admiral Schley's reconnoissance of May 31, saying he had acted wisely in determining the actual conditions. In this line of policy, he said that Commodore Schley's conduct was paralleled by that of Admiral Dewey in Asiatic waters, when the latter remained for several days in Mirs Bay.

Regarding the "loop" made by the Brooklyn, Capt. Parker declared it was the wisest move that could have been made. All talk about the Brooklyn going to the southward, he characterized as "moonshine."

"If the Spanish gunners could have shot as the Americans did," concluded Capt. Parker, "Admiral Schley, instead of being on trial, as he is today, would be in a sailor's grave."

Referring to the Hodgson controversy, Capt. Parker declared he believed Hodgson desired to tell the truth, but unfortunately he had told a different story every time he had opened his mouth.

Capt. Parker said he did not know how the alleged controversy over the danger of colliding with the Texas started, except from the story told by the captain of the Iowa. Capt. Parker was sarcastic in his allusion to Capt. Evans's alleged statement regarding the damage he had done to the Spanish ships, and concluded with a glowing tribute to Rear-Admiral Schley.

RAYNER OPENS FIRE.

Rayner began his argument at 11:25 o'clock a.m. He paid a compliment to Judge-Advocate Lemly and his assistant, Hanna, for the "most judicial impartiality with which they have managed this case."

Rayner made a plea for the consideration of questions from what was at that time Commodore Schley's point of view.

"Let us," he said, "put ourselves in his place, and see what the circumstances were. We all know what it would have been wise to do."

Discussing dispatch No. 7, known as the "dear Schley" letter, Rayner contended that the order conveyed in that message made it incumbent upon Commodore Schley to remain at Cienfuegos. He declared that this was the key to the whole case, and that it did not admit of any other construction than that Commodore Schley should remain at Cienfuegos. In support of this contention, he read the department order to Admiral Sampson. He then took up the McCalla memorandum, the message taken by the Eagle to Commodore Schley and the testimony of Lieut. Hood and declared that Rear-Admiral Schley was the victim of an unfortunate combination of circumstances that left him in total darkness as to the location of the Spanish fleet.

Concerning the question of coaling at sea, Rayner read the testimony of several witnesses to prove the great difficulties such a task involved. He said that all they wanted to prove was that Rear-Admiral Schley was honest when he informed the department of his increased anxiety regarding the coal supply, and that he acted according to the dictates of his own conscience. He was prepared to prove that one ship could not have followed the Spanish fleet six hours and have had enough coal left to return to Key West.

THE "MAN ON DECK."

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Coming to the reconnoissance of May 31, Rayner contended that it had been Commodore Schley's chief intention to develop the Spanish land batteries, and in this he said he had been eminently successful. He claimed that the man who was in command at such a time should be given great discretion, for he must necessarily know more of the situation than the gentlemen who make out battle plans at home on charts with compass and lead pencil, and direct other people thousands of miles away how to fight a battle.

Rayner referred satirically to the testimony of Lieut. Bristol, saying, among other things: "His vision was a divine inspiration. Sextants and stadimeters, compass bearings, government measurements and hydrographic plats were all dim and obscure in comparison with the miraculous power of his unaided vision, which lit up and illuminated the entire harbors of Cienfuegos and Santiago with the unerring precision of the morning sunbeams. Government experts with mathematical accuracy had measured the height of Morro Castle and Zocapa battery, but down they went 100 feet when they encountered Bristol's miraculous eye."

Rayner then came to the consideration of Rear-Admiral Sampson's interview with the commanded of the "Flying Squadron," especially referring to Rear-Admiral Schley's testimony relative to the directions of Sampson with reference to attacks upon the land batteries. He also referred to Capt. Chadwick's testimony in this connection, and said that Rear-Admiral Schley's statement, being affirmative, was more entitled to credence than was Capt. Chadwick's, which was negative.

Rayner said he thought that Capt. Chadwick had been forgetful, but that no charge could be made against him on that score. Rear-Admiral Schley, however, who had given positive testimony, would be guilty of perjury if his statement were not true.

"They must have talked about something," he said, "and what would they be more likely to have discussed than the guns of the south coast of Cuba, whither Commodore Schley was then bound?"

Reverting to the blockade of Cienfuegos, Rayner said Capt. McCalla had admitted on the stand that he himself had disobeyed orders in not leaving the Eagle off that port when he left for Key West. He did not, he said, mean to criticise Capt. McCalla, but if he was not to be censured for disobedience of orders, why, he asked, should Rear-Admiral Schley be?

THE "LOOP" QUESTION.

After luncheon Rayner discussed the ninth specification, which dealt with the "loop" of the Brooklyn, July 3, and the possibility of colliding with the Texas.

Rayner said he stood upon the testimony of Capt. Cook, who, all things taken together, had the best opportunity to give all the information about the "loop". What might have happened had the Brooklyn turned to port was purely a matter of conjecture. The turn in the other direction was completely successful. It was intimated that the turn to the southward would have been to get away from the enemy, yet it was an indisputable fact that the turn had brought the Brooklyn closer to the Spanish fleet, and that she received several of the shots which struck the American ships. Capt. Cook's testimony, he said, illumined this maneuver, and he planted himself upon this testimony.

Rayner then discussed the testimony of Hellner and Hodgson, and in this connection ridiculed the chart prepared by the navigators of the ships in the battle. He then took up specification No. 10, concerning the Hodgson controversy. He said he would not undertake the task of extracting Lieutenant-Commander Hodgson from his predicament. He read portions of Hodgson's testimony, and again fell back upon Capt. Cook's testimony as decisive of the point at issue. Capt. Cook had, said Rayner, stated that the danger of collision had never entered his head. Referring to this testimony, he said "You cannot impeach him. If I had my way, I must say I think I would have rested this case when Capt. Cook's testimony was done. I did not do so because the admiral wanted to take the stand in his own vindication."

No one, he said, had intended to attack Hodgson, but the entire controversy was Hodgson's own fault.

"There has been too much magazine writing and too much gossip," he said. "Imagine such a conversation between the commanding officer of a great fleet and a subordinate officer at such a time.

"Even if Commodore Schley had said 'Damn the Texas,'" continued Rayner, "it would not have been such a serious matter, as it could not have been meant seriously. Down in Anne Arundel county, Maryland, they use such language in salutation, saying 'Damn you, how are you this morning.'"

The trouble was, he said, that the public did not have the proper conception of the occurrence as reported, but had gathered the idea that the Brooklyn was running away from the scene of conflict. Rear-Admiral Schley had denied the reported colloquy, he said, but not until after it had done him great injury.

"WOODS AND POTTS."

Rayner then took up the first specification, Schley's conduct during the campaign.

"Now we come to Mr. Woods and Mr. Potts." [Laughter in the court.]

After reading the testimony of several officers as to the splendid bearing of Rear-Admiral Schley, Rayner read the testimony of Potts to the effect that the rear-admiral appeared nervous, "that he got up and sat down." Rayner proceeded to ridicule Potts as "that precocious child of the kindergarten, who confessed that he was always scared when he was in battle, but who, evidently, was never engaged in any battle sufficient enough even to arouse his timidity."

At this point, Capt. Lemly protested against Rayner's strictures of Lieutenant-Commander Potts.

"Counsel is traducing the reputation of an officer of ability and high standing," said Capt. Lemly.

Rayner replied: "You have no right to traduce the reputation of Admiral Schley."

Capt. Lemly: I do not think that counsel should say that this is an attempt to traduce Admiral Schley. I am not here because I wanted to be, but because it was my duty. I was ordered to come. I think he is unjust, and it shows how utterly unreliable he is in his statements.

Rayner: I do not think the court will permit this. You must not make a statement of that sort. I will not permit it.

Admiral Dewey: No.

Rayner: He is not only very unreliable, but very offensive.

Capt. Lemly: Counsel gets up and says that we are in our discharge of a most painful duty, trying to traduce Admiral Schley.

Rayner: I have borne willing testimony to the impartiality with which he has tried his case and the delicate position he occupies. But I do ask my brother not to get up and contradict me and say that I am unreliable when I read the testimony that sustains me. I appreciate the position he is in. He has filled that position as well and faithfully as it could possibly be filled by any one. I have not said a word in criticism of his conduct. It is only when he refers to my traducing an officer that I have the same right to refer to his traducing Admiral Schley.

Admiral Dewey: The court, of course, will read all the testimony that has been given. We will be governed by the testimony. We know exactly what Lieutenant-Commander Potts said. He said he was scared, but counsel did enlarge a little on it.

RAYNER'S CLOSING WORDS.

The difficulty was then smoothed over, and Rayner took up the other specifications and reviewed the testimony of the various witnesses against Schley. He closed as follows:

"I now have briefly presented this case as it appears to me in its general outline. Such a trial as this has never, to my knowledge, taken place in the history of the world. It seemed to my mind that this case had hardly opened with the testimony of Capt. Higginson when it commenced to totter, and from day to day its visionary fabric dissolved from view. When Capt. Cook, their last witness, was put upon the stand, the entire structure collapsed, and it was when the witnesses from our own ships and the gallant captain and crew of the Oregon and Admiral Schley had narrated their unvarnished tale, that the whole tenement, with all of its compartments, from its foundation to its turret, disintegrated, and lies here like a mass of blackened ruins.

"It has taken three years to reveal the truth. There is not a single word that has fallen from the tongue of a single witness, friend or foe, that casts the shadow of a reflection upon the honored name of the hero of Santiago. He has never claimed the glory of that day. No word to this effect has ever gone forth from him to the American people. The valiant Cook, the heroic Clark, the lamented Philip, the intrepid and undaunted Wainwright, and all the other captains and every man at every gun, and every soul on board of every ship are equal participants with Admiral Schley in the honor wrought upon that immortal day.

"We cannot strike down his figure, standing upon the bridge of the Brooklyn. There he stands, upon the bridge of the Brooklyn, his ship almost alone, and receiving the entire fire of the Spanish foe until the Oregon, as if upon the wings of lightning, sped into the thickness of this mortal carnage. 'God bless the Oregon!' was the cheer that rang from deck to deck, and on they went, twin brothers in the chase, until the lee gun was fired from the Cristobal Colon, and the despotic colors of Spain were swept from the face of her ancient possessions. 'Well done; congratulate you on the victory,' was the streamer that was bent from the halyard of the Brooklyn, and from that day to this no man has ever heard from Admiral Schley the slightest whisper, or intimation that he usurped the glory of that imperishable hour.

"The thunders of the Brooklyn as she trembled on the waves have been discordant music to the ears of envious foes, but they have pierced with a ringing melody the ears of his countrymen, and struck a responsive chord at the fireside of every American home. And what is more than all, which has been revealed in this case, as matchless as is his courage, and as unsullied as is his honor, is his beautiful character, and the generous spirit that animates his soul, and the forgiving heart that beats within his bosom. Yes, we cannot strike him down. Erect he stands as the McGregor when he stepped on his native heather and his eye was on the peak Ben Lomond. His country does not want to strike him down, nor cast a blur on the pure escutcheon of his honored name.

"For three long years he has suffered, and now, thank God, the hour of his vindication has come. With composure, with resignation, with supreme and unfaltering fortitude, he awaits the judgment of this illustrious tribunal, and when that deliverance comes, he can, from the high and exalted position that he occupies, look down upon his traducers and maligners and with exultant pride exclaim: 'I care not for the venomous gossip of clubs, and drawing-rooms, and cliques and cabals, and the poisoned shafts of envy and of malice. I await, under the guidance of divine Providence, the verdict of posterity.'"

Rayner closed at 3:30 o'clock, having spoken about three hours. The large audience broke into applause when he concluded, and the members of the court, as well as others, congratulated him upon his speech. Rear-Admiral Schley was visibly affected by the concluding remarks and attending scenes.

The court adjourned until 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, when Capt. Lemly will deliver the closing argument for the government.

STRIKE IS CALLED IN EIGHT COLLIERIES.

COMPANY REFUSED TO REINSTATE DISCHARGED WORKMEN.

About Four Thousand Men and Boys Will Be Thrown Out of Employment. Men Allege Blacklist as Excuse for Action.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SCRANTON (Pa.) Nov. 6.—An order calling a strike at the eight collieries of the Temple Iron Company was issued tonight from District No. 1, United Mine Workers of America.

The strike results from the refusal of the Temple company to reinstate fifty workmen who had meen discharged and in whose case, it is alleged, a blacklist from the Lehigh Coal Company in the Maltby mines, where they had been previously on strike, had been used against them.

The eight collieries operated by the Temple Iron Company are located in Lackawanna and Luzerne counties, and employ about four thousand men and boys. The company closed down today, the Mount Lookout, Harry Eand and Fortyfort collieries supposedly in anticipation of the strike. It is expected the other collieries will be closed down tomorrow. The company officials refuse to make any statement.

GHASTLY DISCOVERY IN RAILWAY FREIGHT STATION.

Cadavers Were Packed in Excelsior and Marked as Second-hand Laundry Machinery—Police Place Under Arrest Frances Schoenleber, a Physician.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Eight human bodies were taken this evening from two crates at the freight station of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad. They were consigned to R. J. Jones of Brashear, Mo., and marked as second-hand laundry machinery. The bodies were purchased during the day from the Harvey Medical College of this city, and were being shipped to Missouri for purposes of dissection. The police are looking fr Jones, but so far have been unable to locate him. The only charge that can be brought against him is the shipping of bodies in a manner contrary to law.

When the crates were received at the station the suspicions of men in charge were aroused, as they had never seen laundry machinery of the shape of the two crates, nor had they ever seen it shipped in such manner. It was decided to open the crates and determine if their contents were really laundry machinery.

When they were opened the bodies sewed up in canvas and packed in excelsior were found. The police were notified, and as it was known that the crates came from the Harvey Medical College, officers were at once sent there. The officials of the college proved that they had no connection with the shipment of the bodies, and said that they had sold them during the afternoon to R. J. Jones, who said that he intended to ship them to Brashear, Mo.

"I told him to be careful how he shipped them," said Dr. Dickinson of the college, "and warned him that he would get into trouble if he sent them in any other way than that authorized by law. He said nothing and went away. As far as the college is concerned the transaction was entirely proper. We had more cadavers than we could use, and sold those to Mr. Jones, as he called himself. He said that they were to be used for medical purposes."

Frances Schoenleber of No. 147 Eugenie street, is under arrest, and Dr. Frances Dickinson, secretary of the Harvey Medical College, has been called on to explain his connection with the affair. Dr. Schoenleber refuses to discuss the charges against him, but, according to admissions made by Dr. Dickinson, and facts learned by the police, he attempted to ship the bodies to Brashear, Mo., under the name of R. J. Jones. Dr. Dickinson informed the police that previous to being prepared for shipment the cadavers were the property of the college, and that he disposed of them to Dr. Schoenleber, with a full knowledge of how he intended to use them.

St. Louis Detectives Succeed in Running "Kid" Longhbaugh to Earth.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) Nov. 6.—The police today made another important arrest in connection with the Great Northern Express robbery of July 3 last, near Wagner, Mont., and secured a valise containing $2000 in bank notes, supposed to have been part of the proceeds of the haul.

A woman who had registered at Laclede Hotel as "Mrs. Lillie Rose," was taken into custody by city detectives and escorted to Chief Desmond's office, her arrest following that of Harry Longhbaugh, alias Longhbaugh, alias alias Harry Alonzo, last night.

The arrest of Mrs. Rose was made first, as she was leaving the hotel. She carried a bag, in which was a mass of $20 bills. This, with her trunk, which was just being loaded into an express wagon, is now at police headquarters.

Mrs. Rose was remarkably calm when she reached the Four Courts. At first she refused to make a statement, except that she had done nothing, and that the authorities were holding her without warrant of law. She maintained that she had not been West and knew nothing of any Montana robbery. She said she came here with her husband direct from Vicksburg, Miss., and in response to Chief Desmond's questions, said the latter place was her home.

Longhbaugh and Mrs. Rose registered at the Laclede Hotel last Friday. They were assigned to room 109 on the second floor.

"I never saw them about the hotel," said Clerk Green. "Usually they were away in the evenings. There was nothing about them to indicate that they had a great deal of money. Mrs. Rose dressed rather neatly and carried herself with perfect dignity."

The couple gave their address as Vicksburg, and told the clerk they would probably remain two or three weeks. Mrs. Rose is small and slender. She apparently is years of age.

CAUSE OF DETECTION.

The arrests came about through information filed Tuesday afternoon at police headquarters by Max Barnett of the Globe Loan agency. Mr. Barnett said that a man entered his business office and bought a watch, the price of which was $85. The stranger proffered four $20 bills. They were accepted without question. Barnett later took them to the Mechanics' Bank for deposit, but the teller would not accept them, as he believed they were a part of the bills stolen at Wagner.

Barnett went to the Four Courts and related what had occurred to Chief of Detectives Desmond. He gave an accurate description of the man wanted, and detectives were at once detailed to find him. It was after 11 o'clock last night when the detectives located him in a Chestnut-street restaurant. The man was taken by surprise. He attempted to draw a pistol, but the officers overpowered him before he could draw either of the revolvers he carried. In his pockets were found $400 in new bank notes, which the police believe to be a part of the proceeds of the express robbery. He also carried a valuable watch and jewelry.

Longhbaugh was in Chief Desmond's office for several hours today, and was photographed. Secret Service Agent Murphy and F. J. Hoffman, the local agent for the Pinkertons, were present. Longhbaugh was identified through Pinkerton circulars issued immediately after the robbery, describing him. Longhbaugh would make no connected statement to the Chief. He declined to answer questions. The only statement he would make was that he had obtained the money in a gambling game in Memphis.

When arrested at the hotel, the Rose woman is said to have told Detective Shevlin, who reported it to Chief Desmond, that she had forged the names of bank officials to the notes. She denied this to Desmond afterward. In answering questions, the woman told Chief Desmond that her home was in Kentucky, and that the money found in her possession was given her by a man named Williams. She would not give the name of the town in Kentucky or any further information about herself, or the money.

In looking through the belongings of Longhbaugh, the detectives discovered a small dictionary with "Wagner, Mont.," written on the fly leaf.

REVEALS HER RIGHT NAME.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 6.—The prisoners were put through another "sweating" tonight, and the woman finally admitted that her right name is Laura Bullion, and that her home is in Knickerbocker, Tex. Her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Fyler, she said, resided on a ranch near Douglas Postoffice, Ariz. Longbaugh finally admitted that he had not won the money by gambling, as he had at first said, and said that he would in due time prove to the officers where he secured it. Then he resumed his stubborn attitude and maintained it.

When the woman was asked by Chief of Detectives Desmond where she got the money she said "Longbaugh gave it to me. My share was over $7000, and he had as much."

She would not admit that she had any knowledge of his complicity in any robbery, or that she had participated in any hold-up. The woman laid great stress upon the eminent respectability of her grandparents, and begged the officers to withhold the fact of her arrest from them.

Chief Desmond is of the opinion that Miss Bullion, disguised as a man, actually participated in the express robbery.

In a notebook found among Miss Bullion's personal effects were several letters written to her by W. P. Carver, from Sherman, Tex., and Ponca City, Okla.

During a heavy gale yesterday two fishing boats capsized off Galilee, N. J., and John Wilson and Thomas Laison were drowned. The combined crews of the boats numbered fourteen men and the remaining twelve were rescued by the life savers.

SCHLEY INQUIRY.

ral Sampson to look after the latter's interest before the court of inquiry, today sent a letter to the court protesting against the inclusion in the record of certain statements deemed to reflect upon Sampson's conduct at Santiago. The letter is addressed to Admiral Dewey, as president of the court, and is as follows:

"While fully cognizant of, and abiding by the decision of the court that Rear-Admiral W. T. Sampson, U.S.N., is not a party interested, and that notice will be given the admiral when the court so considers him, I have the honor to make the following request on behalf of Admiral Sampson:

"Arguments by counsel being matters of record and receiving wide circulation, it is respectfully submitted that argument by counsel upon matters regarding any official acts of Admiral Sampson, which he has not been permitted to defend, and which the court, by an expressed ruling, has excluded, it is eminently proper that the references of counsel to Admiral Sampson to the effect that Sampson permitted the Spanish cruiser Colon to lie in sight without attacking her, from the time of his arrival on June 1, 1898, to about 10:30 a.m. of that day, be stricken from the record in the case, or evidence be introduced by which Admiral Sampson may be permitted to defend such a grave accusation involving his honor as a naval officer.

"It is further most earnestly and most respectfully requested that counsel in the future be restricted to the evidence adduced as regards the official acts of Admiral Sampson, and not be permitted to include those matters expressly ruled out by the court, and which the admiral has not been permitted to defend, by preventing a manifest injustice, and the introduction of accusations against the admiral in the record by indirect means, which was deemed improper by the court by direct means."

Admiral Dewey announced privately before the opening of the court of inquiry that there would be no morning session of the court tomorrow. Mrs. Dewey has been indisposed recently, and the admiral will devote the forenoon to removing her to their city residence from the suburbs.

Capt. Parker concluded his address, after talking for twenty-five minutes. He maintained that the blockade of Santiago was effective. He commended Rear-Admiral Schley's reconnoissance of May 31, saying he had acted wisely in determining the actual conditions. In this line of policy, he said that Commodore Schley's conduct was paralleled by that of Admiral Dewey in Asiatic waters, when the latter remained for several days in Mirs Bay.

Regarding the "loop" made by the Brooklyn, Capt. Parker declared it was the wisest move that could have been made. All talk about the Brooklyn going to the southward, he characterized as "moonshine."

"If the Spanish gunners could have shot as the Americans did," concluded Capt. Parker, "Admiral Schley, instead of being on trial, as he is today, would be in a sailor's grave."

Referring to the Hodgson controversy, Capt. Parker declared he believed Hodgson desired to tell the truth, but unfortunately he had told a different story every time he had opened his mouth.

Capt. Parker said he did not know how the alleged controversy over the danger of colliding with the Texas started, except from the story told by the captain of the Iowa. Capt. Parker was sarcastic in his allusion to Capt. Evans's alleged statement regarding the damage he had done to the Spanish ships, and concluded with a glowing tribute to Rear-Admiral Schley.

RAYNER OPENS FIRE.

Rayner began his argument at 11:25 o'clock a.m. He paid a compliment to Judge-Advocate Lemly and his assistant, Hanna, for the "most judicial impartiality with which they have managed this case."

Rayner made a plea for the consideration of questions from what was at that time Commodore Schley's point of view.

"Let us," he said, "put ourselves in his place, and see what the circumstances were. We all know what it would have been wise to do."

Discussing dispatch No. 7, known as the "dear Schley" letter, Rayner contended that the order conveyed in that message made it incumbent upon Commodore Schley to remain at Cienfuegos. He declared that this was the key to the whole case, and that it did not admit of any other construction than that Commodore Schley should remain at Cienfuegos. In support of this contention, he read the department order to Admiral Sampson. He then took up the McCalla memorandum, the message taken by the Eagle to Commodore Schley and the testimony of Lieut. Hood and declared that Rear-Admiral Schley was the victim of an unfortunate combination of circumstances that left him in total darkness as to the location of the Spanish fleet.

Concerning the question of coaling at sea, Rayner read the testimony of several witnesses to prove the great difficulties such a task involved. He said that all they wanted to prove was that Rear-Admiral Schley was honest when he informed the department of his increased anxiety regarding the coal supply, and that he acted according to the dictates of his own conscience. He was prepared to prove that one ship could not have followed the Spanish fleet six hours and have had enough coal left to return to Key West.

THE "MAN ON DECK."

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Coming to the reconnoissance of May 31, Rayner contended that it had been Commodore Schley's chief intention to develop the Spanish land batteries, and in this he said he had been eminently successful. He claimed that the man who was in command at such a time should be given great discretion, for he must necessarily know more of the situation than the gentlemen who make out battle plans at home on charts with compass and lead pencil, and direct other people thousands of miles away how to fight a battle.

Rayner referred satirically to the testimony of Lieut. Bristol, saying, among other things: "His vision was a divine inspiration. Sextants and stadimeters, compass bearings, government measurements and hydrographic plats were all dim and obscure in comparison with the miraculous power of his unaided vision, which lit up and illuminated the entire harbors of Cienfuegos and Santiago with the unerring precision of the morning sunbeams. Government experts with mathematical accuracy had measured the height of Morro Castle and Zenapa battery, but down they went 100 feet when they encountered Bristol's miraculous eye."

Rayner then came to the consideration of Rear-Admiral Sampson's interview with the commanded of the "Flying Squadron," especially referring to Rear-Admiral Schley's testimony relative to the directions of Sampson with reference to attacks upon the land batteries. He also referred to Capt. Chadwick's testimony in this connection, and said that Rear-Admiral Schley's statement, being affirmative, was more entitled to credence than was Capt. Chadwick's, which was negative.

Rayner said he thought that Capt. Chadwick had been forgetful, but that no charge could be made against him on that score. Rear-Admiral Schley, however, who had given positive testimony, would be guilty of perjury if his statement were not true.

"They must have talked about something," he said, "and what would they be more likely to have discussed than the guns of the south coast of Cuba, whither Commodore Schley was then bound?"

Reverting to the blockade of Cienfuegos, Rayner said Capt. McCalla had admitted on the stand that he himself had disobeyed orders in not leaving the Eagle off that port when he left for Key West. He did not, he said, mean to criticise Capt. McCalla, but if he was not to be censured for disobedience of orders, why, he asked, should Rear-Admiral Schley be?

THE "LOOP" QUESTION.

After luncheon Rayner discussed the ninth specification, which dealt with the "loop" of the Brooklyn, July 3, and the possibility of colliding with the Texas.

Rayner said he stood upon the testimony of Capt. Cook, who, all things taken together, had the best opportunity to give all the information about the "loop". What might have happened had the Brooklyn turned to port was purely a matter of conjecture. The turn in the other direction was completely successful. It was intimated that the turn to the southward would have been to get away from the enemy, yet it was an indisputable fact that the turn had brought the Brooklyn closer to the Spanish fleet, and that she received several of the shots which struck the American ships. Capt. Cook's testimony, he said, illumined this maneuver, and he planted himself upon this testimony.

Rayner then discussed the testimony of Hellner and Hodgson, and in this connection ridiculed the chart prepared by the navigators of the ships in the battle. He then took up specification No. 10, concerning the Hodgson controversy. He said he would not undertake the task of extracting Lieutenant-Commander Hodgson from his predicament. He read portions of Hodgson's testimony, and again fell back upon Capt. Cook's testimony as decisive of the point at issue. Capt. Cook had, said Rayner, stated that the danger of collision had never entered his head. Referring to this testimony, he said "You cannot impeach him. If I had my way, I must say I think I would have rested this case when Capt. Cook's testimony was done. I did not do so because the admiral wanted to take the stand in his own vindication."

No one, he said, had intended to attack Hodgson, but the entire controversy was Hodgson's own fault.

"There has been too much magazine writing and too much gossip," he said. "Imagine such a conversation between the commanding officer of a great fleet and a subordinate officer at such a time.

"Even if Commodore Schley had said 'Damn the Texas,'" continued Rayner, "it would not have been such a serious matter, as it could not have been meant seriously. Down in Anne Arundel county, Maryland, they use such language in salutation, saying 'Damn you, how are you this morning.'"

The trouble was, he said, that the public did not have the proper conception of the occurrence as reported, but had gathered the idea that the Brooklyn was running away from the scene of conflict. Rear-Admiral Schley had denied the reported colloquy, he said, but not until after it had done him great injury.

"WOODS AND POTTS."

Rayner then took up the first specification, Schley's conduct during the campaign.

"Now we come to Mr. Woods and Mr. Potts." [Laughter in the court.]

After reading the testimony of several officers as to the splendid bearing of Rear-Admiral Schley, Rayner read the testimony of Potts to the effect that the rear-admiral appeared nervous, "that he got up and sat down." Rayner proceeded to ridicule Potts as "that precocious child of the kindergarten, who confessed that he was always scared when he was in battle, but who, evidently, was never engaged in any battle sufficient enough even to arouse his timidity."

At this point, Capt. Lemly protested against Rayner's strictures of Lieutenant-Commander Potts.

"Counsel is traducing the reputation of an officer of ability and high standing," said Capt. Lemly.

Rayner replied: "You have no right to traduce the reputation of Admiral Schley."

Capt. Lemly: I do not think that counsel should say that this is an attempt to traduce Admiral Schley. I am not here because I wanted to be, but because it was my duty. I was ordered to come. I think he is unjust, and it shows him utterly unreliable he is in his statements.

Rayner: I do not think the court will permit this. You must not make a statement of that sort. I will not permit it.

Admiral Dewey: No.

Rayner: He is not only very unreliable, but very offensive.

Capt. Lemly: Counsel gets up and says that we are in our discharge of a most painful duty, trying to traduce Admiral Schley.

Rayner: I have borne willing testimony to the impartiality with which he has tried his case and the delicate position he occupies. But I do ask my brother not to get up and contradict me and say that I am unreliable when I read the testimony that sustains me. I appreciate the position he is in. He has filled that position as well and faithfully as it could possibly be filled by any one. I have not said a word in criticism of his conduct. It is only when he refers to my traducing an officer that I have the same right to refer to his traducing Admiral Schley.

Admiral Dewey: The court, of course, will read all the testimony that has been given. We will be governed by the testimony. We know exactly what Lieutenant-Commander Potts said. He said he was scared, but counsel did enlarge a little on it.

RAYNER'S CLOSING WORDS.

The difficulty was then smoothed over, and Rayner took up the other specifications and reviewed the testimony of the various witnesses against Schley. He closed as follows:

"I now have briefly presented this case as it appears to me in its general outline. Such a trial as this has never, to my knowledge, taken place in the history of the world. It seemed to my mind that this case had hardly opened with the testimony of Capt. Higginson when it commenced to totter, and from day to day its visionary fabric dissolved from view. When Capt. Cook, their last witness, was put upon the stand, the entire structure collapsed, and it was when the witnesses from our own ships and the gallant captain and crew of the Oregon and Admiral Schley had narrated their unvarnished tale, that the whole tenement, with all of its compartments, from its foundation to its turret, disintegrated, and lies here like a mass of blackened ruins.

"It has taken three years to reveal the truth. There is not a single word that has fallen from the tongue of a single witness, friend or foe, that casts the shadow of a reflection upon the honored name of the hero of Santiago. He has never claimed the glory of that day. No word to this effect has ever gone forth from him to the American people. The valiant Cook, the heroic Clark, the lamented Philip, the intrepid and undaunted Wainwright, and all the other captains and every man at every gun, and every soul on board of every ship are equal participants with Admiral Schley in the honor wrought upon that immortal day.

"We cannot strike down his figure, standing upon the bridge of the Brooklyn. There he stands, upon the bridge of the Brooklyn, his ship almost alone, and receiving the entire fire of the Spanish foe until the Oregon, as if upon the wings of lightning, sped into the thickness of this mortal carnage. 'God bless the Oregon!' was the cheer that rang from deck to deck, and on they went, twin brothers in the chase, until the lee gun was fired from the Cristobal Colon, and the despotic colors of Spain were swept from the face of her ancient possessions. 'Well done; congratulate you on the victory,' was the streamer that was bent from the halyard of the Brooklyn, and from that day to this no man has ever heard from Admiral Schley the slightest whisper or intimation that he usurped the glory of that imperishable hour.

"The thunders of the Brooklyn as she trembled on the waves have been discordant music to the ears of envious foes, but they have pierced with a ringing melody the ears of his countrymen, and struck a responsive chord at the fireside of every American home. And what is more than all, which has been revealed in this case, as matchless as is his courage, and as unsullied as is his honor, is his beautiful character, and the generous spirit that animates his soul, and the forgiving heart that beats within his bosom. Yes, we cannot strike him down. Erect he stands as the McGregor when he stepped on his native heather and his eye was on the peak Ben Lomond. His country does not want to strike him down, nor cast a blur on the pure escutcheon of his honored name.

"For three long years he has suffered, and now, thank God, the hour of his vindication has come. With composure, with resignation, with supreme and unfaltering fortitude, he awaits the judgment of this illustrious tribunal, and when that deliverance comes, he can, from the high and exalted position that he occupies, look down upon his traducers and maligners and with exultant pride exclaim: 'I care not for the venomous gossip of clubs, and drawing-rooms, and cliques and cabals, and the poisoned shafts of envy and of malice. I await, under the guidance of divine Providence, the verdict of posterity.'"

Rayner closed at 3:30 o'clock, having spoken about three hours. The large audience broke into applause when he concluded, and the members of the court, as well as others, congratulated him upon his speech. Rear-Admiral Schley was visibly affected by the concluding remarks and attending scenes.

The court adjourned until 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, when Capt. Lemly will deliver the closing argument for the government.

STRIKE IS CALLED IN EIGHT COLLIERIES.

COMPANY REFUSED TO REINSTATE DISCHARGED WORKMEN.

About Four Thousand Men and Boys Will Be Thrown Out of Employment. Men Allege Blacklist as Excuse for Action.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SCRANTON (Pa.) Nov. 6.—An order calling a strike at the eight collieries of the Temple Iron Company was issued tonight from District No. 1, United Mine Workers of America.

The strike results from the refusal of the Temple company to reinstate fifty workmen who had meen discharged and in whose case, it is alleged, a blacklist from the Lehigh Coal Company in the Maltby mines, where they had been previously on strike, had been used against them.

The eight collieries operated by the Temple Iron Company are located in Lackawanna and Luserne counties, and employ about four thousand men and boys. The company closed down today, the Mount Lookout, Harry Enos and Fortyfort collieries supposedly in anticipation of the strike. It is expected the other collieries will be closed down tomorrow. The company officials refuse to make any statement.

GHASTLY DISCOVERY IN RAILWAY FREIGHT STATION.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Eight human bodies were taken this evening from two crates at the freight station of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad. They were consigned to R. J. Jones of Brashear, Mo., and marked as second-hand laundry machinery. The bodies were purchased during the day from the Harvey Medical College of this city, and were being shipped to Missouri for purposes of dissection. The police are looking fr Jones, but so far have been unable to locate him. The only charge that can be brought against him is the shipping of bodies in a manner contrary to law.

When the crates were received at the station the suspicions of men in charge were aroused, as they had never seen laundry machinery of the shape of the two crates, nor had they ever seen it shipped in such manner. It was decided to open the crates and determine if their contents were really laundry machinery.

When they were opened the bodies sewed up in canvas and packed in excelsior were found. The police were notified, and as it was known that the crates came from the Harvey Medical College, officers were at once sent there. The officials of the college proved that they had no connection with the shipment of the bodies, and said that they had sold them during the afternoon to R. J. Jones, who said that he intended to ship them to Brashear, Mo.

"I told him to be careful how he shipped them," said Dr. Dickinson of the college, "and warned him that he would get into trouble if he sent them in any other way than that authorised by law. He said nothing and went away. As far as the college is concerned the transaction was entirely proper. We had more cadavers than we could use, and sold those to Mr. Jones, as he called himself. He said that they were to be used for medical purposes."

Frances Schoenleber of No. 147 Eugenie street, is under arrest, and Dr. Frances Dickinson, secretary of the Harvey Medical College, has been called on to explain his connection with the affair. Dr. Schoenleber refuses to discuss the charges against him, but, according to admissions made by Dr. Dickinson, and facts learned by the police, he attempted to ship the bodies to Brashear, Mo., under the name of R. J. Jones. Dr. Dickinson informed the police that previous to being prepared for shipment the cadavers were the property of the college, and that he disposed of them to Dr. Schoenleber, with a full knowledge of how he intended to use them.

PEKING, Nov. 6.—At 9 o'clock this evening, Earl Li is still breathing and displaying unexpected vitality. The physicians, however, think he will probably die in the morning hours.

The burial clothes have already been put on. The courtyard of the yamen is filled with life-size paper horses and chairs, with coolie bearers, which his friends are sending, in accordance with Chinese customs, to be buried when he dies, in order to carry his soul to heaven.

Several of the ministers of the powers have collected to express sympathy. The Chinese officials are somewhat uneasy concerning the effect which his death will have on the populace, and to guard against a possible anti-foreigner demonstration, the Chinese generals have disposed of their troops about the city in such a way as to command the situation. Trouble, however, is extremely improbable.

The wife of Earl Li and his two sons and daughters are with him. They are greatly distressed.

Chinese officials throng the yamen. Telegrams have been sent summoning Prince Ching, who is now on his way to meet the court, and Chou Fu, provincial treasurer, from Pao Ting Fu. The former will assume the general charge of government affairs, and the latter will act as Governor of Chi Li until Li Hung Chang's successor in that office, who will probably be Yuan Shi Kai, is appointed.

Robert Coltman, an American, who is one of the physicians attending Li, told the correspondent of the Associated Press that when he was called to act with Dr. Velde of the German Legation, November 1, he found the patient very weak from a severe hemorrhage, due to ulceration of the stomach.

"The hemorrhage was readily controlled," said Dr. Coltman, "but owing to the underlying condition of chronic gastritis, with persistent nausea, only the mildest liquid food could be digested. Yesterday he was cheerful and without pain, but at 2 o'clock this morning he became unconscious, and was no longer able to get rid of the collection of mucus which he had freely expectorated. Death is expected shortly, owing to symptoms supervening upon gradual carbonic-acid poisoning."

Throughout the evening digitalis was frequently administered.

Earl Li's persistent refusals to refrain from attending to government business have aggravated his malady, while the refusal of the family to permit certain measures customary in western medical practice for relieving the stomach have contributed to bring his end near.

At midnight last night, Li Hung Chang rallied slightly. His family had installed native doctors in charge of the patient, the regular physicians having refused to attend him unless the Chinese doctors were dismissed.

AMERICAN INTERESTS SECURE.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—A cablegram has been received at the State Department from Minister Conger at Peking, stating that Li Hung Chang is dying. The death of this distinguished Chinaman will not, it is believed here, affect the execution of the undertakings imposed upon China in the protocol. Certainly, the United States government's interests will not be involved directly, for all that remains to be done at Peking in which our government is interested is the preparation of trade and commercial treaties, and their lines have been so clearly marked that the work to be done is almost mechanical, and is not likely to be retarded by Li Hung Chang's death.

A change in the Manchurian situation is expected if Li Hung Chang should die, and the United States has a very considerable interest in that outcome of the matter. Li Hung Chang is regarded here as strongly pro-Russian, and it is possible that his death and the coming into power in China as the director of foreign affairs of another prince less friendly to Russia might hasten the day when Russia must relax her hold upon Manchuria and allow the country to be opened up to the commerce of the world.

SKETCH OF HIS LIFE.

UNIQUE FIGURE IN HISTORY.

Li Hung Chang earned rank as one of the greatest men of the nineteenth century. No other statesman in the world had so many perplexing problems to solve, or so many turns of fortune.

Li was born of humble parentage in 1823, and early showed unusual talent as a student. He held various small offices under the government, but it was not until the Taiping rebellion that he became prominent. He entered the army with a minor command and advanced rapidly in rank, until he became chief in command, in the final campaign that crushed the revolt. It was from this war that his friendship with "Chinese" Gordan dated, and the latter was undoubtedly of great assistance in making Li's fame as a soldier.

In 1868, Li Hung Chang was appointed a chancellor of state, and in 1870 he became Viceroy of Chihli and senior Grand Secretary of State. In the same year the first of his many reversals of fortune took place, for he was despoiled of his offices and titles in connection with the Tien-Tsin massacre. Not many months elapsed, however, before he was restored to favor and to office.

For over thirty years Li Hung Chang exercised an influence upon affairs of China greater than that of any statesman in its history during hundreds of years previous. To him more than to any other man belongs the credit for such advancement as China has made. Only those who fully realize the extent to which the Chinese have, for ages, been chained to tradition, can fully appreciate the difficulties the statesman had to master. Step by step he led his people out of their medievalism toward nineteenth-century civilization. He first succeeded in introducing the telegraph, following it with dock yards, arsenals and the reorganization of the army, and finally securing the introduction of railways.

All of this progress was made in the face of the fiercest opposition and had the Conservatives had a leader of anything like the same ability, Li Hung Chang would doubtless have lost not only his honors, but his head. As it was he moved steadily on until the Japanese war, which for a time threatened to be as disastrous to him as to his country. The entire responsibility was placed upon the aged statesman for the management of the war. He was all the Cabinet officers and commander-in-chief rolled in one, and for each reverse suffered by the Chinese was visited with some mark of imperial displeasure. His deprivation, first of the "yellow jacket" and then of the "peacock feather" gave material to newspaper wits, but Li could not see the humor of the incidents. These reverses of fortune were, however, but temporary. His knowledge and experience made him indispensable to the Chinese government, and without his hand upon the helm its ship of state sailed as if without rudder or compass.

In 1896 Li Hung Chang was dispatched on a diplomatic mission to Russia, and, in a sense, to other countries of the world. He reached the United States in the fall of the year, and countless columns of matter were printed about him. In this country he won, perhaps, his most notable diplomatic victory. He put completely to rout the American newspaper man. The most distinguished interviewers in America, men who had come to believe themselves invincible, bowed their heads in submission to the superior questioning power of the Chinese statesman. He gave them points in the Socratic style that made the old Greek philosopher look like a novice.

When Li returned to China, he had conferred upon him the Order of the Double Dragon, never before conferred upon a subject of the empire.

When the Boxer trouble arose, it was generally believed that Li Hung Chang sympathized with the movement, though this was not proved. The negotiations with the powers were entrusted to him.

If reports are not exaggerated, Li Hung Chang leaves a fortune greater than that of Rockefeller, and it cannot therefore be said that he served his country without profit. It is not, however, believed that he ever betrayed her interests for the sake of personal gain.

Jeffries to Do a Stunt at Oakland.

He Adopts New Tactics for Ruhlin.

Jockey Dugan Signs to Ride for Schreiber—Derby Winner Collapses.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] So great a clamor has been raised by Champion Jeffries's friends and admirers to see him go through his exercises, that he will leave Harbin Springs for Oakland next Saturday. Most of his work at Oakland will be indoors. Reports say he was never in better trim, and that he has given special attention to hardening the muscles of his left arm, which failed him in his last fight.

Despite the interest in the election, Ruhlin's quarters have been visited by hundreds of sports anxious to get a line on him. All report that Gus is in great form, and that Madden is confident he will win out.

Now that the interest in the election has subsided, betting has commenced on the fight. The odds today were 5 to 2 on Jeffries, but the sporting sages opine that before the week ends, the betting will be but 2 to 1.

Jeffries's announcement that he proposes to mix things from the tap of the gong has stimulated interest in the contest, for in all his previous fights Jeffries has played a waiting game and has thus detracted from the spectacular features that he now promises. If he goes in for slugging from the start, this battle between the giants will be a memorable ring contest.

STRUGGLE FOR THE PENNANT.

'FRISCO VS. LOS ANGELES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] With fifteen more victories and four fewer defeats than the Los Angeles team to their credit, the San Francisco nine will meet Los Angeles in the first of nine games tomorrow. Just four more weeks of the season remain, during which San Francisco will play eighteen games; the Los Angeles team eighteen, Oakland nineteen, and Sacramento seventeen.

San Francisco is scheduled to play five games with Los Angeles here this week and the other four in the closing week of the season at Los Angeles. The locals will also play Oakland five games and Sacramento four. The Los Angeles team will meet other teams in just the same number of games as the locals, while Sacramento and Oakland will meet each other nine times.

The series in this city this week will be between the two leaders, and there is no doubt the men from the south will make a last effort to get into a position from which it will be more than a possibility to win. They are coming up with their strongest team, and the games should be good ones, no matter which side wins.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6.—Outsiders were in evidence at Oakland today. Ben Ledi scoring at odds of 15 to 1, while Artilla, a 20-to-1 chance, took the closing event by a head from Lizella. BULLER THREATENS AN EXPOSURE.

THINKS HE IS THE VICTIM OF CONSPIRACY.

It is Said That He Intends to Reveal the Secret History of the Jameson Raid and Other Matter Kept from the Public.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Gen. Buller, says the London correspondent of the Tribune, considers himself the victim of a South African conspiracy, and threatens to unmask his assailants. Unlike Gen. Roberts, who rallied the political as well as the military forces in South Africa, and did not make an enemy except when compelled to criticise subordinate generals and officers, Gen. Buller lacked flexibility in dealing with men, and excited much opposition. At Westminster, Buller's friends now assert that he will vindicate his reputation by exposing the machinations of the conspirators who have been traducing him and by telling the secret history of the Jameson raid, and other operations. The War Office will probably anticipate a parliamentary discussion by publishing the exact text of the message heliographed after Colenso. It can hardly fail to do this, when two contradictory versions are already before the public. The army is the only branch of the government service in which the confidential character of official documents is not respected.

COMPROMISE IMPOSSIBLE.

SO SAYS CHAMBERLAIN.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

LONDON, Nov. 6.—[By Atlantic Cable.] Presiding at the presentation of a sword of honor sent from Australia to Maj.-Gen. Baden-Powell, the defender of Mafeking, Chamberlain, the Colonial Secretary, said that, notwithstanding its duration, neither the country nor the government had any right or wish to make any settlement of the war which would render futile the sacrifices which had been made.

MATERIAL FOR PRO-BOERS.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Following the recent outcry against the treatment of the children of the South African concentration camps comes an advertisement, says the London correspondent of the Times, inserted by the Board of Education in the morning's papers for female teachers to go to the camps in order to teach the children simple rudiments and singing.

Why should the children be taught singing? the pro-Boers will ask, in view of the reports of sickness and death among them. A correspondent of the London Times, however, asserts this morning that the mortality among the Boer children is very high. He says the Boers frequently have families of twenty, half of whom die young.

ROCKEFELLER'S DRAW.

Over Nineteen Millions of Dollars During the Year in Dividends from the Standard Oil Company.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The directors of the Standard Oil Company today declared a dividend of 8 per cent., payable in December. This makes a total of 48 per cent. for the year, which means an aggregate distribution of $48,000,000 on a capital stock of $100,000,000.

John D. Rockefeller has been gradually picking up the floating stock of the Standard Oil Company in Wall street. A year ago he controlled 33 per cent. of the stock. It is now said that his interest is 40 per cent. If this report is true, his share in the dividend next month will be $3,200,000. With this Rockefeller has drawn from the Standard Oil Company in dividends $19,200,000 during this year.

The Standard Oil Company has declared a dividend of $8 per share, payable December 16, making $40 per share for the calendar year, which is the same amount as last year.

Have many advantages over the old, thick, cumbersome ordinary rubber plates, and even over gold plates, being much lighter and thinner. These plates are flexible, only a trifle thicker than heavy writing paper, fit closer and adhere better to the roof of the mouth. Particles of food and small seeds cannot get under them. They will last longer, are stronger than any others and will not break, as they will give first, being flexible. Dr. Schiffman's own process and made ONLY by us. GEN. J. H. FOUNTAIN DIES IN THIS CITY.

ONCE PROMINENT IN MICHIGAN, AND RIVERSIDE PIONEER.

Was Quartermaster-General of the Wolverine State During the Civil War, When That Office Was Important—Lived in Riverside Twenty Years.

Gen. Jabez H. Fountain, at one time one of the best-known men in the State of Michigan, died at his home, No. 1463 West Washington street, Tuesday, after a brief illness, aged 82 years. He had resided in Los Angeles less than a year, having come here from Riverside. He was well-known, however, throughout Southern California, especially among orange growers and members of the Masonic fraternity. He was one of the pioneers of the Riverside orange district, having settled there twenty years ago, when few persons thought that that part of the State could ever be made the prosperous and beautiful section that it is today.

The deceased was a native of Elmira, N. Y., and at the age of 19 moved with his parents to Michigan, and took up his residence on a farm a short distance from Detroit. There the greater portion of his life was spent. He became prominent and influential there. When Fort Sumter was fired upon he raised a company, and tendered its services to the Governor. The offer was accepted, and with his command he was preparing to answer President Lincoln's first call for volunteers, when an important position was offered him. He was appointed Quartermaster-General of the State of Michigan. For nearly three years he had charge of the work of forwarding supplies to Michigan regiments in the field, and in the course of his duties he visited the Union armies at the front, but he never participated in any engagements. His position threw him in contact with the military leaders of the State, and he became well-known to the troops, especially those whom he had to supply with proper equipment at the beginning of the war.

Twenty years ago he came to California and settled in Riverside, then a hamlet not of sufficient prominence to be given a place on the map. He saw the hamlet grow into a town, and that into a beautiful city. His orange interests yielded him a considerable fortune, and a year ago he retired and came to Los Angeles.

He leaves a widow and one son, James H. Fountain. His son came into some prominence locally about a year ago as expert of the so-called Committee of Safety.

Gen. Fountain was prominent in Masonic circles. He was a member of Evergreen Lodge of Riverside and of Riverside Commandery, Knights Templar.

The remains will be taken to Riverside today for interment. As a mark of respect, six past commanders of his commandery will act as pallbearers.

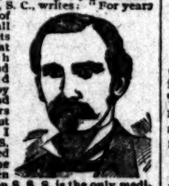
CATARRH

Catarrh has become such a common disease that a person entirely free from this disgusting complaint is seldom met with. It is customary to speak of Catarrh as nothing more serious than a bad cold, a simple inflammation of the nose and throat. It is, in fact, a complicated and very dangerous disease; if not at first, it very soon becomes so.

The blood is quickly contaminated by the foul secretions, and the poison through the general circulation is carried to all parts of the system.

Salves, washes and sprays are unsatisfactory and disappointing, because they do not reach the seat of the trouble. S. S. S. does. It cleanses the blood of the poison and eliminates from the system all catarrhal secretions, and thus cures thoroughly and permanently the worst cases.



Mr. T. A. Williams, a leading dry-goods merchant of Spartanburg, S. C., writes: "For years I had a severe case of nasal Catarrh, with all the disagreeable effects which belong to that disease, and which make life painful and unendurable. I used medicines prescribed by leading physicians and suggested by numbers of friends, but without getting any better. I then began to take S. S. S. It had the desired effect, and cured me after taking eighteen bottles. In my opinion S. S. S. is the only medicine now in use that will effect a permanent cure of Catarrh."

SSS is the only purely vegetable blood purifier known, and the greatest of all blood medicines and tonics.

If you have Catarrh don't wait until it becomes deep-seated and chronic, but begin at once the use of S. S. S., and send for our book on Blood and Skin Diseases and write our physicians about your case.

MAURICE GRAU COMES AND SAYS GOOD-BY.

FLITS ALONG OUT OF REACH OF THE PRIMA DONNAS.

Impresario Says This is His Last Visit to the Coast for Ten Years. Anxious to Discover New Stars of First Magnitude.

Thirty years of managing fractious prima donnas have beaten Maurice Grau into a heroic mold and taught him caution; he looks like Gen. Grant, and now travels in advance of the company, out of reach of the prima donnas.

He was in the city yesterday for a few hours, long enough to drive around and say he wasn't coming again for ten years.

Grau really looks like an Austrian edition of Gen. Grant. He has a peculiar way of smoking a cigar with one end tilted up out of the corner of his mouth that Gen. Grant is said to have had. He has another Grant trait. He sees everything without seeming to take particular notice.

Grau will talk to you of prima donnas, and at the same time take in every detail of the work of his packer, who isn't doing it right. He has a way that is almost weird of suddenly letting out a detailed criticism of something which you would not believe he had seen.

This comes of long practice in looking several ways at once, as the man who manages a company with three or four jealous prima donnas must be prepared to do.

Grau's little daughter, Mimi, is with him this trip, and was registered at the Van Nuys yesterday.

There is nothing about the great impresario—not even his magnificent valor in managing so many prima donnas at once—more interesting than his devotion to his little daughter.

When he was out here last year, Mimi was East, and her father took time away from all the rest of his troubles to buy a lot of amusing souvenir postal cards with views of Southern California on them, and three or four of these went into the mail box every day for Mile. Mimi. He said that he made a practice of sending such cards to her from every point he visited.

Grau studies the cause and effect of things, and his drive around Los Angeles convinced him that the city would not stand for grand opera of his brand every week. He announced that he would not come again to the Coast for ten years. The principal reason for this decision is that he has no more novelties to offer after this season.

He feels that something extraordinary in hte opera line is necessary to make a winning in a place like Los Angeles. This year he has Sembrich in Wagnerian roles, and Calvé as new sensations. That exhausts his new sensations.

Grau, by the way, yearns to discover somebody. He says the world has run dry of new stars of the magnitude he needs.

When Grau mixed up with opera business thirty years ago, he was a libretto boy in his uncle's theater, the old Academy of Music in New York. His début as an impresario was the importation of Aimee. Practically every great singer and many pianists like Rubinstein, to whom he first paid $200 a night, and then $2500 a night, have been under his management. He has also managed a great number of dramatic sensations, bringing over Salvini, and directing Bernhardt.

As a tribute to his heroism, he was made a Knight of the Legion of Honor by the French government.

CHRYSANTHEMUM POETS.

They're writing dainty verses on the big chrysanthemums—
The same old sort of melody through all the stanzas hums;
They harp about the beauty of the uncombed ragged bloom,
And sing as if the blossoms had a presidential boom,
And this is why: chrysanthemums are rather out of reach,
When florists sell the blossoms at a rotund dollar each.

The leaves, in glowing glory, strew
the valley and the hill,
Like a farewell smile of summer that would linger with us still;
All red and gold their beauty blazes
through the autumn haze,
While they flutter on the breeze in an ever-changing maze,
But the poets on Parnassus sing the dollar-bloom instead,
And hail it as a lion, with its rough and shaggy head.

And so they sing of flowers that the hothouse coaxes out,
And shut their eyes to beauty that Dame Nature strews about.
But the poets have to hustle in these mercenary times
If they'd make a close connection with the dollars and the dimes,
So they sing of the chrysanthemum,
in rhythm very nice,
Because they have to but it—and they have to raise the price.

THEY STUDY THE CHILDREN.

Meeting of Mothers in the Tabernacle.

High School Teacher's Patriotic Fire.

Fifty-four Circles Represented. Addresses by Educators and Others.

The Federation of Child Study Circles held its second annual convention in Simpson Auditoroum yesterday. There were present between 500 and 600 mothers, these "circles" having started as "mothers' clubs," of which there are now forty-five in the city, and nine in the country districts.

The officers of the federation, who were all reelected for another year, are: President, Mrs. W. W. Murphy; vice-presidents, Mrs. R. L. Craig, Mrs. F. E. Prior, Mrs. J. W. Hendrick; recording secretary, Mrs. J. D. Gibbs; corresponding secretary, Mrs. B. H. Franklin; treasurer, Mrs. E. R. Threlkeld; auditor, Mrs. W. J. Washburn; regent, Mrs. Mary F. Ledyard.

By a resolution, a Committee on Patriotism was created, and Miss Mary E. Foy elected as its chairman.

The secretary made an interesting report, showing the combined average attendance of mothers at the monthly meetings to be about one thousand, and she expressed the sentiment that they might expect to become "a potent force for the home, the nation and the race."

Mrs. W. W. Murphy, the president, who is a good speaker, and an able presiding officer, in her annual address to the convention, said, among other things:

"We have had scientific treaties on cows, poultry and horses, but, with children all about us, it is only within recent years that any such attention has been given them.

"Mothers rejoice in this opportunity to gain more knowledge of modern school methods. It is not so long since half the world—the feminine half—were wild over reform, and the men smiled at us. This is not a reform—dreamers may carry on reforms. This is for the home, and the homes of the nation are the nation's strength."

Mrs. Smith of Pasadena, who went as delegate from the federation to the National Congress of Mothers at Columbus, O., made her report to the convention.

There were vocal numbers by Miss Donnell and Miss Edna Dixon. The latter struck a popular chord, and made quite a hit with her "Lullaby Baby in the Tree Top."

PATRIOTIC MISS FOY.

When you men are writing it down in your prejudice book that "a woman can't make a speech, anyway," just leave Miss Foy out.

Miss Mary E. Foy, a native of Los Angeles and teacher of English in the Eliot School, but recently returned from two years spent in Europe, and the patriotic fire burns within her with the fierceness of an arc light. Her subject was, "The Making of American Citizens," and her effort before the 500 or 600 mothers was a magnificent one, and marks her an orator. She is not of the nervous, emotional type, but, with the gesture and eloquence of strong conviction, she delivered her message in a manner that carried her audience away, and if there had been an audience of men before her they would probably have pounded the floor with their feet.

"This meeting is made up of mothers and teachers, and you must all be deeply interested in the development of the ideal American," said Miss Foy, plunging at once into her subject.

"Why does the State offer free education for all children, from kindergarten to university?

"Nothing is done for nothing. The State must expect a return in honest, faithful, competent citizens. So, you see, the teacher represents the State in the preparation of children for American citizenship. When the State says the people must be educated, it means all the people. The State is providing an education for the children, no matter from what stock they may come. [Applause.] The State has a right to expect from each a reasonable opinion, honestly expressed; the power to discriminate between right and wrong and the courage to live up to his convictions. [Applause.]

"If the child grasps the true significance, the true glory, of what it means to be an American, he knows how much better he is situated than if he had been born under any other flag. [Applause.]

"As the Mothers' Club means the good of the children, and the good of the children means the good of the State, then I realize that this assembly before me is a great patriotic body."

In illustration of the importance of the teaching cleanliness in our public schools, Miss Foy said:

"I recollect once, while I was in London, a young lady who had been with me, came home to America, and she wrote back: 'Oh, I am so happy that I am once more in the land of clean places.' It is purely American. A man in America, no matter what his work, if he is clean, need not be ashamed of himself, and he's just as good as anybody he meets. [Applause.]

"Another thing truly American is illustrated by the act of a newsboys at a San Francisco ferry. He discovered a lady with some heavy luggage and ran up to her saying:

"'May I carry it for you?'

"'But I have no money to pay you,' she said.

"'Oh, I didn't want any money—I thought it was heavy.'

"Gentlemanly conduct and politeness toward ladies is taught in our schools.

"People are likely to say, 'That boy must have had a good mother,' but in this instance I happen to know it was the school teacher.

"Sitting one day awaiting a friend, on the Applian Way, some school children came along and I began to talk to them. I asked them all about the school, and got one little fellow to show me his work. He got everything out of his satchel and showed me how nicely it was done, and I praised him.

"As I was about to go away, he held out his hand and said:

"'Give me something.'

"'What for?'

"'Why, I showed you my things.'

"'Go away,' I said, 'you're a beggar. I don't like beggars; go away.' [Applause.]

"There is a word Americans sometimes use—'class.' I have heard Americans use it in foreign countries, speaking of different classes of people. You don't have them; there is no such thing in America. In Europe the boy whose father and grandfather were shopkeepers, will also be a shopkeeper, and so they have the upper, middle and lower classes.

"We shouldn't cultivate the use of a word that gives people of other countries an idea that there are different classes here. [Applause.]

"A boy in this country is what he makes himself, not what his father or grandfather were.

"I have in mind now a boy in the High School, whose father has held high positions in this city, and he is going to be a perfect nonentity—yes, worse that that. He has been allowed to drift along, and some day he will be among the driftwood along the shore. On the other hand, I know some whose parents are poor, who are working their way through High School with distinction.

"I must speak of one other subject—loyalty to the flag. I have seen the flag spread out as though to sit upon it. It is undignified, and putting the flag to an improper use is to use it as a cover for seats, tables, pillows or pincushions. I do think it is wrong to permit the flag to be put to any such uses."

Miss Foy's manner was earnest and dramatic, and there was a great burst of applause.

The afternoon meeting closed with a cornet solo by Miss Laura Cotton.

EVENING SESSION.

The evening audience was much larger and more diversified than that which was present at the afternoon session, the entire lower floor of the large auditorium being well filled and a number of gallery seats being occupied by fathers, mothers and teachers. Mrs. W. W. Murphy presided; Prof. J. A. Foshay, Superintendent of Schools, delivered a welcoming speech; W. J. Washburn, president of the Board of Education; Miss Harriet Scott of Detroit, and Mrs. Elisa Wilkes made interesting addresses. The musical programme included a cornet solo by Miss Laura Cotton, accompanied on the piano by Miss Mabel Green Longley; songs by Miss Edna Darch, with accompaniment by Miss Lyzer, and a piano solo, an original composition, by Miss Edna Darch.

WORDS OF WELCOME.

Prof. Foshay said the ideal relation between home and school is attained by careful coöperation of parent and teacher. The teacher, in whose hands the child is placed for less than one-eighth of the time, is required to undergo special preparation for her work, but the nation and State provides no normal school where parents may be trained for the duties which devolve on them. Parents are not relieved thereby of their responsibilities, and it is right that their attention should be called to certain lines of work which are being attempted in the schools. It is well for parent and teacher to come together he said, for consultation, and the greatest opportunity for good is offered by the child study circle.

PARENTS TOO APATHETIC.

Mr. Washburn expressed his appreciation of the attention parents are paying to the necessity for bringing the home and school in closer relations, but the people need to be still further aroused. There still is too much apathy on the part of parents. The average man thinks his duty is done when he casts his vote for a representative of his ward on the Board of Education. The corps of teachers in the Los Angeles schools, said he, is of an exceptionally high order of ability, but those teachers cannot do their best work unless they can feel that the parents of school children are interested in their work. The teacher should be informed of the peculiarities of character and disposition of every child in her room. The teacher usually gives to her school the best that is in her, and she has the cordial support of her superiors. Unless parents follow their children to school all interested are deprived of what is due them. Education must keep pace with the march of the world's events, and new methods must be introduced in teaching as in all other walks of life. The child-study movement, said Mr. Washburn, is having the hearty sympathy of himself and of the body of which he is a member.

MISS SCOTT'S ADDRESS.

"The Progressive Standard of Education" was presented in a clear, analytical manner by Miss Harriet Scott of Detroit, who long has been identified actively with the child-study movement. In early ages, she said, the education of the young was confined to an imitation of the activity of the parents. As the race progressed the divisions of labor brought about requirements of skill, in which the child was trained, and later the school came in as a separate institution. The value of the child's individuality, however, received but varying recognition. At one time this life was considered only as a preparation for the next. Then mental discipline became a part of school life; standards of ideal citizenship and patriotism were inculcated, and as the country developed, ideas of wealth and power arose, and there was a desire that the child learn the most in the shortest possible time. There is still too much of the commercial standard uppermost in the schools—too much care for the future, with too little attention to the present needs and development of the child. Parents are in too great a hurry to have the child promoted and out of school. Danger exists, said Miss Scott, in the election of boards of education, the members of which are not qualified for the oversight of the interests which they are set to guard, and the use of political influence in the appointment of teachers is another evil.

DISCOVERY OF MOTHERS.

Mrs. Wilkes, who made the closing address, said that the greatest discovery of the last century was mothers, for certain it is that they have come into new consciousness, and fathers are making a desperate effort to keep up with them. The father, however, seems to have little time to devote to the great problem of the education of the child and is relegating a large part of that important work to the mother, who is becoming very anxious, fearfully interested, and, maybe, damaging to the best interests of the child. The speaker said she longed for a sight of the old-fashioned mother, who assumed her duty easily and unconsciously, but that cannot be. "Forward" is the motto in the education of the child as in every other problem of this complex life. The school teachers, in the opinion of Mrs. Wilkes, are doing more for American life today than is any other force.

Shattered Traditions.

"You young scoundrel!" exclaimed the unwilling father-in-law, when the eloping couple presented themselves for parental forgiveness and a place to live. "You conscienceless scamp! You stole my daughter away and disregarded all the conventionalities of society. And yet you ask forgiveness!"

"You old scoundrel, what did you do?" retorted the son-in-law. "What did you do? You let us elope, and did not pursue us on horseback with a shotgun. You have shattered all the traditions of elopements, and have blasted all the romance of the affair for us. We might as well have got married to the rumpty-tum-tum of the church organ, and let you pay the bill. You haven't a spark of appreciation in your make up."

Crushed by the merited criticism, the father-in-law invited them in to supper, for they were rather hungry.—[Baltimore American.

WOMEN'S CLUBS.

Wednesday Morning Club.

Yesterday's session of the Wednesday Morning Club was devoted to the subject of forestry. The meeting opened with the usual business, after which the club received the report of Mrs. John E. RECEPTION TO DR. WALCOTT.

Director of Geological Survey Honored.

Business Men Give Him the Glad Hand.

Distinguished Scientist Talks About Irrigation and Other Matters.

About fifty representative business men and citizens of Los Angeles and vicinity gathered at the Chamber of Commerce at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon to meet and pay their respects to the head of the largest scientific organization in the world under government control—Dr. Charles D. Walcott, director of the United States Geological Survey.

Those who attended the reception tendered the distinguished gentleman felt well repaid for the effort to do him honor, for Dr. Walcott in an informal address gave his entertainers much interesting and valuable information regarding the great work in which he is engaged, a great part of which is of vital interest to Southern California, as well as to the whole State and the nation at large.

THE HONORED GUEST.

Dr. Walcott is a broad man, a wise man, and a man of practical scientific knowledge and culture. Of commanding stature and splendid physique, he is withal a modest and unassuming gentleman, whom it is a genuine pleasure to meet. In conversation, he is most affable and entertaining, and he possesses a fund of information that seems to be inexhaustible, and which he imparts to others with a grace and liberality that is refreshing. He is, in short, in the manner of man the gentlemen of the Chamber of Commerce delight to honor; at least, that was the unanimous expression of those who attended yesterday's reception.

It was regretted that Prof. Herbert M. Wilson, geographer of the Geological Survey, was delayed at San Diego on account of illness, and that Prof. Grove K. Gilbert, who is regarded by some as the greatest geologist in America, was called East suddenly on professional business. Both of these gentlemen were expected to be among the honored guests at the reception.

LACK OF CEREMONY.

The function was almost entirely devoid of formality, as best suits the convenience of business men and practical scientists and workers like Dr. Walcott. The famous pink punch of the Chamber of Commerce was on tap and the Venetian Ladies' Mandolin and Guitar Orchestra discoursed sweet music while the handshaking and social chat were in progress.

After the various gentlemen present had been personally introduced to Dr. Walcott, President Case of the Chamber of Commerce introduced Abbot Kinney, as the chief exponent of forestry and irrigation in Southern California, to conduct the further ceremonies. Mr. Kinney, in introducing Dr. Walcott for a brief address, explained that the reception was tendered to the distinguished guest as an expression of the appreciation of his work by the citizens of Los Angeles and vicinity, with special reference to its relation to irrigation. He said the phrase "Annex arid America" had gone out from Los Angeles and was attracting much attention throughout the country. Fifty millions of people could be supported on lands redeemable through irrigation, and the Geological Survey was assisting in bringing about this great transformation of the desert places of America.

DR. WALCOTT TALKS.

Dr. Walcott began his talk by giving a brief history of the United States Geological Survey—its modest beginning with an appropriation of $100,000 and thirty employés in 1879, its growth and expansion until it now has an appropriation of more than $1,000,000 annually, with a working force of 325 men in winter and 500 to 600 in summer.

He outlined briefly the work of the survey in establishing datum planes and making topographic maps which are of inestimable value in facilitating the development of the various resources of the country.

CALIFORNIA SURVEYS.

With reference to the work of the survey in California, he said 57,849 square miles of the 158,360 square miles comprising the area of the State, had already been surveyed. This is a larger proportion than of the State of New York that has been surveyed. During the fiscal year 1900-1, 4847 square miles were surveyed in California, out of a total of 35,123 for the entire country, thus showing that this State received one-eighth of the benefit of the work accomplished by the survey during the year. During the fiscal year 1901-2 the field work in California would be continued, it being the expectation to complete the survey of the Zaca Lake, Pine Mountain and San Jacinto forest reserves before July 1, 1902. A large area in the vicinity of Santa Barbara and in San Diego county is also being surveyed and mapped at the present time. At least 4000 square miles more of the unsurveyed area of the State will be mapped during the present year. During the past year 1089 miles of levels were run and bench marks established in the townships traversed.

HYDROGRAPHIC WORK.

Dr. Walcott then went on to say that very little irrigation work could be accomplished without the aid of correct topographic maps, and in this way the Geological Survey was a great factor in the development of water for power and irrigation purposes.

The hydrographic work of the survey in Southern California and Arizona, he said, was being ably carried on under the direction of J. B. Lippincott. Stream gauging, subterranean currents, reservoir sites and power development investigations were being steadily carried on with good practical results in many instances. Nineteen gauging stations had been established in this section of the country, where measurements of the flow of streams had been taken at the various stages of their flow for several years, thus giving a definite idea of the amount of water for power or irrigation that could be depended upon. The authorized expenditure for hydrographic work in California for 1901 was only $10,000 for field, and $6000 for office work, but with his meager allowance a great deal was being accomplished.

"Water is the life blood of the land, and knowledge of it and its occurrence is of prime importance," said the speaker. "It is important to Los Angeles to study the water supply for lands tributary to the city in trade, and it is the object of the Geological Survey to assist in doing this."

NATIONAL IRRIGATION.

The question of State or national irrigation, Dr. Walcott dodged gracefully by saying:

"As to who shall construct irrigation works for the redemption of the arid lands of the West is of no immediate concern to the Geological Survey. Whether it be done by individuals, corporations, State or nation, is a question not to be decided by the Geological Survey. The survey is not advocating any policy. It is merely acting as a bureau of information and is ready to assist in any manner in its power the work of irrigation by whatever agency carried on. The question of national irrigation is a matter for Congress to settle."

It may be stated incidentally that Dr. Walcott is preparing himself to answer questions on irrigation matters that may be propounded to him by Congress. Part of the purpose of his visit to the Southwest at this time is to post himself thoroughly on the subject and conditions, as it is more than probable that Congress will take up the question in earnest at the coming session. Dr. Walcott says the President is intensely interested in forestry and irrigation and will doubtless recommend legislation on those subjects in his forthcoming message.

FORESTRY LAW.

The forest reserve law which went into effect five years ago, Dr. Walcott said, has proved fairly satisfactory, but it needed further attention, which it would doubtless receive. Good business management was needed in the management of the reserves in order to make the service efficient. The sale of timber in the large reserves should within a few years pay the cost of administration.

President Cass asked whether it would not be a good idea to have all the forest reserves patrolled by government troops, the same as is done with Yosemite and Yellowstone parks. Dr. Walcott replied that great opposition to that proposal had been met in the Senate. He said the Canadian system of mounted police to patrol the forests was the most perfect he had yet seen. The rangers in our reserves, he said, vary much in point of efficiency. There was no uniformity of management, at present, but he thought the service would soon be reorganized so as to insure systematic control.

CALIFORNIA GOLD BELT.

Another interesting point touched upon by Dr. Walcott in his address had to do with the survey as related to the mineral deposits in the State. According to George F. Becker, the geologist in charge of the survey of the California gold belt, he said, only one-three-hundredths of the gold deposits in California had yet been touched. A continuation of a detailed investigation of the mother lode is being made.

In the Sierra Nevada Mountains, W. Lindgren, a geologist of the survey, is making further observations on auriferous gravel channels and study of the physiographic changes since the time of their development.

Geologist J. C. Branner is making an areal geological survey of parts of San Mateo, Santa Cruz and Santa Clara counties.

Geologist J. S. Diller is making surveys in Shasta county, and a detailed study of the Honey Lake region.

George H. Eldridge is the geologist of the oil fields and is making a general investigation with reference to the distribution and conditions of occurrence of oil in California.

TOPOGRAPHIC MAPS.

Dr. Walcott instanced these and many other features of the work of the Geological Survey in this State. He exhibited a number of topographic maps compiled under his direction and published by the government. Maps of any particular section that has been surveyed can be had on application to the director of the United States Geological Survey, Washington, D. C., at 5 cents per single copy, or 2 cents per copy if ordered by the 100. A very accurate, detailed topographic map of that portion of Los Angeles county embracing Los Angeles city, Pasadena, the San Gabriel and San Fernando valleys, and the ranches lying between Los Angeles and Santa Monica on the west, and the Puente Hills on the east, has recently been issued.

At the close of the speech-making at yesterday's reception, Dr. Walcott and others in attendance made an inspection of the Chamber of Commerce exhibits, which pleased the visitors very much.

Among those who helped to receive were the following: A. B. Cass, Abbot Kinney, Charles Forman, E. F. C. Klokke, F. Q. Story, George H. Stewart, George W. Parsons, W. M. Garland, H. S. McKee, W. C. B. Richardson, T. P. Lukens, N. B. Blackstone, J. M. Elliott, W. C. Patterson, Dr. Stephen Bowers, Arthur W. Kinney, F. H. Olmstead, J. B. Lippincott, Ferd K. Rule, W. G. Wedemeyer, E. B. Thomas, and W. L. Watts, State mineralogist.

BANQUET TONIGHT.

Dr. Walcott will remain in Los Angeles today and this evening he will be the guest of the Engineers' and Architects' Association at a banquet at Levy's. Other invited guests are Prof. Herbert M. Wilson, Prof. Grove K. Gilbert, Col. H. D. Allen, E. B. Thomas, superintendent of the San Gabriel Forest Reserve, and Abbot Kinney.

President F. H. Olmstead will deliver the address of welcome, and H. Hawgood will act as toastmaster. Octavius Morgan will respond to the toast, "Our Association;" Capt. J. J. Meyler, "Our Coast;" Gen. Charles Forman, "Our Guests;" J. B. Lippincott, "Hydrography;" A. B. Benton, "The Builder;" James A. Warren, "Rocks;" D. Cunningham, "Water;" W. S. Kingsbury, "Maps."

The banquet will commence at 7:30 o'clock.

MICHIGAN CONGRESSMAN.

Hon. Alden Smith and Parents Here for the Sunshine—Pleased With the Election Results.

Congressman Alden Smith of Grand Rapids, Mich., accompanied by his father and mother, registered at the Van Nuys yesterday. They are here for a taste of the winter sunshine.

"I am an ardent lover of Southern California and Los Angeles, though I have not been here for ten years," said the Michigan Congressman last night. "Ten years have put the city beyond recognition. This is a remarkable town, so full of bustle and push. In this regard it reminds me very much of my own town, Grand Rapids, which is getting to be a very lively place.

"Yes, the results of the municipal election in New York have been very gratifying to the whole country. Almost all the recent eastern elections have turned out well. The way things went in Ohio was grand. I do not doubt that the great Republican majority was due very largely to the sentiment with which the late President McKinley is regarded there, and the desire to continue in his footsteps."

Mr. Smith is president of the Grand Rapids Herald Company, and is much interested in the newspaper world.

The rooms were attractively decorated with lilies, smilax and ferns, which were banked upon the piano, and mantels and portieres were arranged in the doorways leading into each room. The guests were entertained with various initial games, and prizes were awarded. Refreshments were served, and the place cards were decorated with the guests' initials, done in water colors. Following is a list of those invited: Misses Sadie Easton, Minnie Peterson, Bessie Baker, Minnie Ward, Myrtle Nickerson, Annie Cook, Clyde Bruce, Grace Hinman, Maggie Hummel, Annie Leahy, Mamie Leahy, Alice Bell, Louise Bell, Stombs, Louise Wenger, Annie Wilkie, Mabel Jackson, Maggie Thomas, Agnes McGhee, Ida Hanna and Bertha Rich, May and Fanny Havenbaugh, Edith Witt and Lucy Leaverich; Messrs. Country Club Dance.

The first dance of the season was given at the Los Angeles Country Club yesterday evening, and the occasion was a delightfully-pleasant one to all present. Each club member is given the privilege of inviting one friend, thus swelling the crowd. Dances will be given every other Wednesday evening throughout the winter season. Arend's Orchestra has been selected to furnish music. At 11 o'clock refreshments were served, after which dancing was resumed. The dance was in charge of the House Committee, including Messrs. W. A. Barker, Esra T. Stimson and Charles Munroe, and they were assisted in receiving and entertaing by their wives.

Nuptial High Mass.

Miss Annie Josephine Moran, niece of Miss Annie Marie Brennan of State street, and George Edwin McLean of East Los Angeles, will be married this morning at 9 o'clock in St. Mary's Church, corner of East Fourth and Chicago streets. Rev. J. Barron will celebrate a nuptial high mass and officiate at the wedding. Mathew McLean, brother of the groom, will act as best man, and Miss Nettie Moran, sister of the bride, will be bridesmaid. The church has been beautifully decorated with La France roses and smilax by Miss Elizabeth Workman and other friends of the bride.

Reception.

Rev. and Mrs. C. P. Dorland entertained a large number of friends with a reception given at their home on Workman street Tuesday evening, complimentary to two bridal couples—Mr. and Mrs. George Greene and Mrs. and Mrs. Forest Velsey. Mr. and Mrs. Dorland were assisted in receiving by members of the bridal parties as follows: Misses Jessie Moore, Ethelyn Kennedy, Anna Yost, and Messrs. Allison Folsom and Lyman Jacobus. LOCAL SPORTING RECORD.

DRIVING CLUB RACES ARE NOW ASSURED.

LEASE ON AGRICULTURAL PARK SIGNED YESTERDAY.

Imperials Beat Monarchs at Ninepins. Drawings for Sunday's Coursing—New Bowling Secretary Chosen—St. Vincents Lose at Football.

The Thanksgiving race meet of the Los Angeles Driving Club is a "go." Assurance was made doubly sure yesterday by the directors of the club signing a year's lease for racing privileges in Agricultural Park. This matter had been in abeyance for some time, and it was strongly hinted several weeks ago that owing to various uncertainties connected with the lease it might not be signed, but this was done at a secret meeting of the Driving Club directorate. The terms are $750 per year, as before.

Little else was done, except to discuss in an informal way the proposed speedway. A committee reported that the Supervisors are making a new ninety-foot road just west of Western avenue, from Pico to Adams street, and an effort will be made by the club to have this widened to 100 feet or more, and then a suitable speedway would be right to hand.

The proposed exhibition of Cresceus by the Driving Club has been abandoned. According to the lease, the club cannot charge admission to any of its matinées, and consequently the members would have to pay the exhibition price out of their own pockets, which they are not inclined to, and could not be expected to do.

MINOR BASEBALL.

GAME FOR NEXT SUNDAY.

The Columbia and California baseball clubs have arranged for two games at Fiesta Park, while the Looloos are away. The last games of these teams played were well worth seeing, as they were the fastest and most exciting played at Fiesta Park for some time. A number of the old California League players were in the line-up, as they will be in the coming games, commencing Sunday. The grounds, seats and dressing rooms have been placed in good condition, and a new cover put on the grand stand, thus affording shade for the spectators. Among those who will take part in the games are Eddy Moore, Held, Briseno, Bowman, and a number of others. The diamond will be placed in perfect shape, permitting a fast game. Game will be called at 2 p.m. The following is the line-up:

Columbias.		Californias.
Mangerino, P.	catcher	Mangerino, H.
Simons	pitcher	Moore, L.
Adams	first base	Held
Harris	second base	Little
Bresino	shortstop	Leland
Stanley	third base	Moore, Ed

Ritter	center field	Moore, J.
DeVoin	right field	Bowman

FOOTBALL.

EASY FOR OCCIDENTAL.

The Occidental College eleven had no trouble whatever yesterday in defeating the St. Vincent's team at football at Fiesta Park, the score at the finish being 33 to 5. The Catholic boys might not have scored had it not been for what some say was an accident, and others design, on the part of the Occidental players. The score was 33 to 0, with only ten minutes to play in the second half, when Occidental, in possession of the ball on its 35-yard line, lost it by a foul, Bazata using his hands in "interference."

St. Vincent's then took the ball for practically the first time, and bucked the center for ten yards. Then, by a pass back to the 30-yard line, Harrington kicked a place goal, scoring 5 as the game ended at darkness.

The contest was too one-sided to be interesting, the Occidental boys being entirely too fast in every way for their opponents, except at bucking, little of which was tried by either team, as both are weak on defensive play.

The game was won by fine runs around either end by Cromwell and Bacon and Bazata's bucking. The winners made a touchdown and kicked two goals for a 17-to-0 score in the first half, and in the second ran it quickly up to 33 with the same tactics used in the first half.

There was a considerable crowd on hand to witness the game.

Occidental.		St. Vincent.
Cleland	Center	Andreas.
Judson	right guard	Phelan.
Chapin	quarter-back	Jenal.

OFFICIAL CHANGE.

At a called meeting of the Southern California Bowling Association, held Tuesday night, A. B. Griffith was voted out of the position of secretary, and Dr. J. C. Kirkpatrick elected in his place. It is said this action was the result of trouble between Griffith and W. E. Rothery, president of the association. Whether or not the action is legal remains to be seen, and as Griffith will probably oppose it, lively times may follow in bowling circles.

BASKET SOCIAL.

Women of St. Joseph Parish Raising Funds for Building New Church at Twelfth and Santee Streets.

The women of St. Joseph's parish gave a basket social yesterday evening in St. Joseph's Hall, Pico and Santee streets, the proceeds of which will be applied to the building of the new church at Twelfth and Santee streets. The attendance was large and considerable money was realized. Bishop Montgomery and the clergy of the different parishes occupied a table in the center of the hall. The table was beautifully decorated and set with an elaborate menu. Novel booths were arranged about the hall, and upon the stage was a canopy, where the young ladies of the sodality served refreshments of ices and confections. Mrs. H. Bishop was in charge, assisted by Mrs. Riddle, Misses Nora Myers, Copp, Bretholf, Elsie Sumner, Anna Ward, Emma Mulhardt, Hulda Mulhardt, Hazel Bishop and Katherine Fitzwilliams.

The candy booth was among the most attractive, decorated with cut flowers and tropical foliage. Mrs. Emma Leary, Mrs. Rapp and Mrs. Beer were in charge.

Mrs. Burkhardt and Mrs. Burghoff had charge of the refreshment booth, and they were assisted by a number of young ladies.

A delightful musical and literary programme was rendered, to which the following contributed: Mrs. W. J. Scholl, Mrs. M. Hamer and Miss Beatrice Campbell. Bishop Montgomery also made a short address.

The Reception Committee included Mrs. Albert J. Scholl, Mrs. Stephan, Mrs. H. Bishop, Miss Burt and Miss Ward.

OLD TEMPLE BLOCK.

The Temple Block ranks among the oldest buildings in Los Angeles. Thirty years ago, situated as it is at the junction of Spring, Main and Temple streets, it was the center of business. The first building, an adobe, was built by John Temple in 1858. In 1865 the property came into the possession of F. P. F. Temple, and in 1871 he put up the building standing today. There was a baby boom in Los Angeles about that time. In 1873 came the failure of the Bank of California at San Francisco, and with it the fortune of the Temple & Workman Bank in Los Angeles. The property was sold under foreclosure of a mortgage held by E. J. Baldwin, and bid in by H. Newmark & Co., who have owned it ever since.

How Can You Doubt It?

It has come to our notice that some parties have been going about conveying the news that the rock of the Santa Ana Tin Mining Company contained no values. In order that you may know the true facts, we publish the result of tests made by the various assayers of Los Angeles. The returns are all on gold.

	PER TON		PER TON
J. B. Hawley	$8.25	R. A. Perez	$5.6
Wade & Wade	$9.75	Baverstock & Staples	$5.7
Howard Squires	$10.33	C. J. Callahan	$5.4
Child & Hansen	$5.79	W. B. McPherson	$5.8

Remember, we have always made a claim for only $4.00. Latest in our own assay office at the mines. These runs were made by McPherson and Squires, all in one day one after the other:

$7.24, $16.96, $7.44, $7.24, $7.44, $7.02.

Now, can we dispute such results? The above are all fire assays. Now to prove these tests to be correct, we are checking up to 90 per cent. of the fire assay by the cyanide method, and we get the values every time. When we consider the famous Treadwell Mines only average $1.61 in all values, and are clearing over $40,000 per month, it ought to be convincing proof of the values of our property when the average values of gold alone is over $5.00, and gold, tin and bismuth over $100.00 per ton. We are giving you straight facts, and as soon as our mill is started we will prove every assertion, and the mill will start whether you buy stock or not. We still have a limited amount of stock for 25 Cents Per Share.

It is a sure thing, 60 days from now you will not buy this stock for one dollar per share.

HE STEEL-STRIKE FAILURE.

In the November issue of the magine, "Success," comment is made the failure of the recent steel ike, the ending of which is reerred to as "a gratification to the tire country." The writer says:

The strike was a mistake; it was dly managed, ill-advised, and with- effect. It was begun without the proval of a considerable number workmen. It cost the Amalgamated Association about twenty-five llion dollars, and reduced its total mbership from twenty-four thousd to fourteen thousand. It showed at there is still an inherent weakss in labor unions; that all workmen are placed on the same level; d that there is no redress for ose who are contented with their t, and do not want to expose their others, wives, and families to the vages of a 'sympathetic' strike. showed that experienced men were nsidered no better, by the unions, an those who had just served their pprenticeship. Nothing could be rther from real spirit of democracy. has demonstrated that the supply sufficiently skilled labor is larger an was supposed, and that the ranks steel workers are more, instead of ss, than full. This may have a ndency, also, to reduce, in time, the neral scale of wages."

If the strike served to impress ese things thoroughly upon the rikers it certainly was not without me beneficial results. It is, as the riter says, one of the inherent weakesses of the labor union system that places all members of unions on e same level, taking no cognizance f varying degrees of ability, and ins offering little or no inducement r men to perfect themselves in heir respective occupations. Workmen outside of these organizations ave constantly back of them an inantive to better achievement, in the ncreased wages and the higher tanding in their occupation which reater proficiency brings them. hey are not hampered by absurd nd unjust regulations which hold hem back from the ways of progress. They are free to dispose of their abor, or its products, to whomsoever they will, and at such a price s may be agreed upon between hemselves and the purchaser. This reedom, in itself, tends toward the making of better and more skillful workmen; for skill in handicraft ommands more ready employment, t higher wages, than inefficiency—that is, if there be entire liberty of action on both sides in the matter of giving and accepting employment. The labor unions insist that the unskillful workman shall receive as much pay as the skillful workman, although, as all men know, his work is not worth as much.

There was no time after the inauguration of the steel strike until its close when the places of the strikers could not have been filled with practically as good workmen as the strikers—or with even better workmen, in some cases if it had not been for the violence and the threats of violence indulged in by the strikers. The latter deserved to lose their fight, for it was waged upon grounds and from motives which could not be successfully defended before the bar of public opinion. Truly, "nothing could be further from the real spirit of democracy" than the spirit which animated these misguided men from the beginning to the end of the strike.

Will the southern "wah hoss" take note of the fact that President Roosevelt shook hands with the porter of the private car Lucania, when the train returned to Washington from Oyster Bay?

Capt. Parker is of the opinion that Admiral Schley's punctuation marks during the battle of Santiago were mostly dashes, periods of hell fire, myriads of stars, semi-Colons and full stops.

"Fighting Judge" Jerome is also pulling down his shirt sleeves, arranging his collar and tie and smiling complacently after doing his share as a lively second in the fight.

CONVICT LABOR ON ROADS.

Discussing this subject, the New York Tribune of recent date points out that in eight or more counties of that State the prisoners of penitentiaries are employed either at road building or at crushing stone for road building. "It is not known," says the Tribune, "that any bad effects have been experienced from the undertaking, while the good effects are numerous and obvious."

Among the good effects of employing the inmates of penitentiaries in this useful work the Tribune mentions the following:

"The prisoners have the physical and moral benefit of healthful labor in the open air; the prisoners are made to pay their way instead of being a heavy charge upon the community; the construction of good roads is promoted, and the cost of them is decreased; and the number of prisoners is diminished, for tramps and other 'sons of rest' avoid counties where committal to the penitentiary means stone breaking and road building. It may be added that one of the chief objections to the system—the offensive parading of convicts in the public view—has been found groundless, for no one would take the penitentiary prisoners working on the roads to be other than ordinary laborers."

While there are some difficulties in the way of the general adoption of the system of employing convicts in road construction, these difficulties are not so serious that they cannot be overcome. The advantages of the system are so many and so obvious that they ought, it would seem, to outweigh such objections as may be advanced.

One advantage in the employment of convicts in road building lies in the fact that work of that kind comes less into competition with free labor than almost any other kind of work which it is practicable for convicts to perform. They must be employed at some kind of labor, for the sake of their health, physical, mental, and moral. Nothing is more demoralizing in a penal institution, where large numbers of convicts are confined, than idleness. But nearly all lines of manufacturing in prisons come into competition more or less directly with the products of free labor, and it is bad practice, to say the least, to allow the placing of prison-made goods upon the markets in competition with products made outside the prisons by free men.

Road construction appears to furnish a reasonable solution of the problem, and it is probable that, in course of time, the system will be quite generally adopted in the several States. "All roads should be made and kept good," as the Tribune well says, "and all prisoners who are able to work should be kept at healthful and profitable work. Those are two rules which should be constantly observed, and between which an intimate relationship is to be found.

John F. Carroll has been delegated by Croker to snap the whip and play ringmaster in the Tammany circus, and to resuscitate the striped beast that received a solar-plexus blow in the New York campaign.

According to Capt. Parker's statement, Lieut. Hodgson's feet had an annoying way of climbing into his mouth every time he opened it, in spite of his desire to tell the truth.

Cervera would probably corroborate Capt. Parker's statement that Admiral Schley's "decisive action" was quite sufficiently of that character to suit the most critical mind.

Queen Lili is slightly seal-brown in color, but it is hardly probable that President Roosevelt would be as sensitive about the matter as was Mrs. Grover Cleveland.

King Edward can hardly be blamed for feeling sick when he glances over the figures representing the cost of the Boer war, after two years of unsatisfactory struggle.

Lawyer Hanna would would the court of inquiry believe that the captains of some of the warships knew more about what constituted a coal supply than Admiral Schley.

Miss Stone and Mme. Tsilka are again alive, although the brigands may conclude to kill them off again tomorrow in order to keep up interest in the case.

Miss Icy Fountain, a Missouri girl, has just married. It will be a cold night for hubby when she plants both feet against the small of his back.

This is the month when we may always expect to see a shower of stars. Tammany saw 'em Tuesday night, and they were "dazzlers."

The Squire of Wantage announces that he has conducted his last campaign. Croker loves to spring a joke as well as Mark Twain.

That schoolmarm who went over Niagara Falls in a barrel has already received twenty-two offers of marriage and ten sideshow proposals, while fourteen editors of excitable papers are slinging mud at each other in an effort to get her to sign a contract for an exclusive story. Verily, the paths of glory lead but to a strenuous life!

Squire Croker says the people "wanted a change." Let us hope they will benefit by what they have received.

"Tactical Diameter."

PASADENA, Nov. 3.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Won't you please explain what is meant by "the tactical diameter" of a ship so frequently referred to in the Schley court of inquiry? AN INFANTRYMAN.

By "tactical diameter" is meant "the space occupied by a ship in turning 180 deg. from a straight line."

Buy a Celluloid Collar.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 5.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Under the heading, "A Voice of Warning," The Times a few weeks ago addressed some words of caution to those expecting to earn, or thinking of earning, a living here in either some office or clerical position—words which all such would do well to consider. If I were asked to briefly describe the labor situation here, I would say there is plenty of employment for those who are willing to work with their hands or their arms, but for those who want to work with the fingers or their heads the market is overstocked.

As I have passed the half-century mark, and as I have been both employé and employer, I may, perhaps, be able to say a few words to those who are looking for work that may be of benefit to them.

Much has been said regarding what is desirable for one to do in case he is looking for a place, and with which we all are more or less familiar. Permit me to say a few words on what I would not do in looking for a position.

In the first place, I would not go into a store or an office smoking. Better not smoke at all, but if you do smoke, don't do it then. You cannot do justice to yourself and your cigar or cigarette at the same time. Besides, how do you know but what you may come in contact with some one who never smokes and to whom tobacco smoke is disagreeable, or who takes pride in saying he "never uses tobacco in any way, shape or form." You are handicapped from the start, and are liable to receive scant consideration.

Second, I would not go into some expensive hotel like the Van Nuys or the Hollenbeck, for instance (or any other hotel for that matter,) and use their stationery that may be found on the writing tables with which to answer advertisements. I have known this very thing to be done many times. Ninety-nine times out of a hundred it is a fraud on the face of it. Either you are using stationery that you have no business to, or else you are staying where you cannot afford to when looking for a place that will pay you $10 a week.

What shall you do? Go into the Y. M.C.A. or the office of the newspaper itself, stating your needs, and you may be sure they will be supplied.

Another thing I would not do, is to send letters of reference and recommendation through the mail to unknown parties. A large share of the addresses given are such as "A, box 100, Times Office," affording no clew to the advertiser. What assurance have you that they will ever be returned to you, even though you make that request? You cannot afford to run any risk of losing your letters. They are your capital, your stock in trade in large measure.

Again, don't wear a soiled collar. If you cannot afford to have your linen ones washed so often, buy a celluloid or a rubber collar, and be your own laundress. One of these will look better than a soiled linen one.

In conclusion, try and not do anything by which you will lose your own self-respect. G.

Cure for Anarchy.

NORTH ONTARIO, Nov. 4.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Probably the most practical way of bringing the bulk of the anarchists to see the error of their ways would be to publish their names and addresses and declare them outlaws. When they found they had no redress from robbery, insult and injury, doubtless it would dawn on them that the law and its prompt enforcement was not such a bad thing after all.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Rumors continue to fly regarding building projects for the Rock Island. It is now stated that the Moores and their allied interests in the Rock Island have determined to extend from El Paso to Los Angeles, an old rumor being that the company was going to San Diego.

It is asserted that on a recent trip of officials and directors over the system, Moores and Leeds came to the conclusion that the Los Angeles proposition is a good one. The officials of the company do not deny the Los Angeles project quite as strenuously as they do the San Diego proposition.

EL PASO (Tex.) Nov. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The fight now on between the Southern Pacific and the El Paso and Southwestern over the right of way for the New Mexico line is growing more serious daily. Several miles to the west of El Paso the Southern Pacific has a force of 2000 men at work, while in the same vicinity the Bisbee road has 600. A great many of the men are armed in the event of a clash between the two forces.

A report came from Deming today, by way of Alamo Gordo, where the officers and attorneys of the two roads are sattending court in the injunction suit by the Southern Pacific against the El Paso and Southwestern, in which the former road is attempting to restrain the latter from working on the right of way in dispute, that four men had been killed while the Bisbee employés were attempting to seize fifty cars of the Southern Pacific material. The report has not been confirmed, although the railroad officials in this city admit there was trouble today at Deming between the rival companies, and that the employés resorted to violence.

Later:—The following has just been received from Deming: "The Southern Pacific refused to switch any more Bisbee cars till payment was received for cars heretofore switched at $5 per car, and placed a switch engine and four guards at the Bisbee junction to prevent the Bisbee road from switching. Bisbee workmen overpowered the engine and guards, and rushed two engines on the Southern Pacific and Santa Fé track and switched ninety cars on its own line. Several were injured, but no one was killed."

FREIGHT CONGESTION.

PENNSYLVANIA SUFFERING.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Feight congestion in western Pennsylvania is daily growing more serious, and the situation which, a fortnight ago, was regarded as a car famine, is many times worse. The railroads are helpless in the face of freight offerings that exceed any in the history of the district. Not only is the car shortage extreme, but the railroads are, with one exception, absolutely unable to furnish power to move loaded trains, and locomotives are kept in operation sometimes a week before coaling.

The situation now is such that blast furnaces are closing because of inability to get coke, and the finishing mills because they cannot get in raw material or ship out the finished product.

The Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce has been appealed to by shippers on the ground that the prosperity of the city is threatened. It will meet next week to take up the matter. Leading shippers of steel, coke, ores and manufactured goods will meet next week to form a provisional committee to investigate matters.

ST. PAUL WITHDRAWS.

SPEED WAR WITH CHICAGO.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The recent reduction in the running time of the overland limited of the Northwestern road bids fair to lead to a speed war between the Chicago and St. Paul lines. Today the management of the St. Paul sent a notice to the traffic managers of the Chicago-St. Paul lines as follows: "In view of the reduction of passenger-train time between Chicago and the Omaha gateway, it does not appear to the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway to be advisable to continue the present understanding as to the time of passenger trains between Chicago and the St. Paul gateway. The St. Paul company, therefore, gives notice of its withdrawal from the understanding in relation thereto."

The officials of the St. Paul line refused to talk concerning the matter. The matter of time agreement between the two cities has, for several months, been on the verge of arousing serious troubles, and if nothing else occurs, it is likely that a new agreement, lowering the present schedule, will be made. St. Paul has been expending several million dollars on its roadbed and track between the two cities, laying heavy rails, reballasting, straightening curves and lowering grades. The result of this work is now frequently shown by the fast mails leaving Chicago more than two hours late, and making the run to St. Paul under nine hours.

NORTHWESTERN TANGLE.

POINTS OF SETTLEMENT.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—The Times will say tomorrow:

"The main points in the settlement of the Northwestern Railroad tangle have at last been agreed upon. This statement was made yesterday by a member of the Harriman syndicate, and also by J. J. Hill, president of the Great Northern Railroad. Many minor details remain unsettled, however, and it is possible some of the main features may be slightly modified. It is expected, nevertheless, that the plan in its entirety will be completed by the end of the present week.

"The principal features of the settlement plan are the reorganization of the stockholding company and the decision not to retire the Northern Pacific preferred stock. The latter proposition was the one on which centered the major part of the discussion, and it is stated that the contention of the Union Pacific interests that a permanent peace could only be obtained by a due recognition of their rights finally won.

"In the new stockholding company by which the various stock issues are to be founded the former contending interests will be equally represented. The Northern Pacific directors will meet next week to act on the dividend, and they probably will consider this question in its relation to the settlement."

Regarding the reported settlement, the Journal of Commerce will say tomorrow:

"An authoritative admission that a general basis of settlement of the existing differences has been reached was announced today. The details of the agreement were not announced, and it is said that a statement will not be given to the public. It is learned, however, that the current settlement involves the organization of a proprietary company which shall acquire the stocks of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern companies. The terms upon which these stocks will be taken over were not given. The current arrangement involves a definite understanding as to the control of the Burlington system on terms declared to be satisfactory to Union Pacific interests. What these terms are was not stated, but it is learned on reliable authority that the arrangement is one of a very definite character, which will prevent any extension of the Burlington system to the detriment of the Union Pacific interests. Union Pacific interests will be represented in the new proprietary company, it is stated, both through stock ownership and by representation on the board of directors.

"It is furthermore definitely established that the St. Paul system has no direct interest in the current settlement. The position of St. Paul may be somewhat benefited generally upon the clearing-up of the Northwestern situation, but the control of the St. Paul for the present, at least, is not to be disturbed.

"One report was that it is eventually intended to return the Burlington system to its original status of an independent road thorugh the medium of the new company recently incorporated in Iowa."

MILITARY PRISONERS MAKE THEIR ESCAPE.

BREAK OUT OF GUARDHOUSE NEAR SAN DIEGO.

Were Charged With Fraudulent Enlistment—Telephone Lineman Falls from Pole and Breaks His Neck—St. Louis Capitalists Looking for Smelter Site.

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 6.—[From The Times' Resident Correspondent.] Two soldiers named McGowan and Sherman escaped from the guardhouse at the barracks last night. They were confined about two months ago on orders from Washington, and were awaiting trial by court-martial on the charge of fraudulent enlistment. The penalty, upon conviction, would have been from two to five years in a military prison.

The escape was effected by cutting through the floor and then through the latticework that surrounds the building between the floor and the ground. From all indications they had been engaged in the enterprise for some time. Details of troops, assisted by the police, are searching the city for them in every direction.

KILLED BY A FALL.

Earl B. Miller, a lineman of the Sunset Telephone Company, missed his footing at the top of a pole this afternoon and fell to the pavement on his head, breaking his neck. He died within a few minutes. He was a resident of Fort Madison, Iowa, and came here a few weeks ago from Los Angeles, where he worked for a year. He was 23 years of age.

MAY BUILD A SMELTER.

D. P. Doak of the party of St. Louis millionaires just returned from the lower Coast on a prospecting tour, says that he found the conditions much more favorable than he expected. He and his associates, F. A. Doak and F. M. Johnson, were the officers and directors of the late Missouri Smelting Company before that corporation was absorbed by the trust. They are now prospecting on the Pacific Coast for iron mines with the idea of moving an immense plant from St. Louis to the Coast. The location of this smelter has not yet been determined upon. Its establishment will require an outlay of several hundred thousand dollars, and the city which obtains it will be indeed lucky.

WEED-M'CONOUGHEY.

Miss Lillian Weed, youngest daughter of Judge F. A. Weed, and Victor E. McConoughey were married this morning at the residence of the bride's parents on Second and Fir streets. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. B. Taylor of the First Presbyterian Church, in the presence of the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties, who left on the morning trair for Hermosillo, Mex., where they will spend the winter. The bride is a popular young society belle and the groom a member of the Elks lodge and well-known business man.

Judge Torrance of the Superior Court this morning reversed the decision of the lower court in the case of Ah Kim, a Chinaman who was fined $300 for participation in the Chinese lottery. It developed that one of the jurors named Phillips had made a statement to the effect that in his mind it would not take so much evidence to prove the guilt of the defendant as it would had he been of a different nationality.

The question of the disposal of the city garbage is again agitating the authorities. The complaint of the residents of Old Town that the garbage dump in that vicinity has caused several cases of sickness and two deaths has aroused considerable indignation among the members of the Board of Health who selected the present site of the dump. It is claimed that the dump is a mile and a half from any habitation.

OPPOSITION TO THE RECIPROCITY TREATIES.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AGAIN PLACED ON RECORD.

Resolutions Adopted by Board of Directors Urging Our Senators and Representatives in Congress to Renewed Energy and Vigilance.

The directors of the Chamber of Commerce have once more placed themselves on record as being unalterably opposed to the ratification of the reciprocity treaties which will come before the Senate at the next session of Congress. At the regular weekly meeting of the board yesterday afternoon, the following resolutions, presented by Director Story, were adopted:

Whereas, at the coming session of Congress, now near at hand, the reciprocity treaties will again be called up for the consideration and action of the Senate of the United States; and whereas, it is manifest that a determined effort will be made by the beneficiaries of said treaties, backed by greedy capital and the catchy term of 'reciprocity' to have the same ratified; and, whereas, by such ratification the citrus fruit, the sugar, the walnut, the raisin and prune, and kindred industries, constituting, as they do, the basis of our prosperity, would be seriously imperiled, and the Chamber of Commerce of Los Angeles, realizing the disaster that would befall the interests of California by the ratification of treaties that sacrifice all her interests, without giving any beneficial equivalent; therefore, be it

Resolved, that this chamber, representing as it does every industry and business of Southern California, enters its most solemn protest against the infliction of so great a wrong as must befall our State in the annihilation of our chief industries by any change in the present tariff laws, either by direct act or through the agency of the so-called reciprocity treaties.

Resolved, that the unprecedented prosperity which this country has attained under the Dingley Tariff Bill should not be allowed to be paralyzed by any effort on the part of aliens and importers seeking special privileges or profits.

Resolved, that we appeal to every citizen to lend his aid in the coming struggle to the end that the ratification of the present treaties may be defeated, and that the principle shall be established that reciprocity does not mean the destruction of the weak for the benefit of the strong.

Resolved, that we tender to our Senators and Representatives in Congress our thanks for their past efforts to defeat the said treaties, and appeal to them for renewed energy and vigilance in the coming session.

The resolutions were signed by F. Q. Story, E. F. C. Klokke, J. Ross Clark, Homer Laughlin and George Frost.

Prior to the adoption of the resolutions, a communication from M. Theodore Kearney, president of the California Raisin Growers' Association of Fresno, was read, assuring the chamber of the association's sympathy with the chamber's views on reciprocity.

A communication from the secretary of the San Dimas Heights Horticultural Club, inclosing a resolution to the effect that the club is strongly opposed to the proposed reciprocity treaties, as presenting a serious menace to the citrus-fruit industry, which is already seriously handicapped, and stating that the club appreciates the efforts and effective work of the Chamber of Commerce in developing the horticultural interests of Southern California, was also read.

President Cass was authorized to appoint three delegates to the Chinese Exclusion Convention, in San Francisco, November 21, to take steps toward urging Congress to extend the term of the present Chinese Exclusion act.

Dewey Bros., dealers in photographic supplies, and John C. Austin, architect, were elected to membership in the chamber.

FRUIT EXCHANGE.

FIGHTING RECIPROCITY, TOO.

The Southern California Fruit Exchange is waging a campaign against the proposed reciprocity treaties. At a meeting of the directorate, held yesterday, resolutions expressing the exchange's sentiments were adopted, as follows:

"Whereas, it is apparent to all careful observers that a more determined effort than ever heretofore will be made at the coming session of Congress to break down the present tariff law, by the entering wedge of reciprocity treaties, and, whereas, all tariffs made through reciprocity treaties are the most dangerous, for the reason that however disadvantageous they may prove in practice, it is all but impossible to change our solemn compact with a foreign nation till the long term of years for which it has been made shall have expired; therefore, be it

"Resolved, that it is the belief of the Southern California Fruit Exchange that unless all the people of California and other States deriving benefit under the present tariff, which has placed our country in a more prosperous condition than this or any other country has heretofore known, make a united effort to prevent the ratification of any and all reciprocity treaties which lower the tariff on any of its products or manufactures, that the prosperity of this country will be followed by similar conditions prevailing under the Wilson tariff, which resulted in disaster to nearly all of our enterprises; all improvements stopped; low wages; soup houses for the unemployed; panic and ruin, and a depleted treasury, which made it necessary for this country to borrow $262,000,000 at 4 per cent., as against a balance in our favor at the end of the present fiscal year, under the present tariff, of $653,000,000, and the power to borrow at 2 per cent.

"Resolved, that in our judgment, the only reciprocity treaties this country should consider are those which 'open the markets on favorable terms for what we do not ourselves produce, in return for free foreign markets.'

"Resolved, that we hereby appeal not only to all Chambers of Commerce and other kindred associations; to all growers of citrus fruits, prunes, raisins, nuts, olives; manufacturers of beet sugar and to all others similarly directly interested, but to all citizens having the interests of this country at heart, to unite in a determined effort to prevent the ratification of the present proposed reciprocity treaties."

COLORED BROTHERS DISAGREE.

Division of Sentiment as to Advisability of Founding Boys' Training School. Board of Directors Selected.

A mass meeting of the colored people of Los Angeles was held last night in the Zion African Methodist Church, corner of Fourth street and Ruth avenue, to further consider the project of establishing an industrial training school for the youth of that race. There was a general discussion of the proposition, and considerable opposition to the movement was developed.

Addresses were made by C. C. Flint, James M. Vena, J. L. Rutherford and J. L. Edwards, editor of the Liberator, all opposing the movement upon the ground that it would tend to foster race prejudice and, were the idea carried out, would be used as a pretext to shut out colored children from present privileges in public schools and training institutes.

Those favorable to the movement, however, were in the majority, and late in the evening proceeded to business. A board of directors was completed as follows: W. J. Thompson, president; Capt. G. W. Hawkins, treasurer; J. Clarkson, J. H. Randolph, J. Scott, W. H. Shores, Rev. C. H. Anderson, Rev. J. E. Edwards, Rev. S. W. Hawkins, Nelson Holloway, W. H. Washington.

One of the speakers stated that an offer to donate land for a school site is expected this week; that work sufficient to erect at least one building is pledged, and that an offer has been made of tools for the equipment of the school.

The meeting adjourned to convene again next Wednesday evening in the same place.

W. J. Thompson, president of the board of directors, is enthusiastic over the prospect for establishing the school, and says that numerous offers of financial help have alrady been made to him.

DEATH OF E. K. GIRD.

First Came to California Nearly Fifty Years Ago, Returned East, and Was Again Attracted Here.

Edward K. Gird died yesterday morning at his home on Rosedale avenue, near Wilshire boulevard, after a lingering illness. His funeral will be held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at the undertaking parlors of Peck & Chase, No. 483 Hill street, and interment will be at Rosedale Cemetery. Mr. Gird was born in Louisiana sixty-six years ago, and first came to California in 1853, engaging in stock raising for a short time, and then returning East.

He lived for many years in Illinois and Missouri, but the allurements of the Golden State again drew him westward, and in 1882 he came to Los Angeles with his family, settling in the Westlake residence section, which then was farming land. He died possessed of considerable property in Los Angeles, Redondo and the San Fernando Valley. He leaves a widow, two daughters, Miss Mary E. Gird of Los Angeles, and Mrs. N. L. Levering of Redlands, and a son, Edward C. Gird, The Times' agent at the Soldiers' Home.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—The trial of thirteen Polish students for belonging to certain secret societies in various universities was, says the Berlin correspondent of the New York Times, begun in Posen, yesterday. The prosecutor claimed that these societies are united in a 'Polish students' league, the object of which is the restoration of Polish independence.

One student has confessed that he circulated fifty copies of a pamphlet proclaiming that Poland was not yet lost.

Polish secret societies, says the correspondent, have been increasing rapidly, and the Prussian government is determined to adopt a strong-handed policy.

THE PUBLIC SERVICE—OFFICIAL DOINGS.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

It was stated yesterday that the Fire Commission will choose an assistant chief tomorrow. Political wires are hot with the strain of rival factions attempting to land their favorite in the little red wagon.

The City Attorney went north last night to argue against the petition of S. A. Waldron for a writ in quo warranto before the Attorney-General.

Brown, through Brown, is suing Brown for an accounting of the financial affairs of the Sample saloon, where Constable Brown is "barkeep."

R. E. Drummond is to be asked to resign as city fruit inspector and devote all his time as a horticultural inspector.

The Macneil will, in a $200,000 estate, was filed for probate yesterday.

George Bolden, who raised a rough house at the Hod Carriers' Union meeting, was tried for battery in the Police Court yesterday.

RIVAL CAPTAINS RACE FOR THE RED WAGON.

ASSISTANT FIRE CHIEF'S PLACE MAY SOON BE FILLED.

Statement Made That Commission Will Act at the Meeting Tomorrow—Pedigrees of Those Who are Mentioned for Promotion—Wires Pulled.

It was given out yesterday that the Fire Commissioners will appoint an assistant chief of the department at the session tomorrow morning. There has been considerable activity among the members of the board and Councilmen who are known to be interested in the matter during the last few days, and there are many indications that point to the truth of the assertion.

As is usual in such cases, the members of the board are as mum as the fabled oyster. Councilmen show the same disposition to dodge the question because, for some unknown reason, a remarkable amount of political "influcence" is exerted one way or another when it comes to naming an assistant chief.

It is the proud boast of the fire department that it is run upon strict civil-service principles, but under the rules of the board it would take a Philadelphia lawyer and a Tammany politician to determine who is now in line for promotion. There are captains who have been captains longer than other captains; there are lieutenants drawing a captain's former pay who have been in the department and in command of companies for a longer time than the captains who are captains now, and the provision of the board that fitness is to be a determining factor lends a great uncertainty to the interpretation that will be placed on the civil-service regulations of the commission. Without a doubt there are many ways of looking at the matter, and each commissioner and Councilman chooses the point of view that coincides with his personal convictions.

What the result will be no man can tell. Some wires are being pulled until they are liable to break, and if the board is able to reach an agreement by the meeting tomorrow it will be a remarkable occurrence. Of course the department is on the qui vive and there are quite a number of firemen who today fondly imagine themselves about to inherit the brass buttons and little red wagon which Charles Fuselehr had before his severe illness.

One or two men who might have the position, in all probability, if they would try for it, say they would not accept the assignment if it was extended to them on a gold platter with appropriate trimmings. They point out that the assistant chief will have more troubles than did Solomon with his thousand wives for the first few months. Jealousies will be aroused in the department and the brunt of every disagreeable thing will have to be borne by the assistant chief. In addition there will be no man so completely in the public eye for a short time, and at every fire the actions of the assistant chief will be noted first of all. On this account and because of the political enmities that will be occasioned, several of the men say they do not wish to wear brass buttons and be called "chief."

As far as light has been let in on the subject, there appears to be a three-cornered fight in progress on behalf of Capts. Roeder and Lennon and Lieut. McDonald of the Fourth Ward. Capt. McMahon, with characteristic persistence, is said to be hot on the trail of the appointment, but because he bears the reputation of a peace disturber in the department, and recently narrowly escaped censure at the hands of the board, it is not thought that his self-imposed candidacy will cut much figure in this political tempest in a teapot.

A consultation of the records shows that Capt. John Roeder of Engine Company No. 11, located at Seventh street and Burlington avenue, was appointed to a position in the department August 3, 1889, and was advanced to the rank of captain June 25, 1897; Capt. Samuel A. Lennon of Engine Company No. 3, at Hill and Fourth streets, entered the department August 1, 1892, and was advanced to the rank of captain December 26, 1896; Capt. Michael McMahon of Engine Company No. 10, at Hill and Sixteenth streets, entered the department for a second time April 15, 1897, and became a captain at the time of the reorganization of the department January 31, 1900.

Generally speaking, the rule of precedence in force in the fire board gives seniority of rank to the fireman who has longest held the place he now occupies. If a foreman refuses to accept a tender of promotion he is dropped to the foot of the list in his rank.

But the situation is complicated by the fact that at the time of placing the department on a full-pay basis in January, 1900, there were three captains for whom there were no places, and they were assigned to command companies with the rank of lieutenants at the same salary they drew while captains, prior to the time of reorganization.

It is contended that these men should be considered available timber for assistant chief, and it is known that strong influences will be brought to bear to secure the selection of Lieut. T. J. McDonald of Engine Company No. 8, at Washington and Hoover streets. He entered the department March 13, 1895, and was advanced to the rank of captain the following July, some months before either of the present captains. At the time of the reorganization, McMahon, who was at one time assistant chief, managed to step in over his head and secure a captaincy. How this was done is a chapter of political history that would fill a volume.

Lieut. A. J. Early of Engine Company No. 9, and Lieut. W. S. Rowan of Hose Company No. 5 are in much the same situation as McDonald. The former became a captain in May, 1895, and the latter January 1, 1895, but at the time of reorganization they were assigned at first lieutenants. Apparently neither of them will figure in the fight.

From present indications the field is limited to Roeder, Lennon and McDonald. It is said that Capt. Lennon is not anxious for the place and in that case the contest would be between Roeder and McDonald. It is said that the element that was behind Fred Hughes for assistant chief will support McDonald. Citizens of the Westlake district have interested themselves in the interest of Capt. Roeder, but whether that will overcome the sentiment against him in informed circles it is hard to state.

The race is on, however, and at the half the three fire laddies are neck and neck. Perhaps a winner will pass under the wire at the board meeting tomorrow.

Some well-informed persons predict that a dark horse in the person of Clerk Robert Burns may draw out of the bunch and be in the lead at the finish. "Bobbie" holds the rank of captain and possesses good judgment and a cool head, as has frequently been evidenced at fires.

Band Will Play.

The Metropolitan Band and Orchestra, of which L. R. Darrow is director, yesterday took out a permit from the park department to play in Central Park next Sunday. The concert is not for the benefit of any company, and no charge is made by the band, which is a new organization of local musicians.

Work of Labor Bureau.

The report of L. C. Cleveland, manager of the Free Labor Bureau, for October shows that 766 positions were filled through the bureau during the month. A decrease is noticeable in the number of men who hang around the free-labor headquarters. A few months ago from ten to fifty were always on hand looking for easy positions. Now it is not unusual to find the yard without a single applicant for work.

Demands Audited.

Today the salary demands drawn on the street department, Engineer's department and park funds will be ready for payment at the Auditor's office.

Cash Fund Shortage.

With the auditing of the demands on the cash fund passed by the City Council last Monday, those who hold demands against the fund are plunged still deeper in gloom. Today the shortage in the fund amounts to over $35,000, while the apportionment from the entire tax levied this year amounts to but $20,345, some of which has already been apportioned and expended. The first half of the city taxes will become delinquent on the 25th inst. To date, $156,610.31 has been paid into the city treasury.

Argument Before Ford.

City Attorney Mathews left for San Francisco last night to argue against the application of L. A. Waldron for a writ in quo warranto before Atty.-Gen. Tirey L. Ford. The matter will be heard before the Attorney-General in person, and the case will not appear in court unless the writ is issued, and this is regarded as unlikely. The City Attorney hopes to quash the whole proceeding at this juncture. While in the north, Attorney Mathews will also attend to other city business. He will return on Saturday.

Third-track Injunction.

As yet the City Attorney has not moved to dissolve the temporary injunction preventing the Los Angeles Railway Company from running cars over the third track on Santa Fé avenue. The motion will be made, however, before the end of the week. The Council rushed the scheme through in such haste last Monday that no attempt was made to have the company pay the expense incurred by the city in tearing up the track which was twice laid between two days. On this account over $200 was expended from the city treasury. City Attorney Mathews will insist upon the signing of a waiver of damages by the company, and will try and secure the payment of the cost of tearing up the track, as well as costs of suit, before the motion to dismiss is made in accordance with the decree of the Council.

Will Press Claims.

On behalf of Swensen & Hill, contractors on the Third-street tunnel, Walter Bacon, Esq., stated yesterday that the demands against the city will be pressed. It will be remembered that Swensen & Hill claim that $2284 is due them on account of a change in the tunnel sub-grade and $8700 because of the big cave at the west portal of the tunnel in January, 1899.

NO TROLLEY YET.

There is no truth in the report that H. E. Huntington or any one else is at this time planning to build a trolley line from the intersection of the Los Angeles and Pacific line and Alvarado street across the Los Angeles River and via Tropico, Glendale, Eagle Rock and Garvanza, to connect with the Los Angeles and Pasadena line, forming a belt. The tale is a year old, and there never has been any foundation for it.

T. W. Good has been busy for some months securing rights of way for a boulevard over the route in question, and has met with considerable success. The boulevard may be built, and would be a great improvement.

Some time in the future some one may take up the trolley-line project, but not now.

It is said that the Hooks at one time talked about such a road, but since the last franchise for the proposed belt line through the second and third roads, they have probably dropped all thought of this scheme.

Pat in Jail.

Pat Powers, supposed to have been implicated in the robbery of a Highland dairy, is in the City Jail. He is supposed to have been in hiding in the willows of the river bed for some days, and was caught yesterday as he was coming across one of the bridges.

PARTNERSHIP MESS OVER SALOON AFFAIRS.

SUIT BEGUN FOR AN ACCOUNTING AND A RECEIVER.

Henry B. Brown Made Defendant by Edward Brown, and Constable Brown, Barkeeper, Cuts a Figure, While Plaintiff's Attorney is a Brown.

Some of the Browns in town are involved in a partnership tangle over a saloon business, and the courts have been asked to straighten things out by appointing a receiver and ordering a general accounting.

The Sample, No. 106 Court street, is the saloon that has caused the mess.

H. B. Brown is the defendant in the action, while the plaintiff is Edward Brown, whose brother, Constable George Brown, has been employed in the booze dispensary as a barkeeper. And still there is one more Brown to mention; it is plaintiff's attorney, J. C. Brown, Esq. Brown & Brown became a partnership last February, when each party agreed to share equally in the profits of the business, and have each the appointment of one bartender at $12 a week. H. B. Brown was to advance $550 toward the conduct of the business, while Edward Brown was to advance only $250 with the understanding that he should appoint his brother, George Brown, the constable, as a barkeeper, since the latter possessed "a very large acquaintance in the city of Los Angeles, and would be able through said large acquaintance to draw a great deal of trade to said store."

Thus, it is alleged, the Browns became equal partners.

But trouble is now rampant. According to the complaint, the actual amount of receipts from the business on November 1, after the payment of all expenses, was $864.49—which amount, it is alleged, has at all times since the formation of the partnership been in possession and charge of the defendant. Now, swears the plaintiff, the only amount to be found is about $130. The balance, he alleges, has been appropriated to the use of his partner, which the latter person is accused of refusing to make good.

This alleged shortage is the cause of the lawsuit of the Browns.

NEW OFFICE IN SIGHT.

FRUIT INSPECTOR WANTED.

Fruit inspection is a hobby with the present Board of Horticultural Commissioners, and it is proposed that all work in this direction shall be thoroughly effective. This policy will undoubtedly affect the future duties of R. E. Drummond, a horticultural inspector, who, with G. W. Fraser, is kept busy fighting fruit pests in the city of Los Angeles. The remuneration of inspectors is $2.50 per diem paid out of the exchequer of the county.

For a long time past Drummond in addition to his county labors has been under appointment by the Council as city fruit inspector without pay. As such municipal appointee his added duties have not been inconsiderable, and may not have detracted from his usefulness to the county. At any rate, the horticultural commissioners are considering the advisability of asking him to resign his city job and devote all his time on county work. Drummond is reputed to be a first-class inspector, and his exclusive services would be very acceptable to the commissioners, who are not inclined henceforth to allow county money to be spent in the performance of city work.

When Drummond resigns, the Council will probably have a new office to create.

Once before, it is said, was the appointment of a city fruit inspector before the city fathers, but their dissensions over the public market forestalled, in fact, prevented, any action. If the new market is maintained and a fruit inspector were appointed, the City Council might easily confine his work in that place to the exclusion of other markets. If this were done, the office would be useless, for about all the business, as is well known, is done at the Hewes market. Consequently, an inspector, at $60 a month, would but add to the weight of the white elephant, which the Council keeps staked out at the corner of Central avenue and Third street.

KOCH KNOCKED.

BIG DAMAGE SUIT.

John Koch, a Pasadena orchardist, commenced a $25,000 damage suit yesterday against the Southern California Railway Company.

It is an action for personal injuries.

On June 11 Koch was riding in a light wagon down Colorado street, when suddenly a train of cars ran into his outfit, and there was a smash-up. The driver was thrown violently to the pavement, injuring his spinal column, cutting open his head, affecting his brain, and shocking his whole nervous system. Necessary medical services cost him $200, and he cannot work in his orchards. He asks judgment for $25,200, and costs of suit. His attorney is Edward F. Wehrle, Esq.

GUILTY SMITH.

SECOND-DEGREE MURDER.

Murder in the first degree, with the hangman's noose for a background study, is the verdict that Henry J. Smith escaped, but the jury that has been trying him for the past week found him guilty yesterday of murder in the second degree.

That's a sure enough case of winning by a neck.

Second-degree murder is committed with malice without premeditation, and is punishable by not less than ten years' imprisonment. Smith killed John Benson, a Swede, in the tunnel at Chatsworth Park on July 22 with a pick ax. Benson was a big, burly man, while Smith is a little colored fellow of about 27 years of age. They quarreled, came to blows and were separated. Afterward, Smith struck him with the death-dealing pick. At the trial he justified his deed by swearing that he acted in self-defense, alleging that Benson was about to hit him with a shovel.

The jury was out about four hours, before a verdict was reached. The convicted man will be sentenced on Monday. His attorneys are Messrs. Thompson & Wynn, assisted by A. J. Monihon, Esq., and F. W. Allender, Esq.

MACNEIL WILL.

FILED FOR PROBATE.

The will of the late Hugh L. Macneil of Azusa, who died on October 21, leaving an estate valued at $200,000, was filed for probate yesterday. The instrument bears date of January 30, 1896, at which time deceased was 45 years old.

The estate yields an annual income of $20,000.

The petitioner for probate of the will is the widow, Louise S. Macneil. The instrument is olographic. Deceased bequeaths to his mother, Mary Macneil, $5000; to his sister, Mrs. Kate Ferguson, $3000; to his sister, Miss Phemia Macneil, $3000; to his brother, Donald A. Macneil, $3000; and to Donald A. Macneil, in trust for his brother, Neil C. Macneil, $1000. The residue of his estate he apportions as follows: One-half to his widow, one-quarter to his son, Sayre, and one-quarter to his daughter, Marion. The children are both minors. Sayre will receive his inheritance, one-third at 21, one-third at 26, and one-third at 30. Marion will get hers also in blocks of one-third when she has attained the age of 19, 25 and 30. Mrs. Macneil is named as sole executor of the estate and guardian of the children. The attorney for the estate is Charles Silent, Esq.

INCORPORATIONS.

PIANOS AND MERCHANDISE.

The Los Angeles Piano Company incorporated yesterday with a capital stock of $1,000,000, divided into $20 shares, of which amount $100 has been subscribed. The directors are Walter C. Durgin, L. R. Parson, L. St. John, P. B. Mathiason and John W. Hart, all of this city.

The V. M. Greever Company, with principal place of business in Azusa, incorporated yesterday, to do a general merchandise business. The directors are V. M. Greever, C. H. Edwards, C. W. Hyde, W. S. Bridges and P. C. Daniels. The capital stock is $10,000, divided into $100 shares, of which amount $3500 has been subscribed. Greever, Edwards and Hyde each subscribe $1100.

COURTHOUSE NOTES.

BREVITIES MISCELLANEOUS.

ODD OLD LADY. Monrovia Lynde, a poor old woman, 82 years of age, was adjudged insane yesterday and committed to Highland. She has a son 60 years old in the Soldiers' Home. Old age has weakened her mind. She has a delusion that she must always arise at 2:30 o'clock in the morning and dress. Her whole time is spent in moaning and wailing.

BOLD, BAD GIRL. Lahora La Vell, aged 15, whose home is at No. 1349 Avenue 28, was sent to the Whittier Reform School yesterday for all-round incorrigibility. The complaint was made by the girl's mother. Lahora smokes cigarettes and has delighted to associate with painted women with the red badge of weakness on their foreheads.

HUBER AGAIN. C. E. Huber has begun another suit against F. S. Hicks and Emeline Childs, alleging malicious arrest on an insanity charge and asking damages in $50,000. A similar suit was dismissed in Judge Allen's court yesterday. Huber says he moved a dismissal because he was not allowed time to get his witnesses together.

SUIT FOR SERVICES. The Rotary Oil Drilling Company is suing the Union Oil Company of California for $2050, alleged to be due for sinking an oil well near Fullerton. Plaintiff alleges that it was employed in July to do the work.

RENT RAISED. Carrie L. Northcutt is suing A. Carter for possession of the premises at No. 981 West Sixth street. On October 15 Carter was notified that on and after October 31 his rent would be raised from $15 to $125 a month.

CAPITAL INCREASED. The capitalization of the Zenith Oil Company has been increased from $100,000 to $300,000.

THE INFERIOR COURTS.

PUNCHED THE FACE OF THE "BOUNCER."

HOD CARRIERS' UNION ROW IN THE POLICE COURT.

Member Who Wouldn't Leave Meeting Discharged Because He Didn't Start the Rumpus—Heathen Chinee Tries to Save Christianized Celestial.

George Bolden, who almost scandalized the Hod Carriers' Union the other night by punching the "bouncer's" face, was tried in the Police Court yesterday for battery.

From the testimony introduced before Justice Austin, it appeared that the Hod Carriers' Union was having a little domestic trouble that evening.

Mistah Johnson was called up to explain something about funds. Either Mistah Johnson or the funds must have worried the union. Before he got a chance to get more than to "thirdly," the whole outfit was talking at once.

Mistah Bolden was particularly obstreperous.

The president tried to get him to sit down and let the show go on, but Mistah Bolden's blood was up. At last the worthy president shouted to "take him out."

But Mistah Bolden declined to be put out. He firmly declined.

Several of the hod carriers made a swoop at him, but Mistah Bolden knocked them out by ones and twos as they came up.

As Bolden didn't seem to have started the fracas, the court ordered his discharge.

Dog Bit Her.

Mrs. Ella M. Collier of Rose street has a precious dog, that has been put officially under the ban by the court.

Yesterday she and the dog were on trail before Justice Austin for biting a woman named Sarah E. Cuppes. That is to say, Mrs. Collier was on trial for giving the dog moral support and three meals a day, and the dog was the one charged with biting Mrs. Cuppes.

The dog was lying in front of Mrs. Collier's house, when Mrs. Cupps passed, and the dog rose and bit her in a meditative manner on the leg through her dress. She was not seriously hurt, so Mrs. Collier was let off with a fine of $3.

Heathen Helps Christian.

Chuck Gee, an unregenerate heathen, and Chew Wo, a Chinaman Christianized to the point of street preaching, were each fined $30 in the Police Court yesterday for having lottery tickets in their possession.

Chuck Gee, for some reason, tried to save the Christianized Chink from punishment. He pleaded guilty, and Chew Wo tried to clear himself of the charge.

Chuck Gee, when he confessed to his misdeeds, said that he would like to make a statement, and when the court gave him permission, he said that he would like to have the court know that he had all the tickets in his possession, and that the preacher had none.

When Chew Wo took the stand, he denied having any tickets, but he was convicted over his denials.

THE OIL INDUSTRY.

REED CRUDE DECIDES TO GET INTO LINE.

STOCKHOLDERS VOTE TO ENTER THE KERN COMBINE.

Hitch in Summerland Consolidation, Owing to Failure of Eastern Capitalists to Produce—Beaumont's Boom About Dead and Prices Decreasing.

The northern oil combine has secured one more supporter—the Reed Crude Oil Company of this city.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Reed Crude yesterday afternoon it was decided to cast their lot with other northern producers in the associated oil companies of the Kern River field, and as soon as the necessary papers are drawn the company will turn over its property, which consists of 600 acres of proven oil land and many fine producing wells.

Of the total capitalization of 2,000,000 shares, there were represented at the meeting yesterday 1,732,577, and not one vote was recorded against the proposed consolidation.

The San Joaquin, Sterling, Sovereign, Brooks, Canfield and Chanslor, and Kern Oil companies have already been gathered in, and with the Reed Crude, the combine already presents a formidable front.

"We have every reason to believe that the combine will be a success," said a member of the Reed Crude company yesterday, "as it is evident that consolidation only can succeed where there is so much to battle with as there is in the Kern River field. The company will not turn over all its property to the combine, as there are certain portions of it that have not been proven up, although the land is promising. All of the land that is turned over is proven, and we believe is good oil land."

THIS COMBINE HANGS FIRE.

There is a hitch in the proposed consolidation of the Summerland producers; the programme was not carried out, owing to lack of cash.

Almost six months ago a New York syndicate secured an option on the plants and holdings of a majority of the large producers of that field, and at that time it was announced that the syndicate intended to form a company to be known as the Summerland Consolidated Oil Company. Under the terms of the option the properties were to be turned over July 1, but since that time several extensions have been granted. The last expired November 1, and yet the necessary cash to complete the purchase has not been paid.

While the deal has been hanging fire almost no development work has been done, owners being content to merely fill contracts that were on hand.

ENLARGING REFINERY.

One of the important improvements that have been made is the rebuilding of the California Liquid Asphaltum Company's plant. New stills, with much larger capacity than the old ones, have been installed, and other apparatus put in place that will help in the work of refining. The plant is now running night and day, and if the rush continues it may be necessary to make other enlargements.

WESTLAKE HOLDERS PAY.

Stockholders in the Westlake Oil Company did not shy at the 2-cent assessment levied by that company; with but very few exceptions, they paid. Out of a total issue of 500,000 shares but 4800 shares remained unhonored, and these were bought in by the company.

OILY BEAUMONT.

BOOM PRICES NO MORE.

BEAUMONT (Tex.) Nov. 4.—[Regular Correspondence.] During the boom large deals in real estate were recorded daily, and enormous sums were paid for small areas. Recent deals show that while lands are still held at fancy figures, in the proven field, the prices paid in the days of wild excitement do not now prevail. The Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fé Railway Company has conveyed to the Higgins Oil and Fuel Company a tract containing twenty-six acres in the John H. Veatch survey. The price is $82,677.50. The Higgins company is building on the tract eleven steel storage tanks, with a capacity of 37,500 barrels each.

James Swayne, as trustee for the Hogg-Swayne syndicate, has sold to H. L. Fagin, trustee, a piece of ground in the famous Hogg-Swayne tract of fifteen acres. The land sold measures 30 x85.22 feet, and the price was $10,000. It has been announced that the Hogg-Swayne lands have been withdrawn from the market, and this is probably the last small patch of ground that will be sold on Spindle Top.

Wild-cat speculation is a thing of the past, as far as Beaumont is concerned, but every day come stories of the fairy tales that are told in the East and in California to lure the man with money. Any story which discredits the oil business in any section of the country falls with pleasure on the ear of interested parties in the East, and it is said by those who have visited New York City and other eastern cities that all sorts of tales are made out of whole cloth concerning this field.

Numerous reports of the operations of companies and individuals which have no holdings in any oil field continue to come to light. One California boomer is credited with trying to sell stock in a company which he represents to have large holdings in the Beaumont field, by telling his prospective customers that one of the Beaumont companies has paid dividends amounting to 265 per cent., and that all the companies can do as well. The truth is, that the Beaumont oil companies are not paying dividends. It is expected that some of those which have been the most active in getting oil on the market may pay dividends the first of the year, but no announcements have been made. The stockholders of the companies are going down into their pockets and getting money to pay for equipment for handling the oil. Chattel mortgages are given for cars, tanks and pipe lines. A gusher or two is not regarded as much of an asset in a $1,000,000 oil company. The rush to get a gusher was not half as great as is the present-day rush to get a market for the oil.

The methods used to influence would-be speculators to buy stock in oil companies which have no assets except a charter have been brought to the attention of the Postoffice Department, and an inspector has been investigating the standing of some of the companies. The mails may be closed to them. The Texas authorities are investigating some of the companies which are operating in this State, and a weeding out of the wild-cat concerns may follow.

ON 'CHANGE.

TRADING STILL DEAD.

Brokers, many of them, are confident that before very long the stock market will take a turn for the better, in spite of the fact there is not the slightest sign of improvement.

For the past two weeks or more the market has been as dead as at the quietest time during the summer, and not the slightest bullish tendencies have been evident in the few transfers made.

Local oil stock trading is at present the business of less than a dozen brokers, and of that number less than half have figured in sales for some time. The little stock that has found a market is the very cheapest, such as Uncle Sam, Southern Consolidated, Westlake and similar securities that are knocked down at less than 10 cents a share.

The latter stock was the only one that figured in yesterday's call, and but $150 worth of that went under the hammer.

OPEFUL ON COPPER. As far the stock market reflects the cop- situation, it would seem that there been an improvement. The price Amalgamated Copper shares, while ceedingly irregular, does not indicate that there is any further active fear regards the outcome in the copper arket. It was noted last week that large line of lake copper had actually proved, and reports which were so valent a fortnight ago in regard to probable severe and general reduc- in prices for copper have utterly ed to materialize. It would seem, that, despite manipulation of copper stocks in the interest of the ministration, Wall street and reet have both made up their that better things are in pros- and that an improving market , together with better prices lesser stocks, will probably , after an interval of greater or ity. It is, however, well remark that some of the and at the same time most comments heard in connec- the situation relate to the of the Amalgamated Copper 's management to present the ts of stock-jobbing operations. REAL PRODUCE MARKETS.

Most fruits show no sign of immediate improvement in a wholesale way. Only lots of choice to fancy fruits are freely held in the local markets. Prices are by no means settled, but the business is doing for the approaching holiday trade.

Oranges are in a very good condition as a general proposition. Three-fourths of the crop is in the hands of the great distributers and half of the remainder in the hands of the retail trade. The latter demand will be good and will take a large part of the crop, leaving a small carry-over stock for the trade out of the rest of the year. Prices are coming in at New York prices, which is the one important element.

Lemons are firm for choice to fancy. Poorer grades are cleaning up, and it is possible to get cars to bring here and have them repacked. The trade must soon be supplied, and prices there are firm at $1.75 for inferior to $2.50 for best.

Apples are in good demand at 50 cents to $1 per dozen heads of good to fancy development. The same applies to pears at 25 to 35 cents.

Grapes are generally firm.

Peaches are moving slowly. The loss in the Ventura will not be above 10 per cent. of the crop, unless it rains before the large quantity in the field is safe under cover.

Quinces are firm at an advance, as the supply is short, of 2½ cents.

Figs are steady, but local ranch are

Nuts are in active demand at prices.

Walnuts are moving very slowly.

Almonds are active and firm at $1.25 to $1.60 for fancy reds.

Chestnuts are likely to advance.

Pecans are firm.

Honey is firm, alfalfa being scarce.

Eggs are up 5 cents.

Poultry is active. Ducks are scarce, but are selling well. Turkeys are slow.

Butter is unchanged. The fanciest grades of Minnesota are selling at $5.50 per roll, and retailing at $1.60 per

SHARES AND MONEY.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Today's stock market was dominated by the authoritative admissions from various quarters that the basis had been agreed on for the settlement of the Northern Pacific controversy, although the reports of an official announcement were deprecated, as it was said, details being not yet ready to be arranged. The arrival from Europe today of W. K. Vanderbilt, who was named by Morgan as the final arbitrator of any difficulty upon which the conciliation board of directors might not be able to come to an agreement, helped to incite the large speculative buying which was notably among the transcontinental railways. The dealings in Union Pacific and St. Paul were on a scale to recall the days of the stock-market boom in the spring of this year, and the resulting rise in St. Paul reached 4¾ and Union Pacific 3¼. In Southern Pacific, the rise reached 1¾. Great Northern, preferred, 1¾; Atchison, 2¾, and in Northwestern, 5¾. Northern Pacific preferred fluctuated narrowly, thus suggesting that its present price is near to its valuation under the plan. The Southwesterns and some of the southern stocks afforded another center of activity and strength, based on the series of extraordinary favorable returns of gross earnings for the fourth week in October. The Southern Railway stocks were also aided by the vote of Cincinnati in favor of extending the lease of the Cincinnati Southern. In these groups, there were gains in Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis of 3½; St. Louis and San Francisco, 3½; Southern Railway, preferred, 2½; Missouri Pacific, 2½; St. Louis Southwestern, preferred, 2, and Denver and Rio Grande stocks, Texas and Pacific, Louisville and Nashville and Southern Railway, 1¾. The increase in railway earnings for the fourth week in October over those for the corresponding period of last year for Missouri Pacific reached 22 per cent.; St. Louis-San Francisco, 25 per cent.; Louisville and Nashville, 14 per cent., and Missouri, Kansas and Texas, 12 per cent. There were other roads with almost equally striking gains, but they did not share in the advance. A number of specialities were notably weak early in the day, including Sugar, Amalgamated Copper, People's Gas, American Ice and Metropolitan Street Railway, but except in Sugar and Amalgamated Copper, there were strong recoveries. In P. C. C. and St. Louis, preferred, Wells-Fargo, Pacific Coast, St. Lawrence and Adirondack, Chicago and Eastern Illinois, Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh and Rutland, preferred, there were gains of two to three points. The large dealings in bonds centered in the Union Pacific and other convertible bond issues. Total sales, $4,170,000. United States bonds were all unchanged on the last call.

London Financial Market.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—The Commercial Advertiser's London financial cablegram says: "American stocks opened buoyant. On the outburst of strength in this department the market hardened. Rio Tintos reported 46¾ @46¾ with American issues, which opened strong on an unofficial announcement of the Northern Pacific situation. The defeat of Tammany, too, had a good effect, as London regarded it as having an important bearing on American credit. The market, on the whole, was more active than for weeks past. Good authorities say that it is the beginning of a second boom. Union Pacific led in the advance, but New York took profits, causing a relapse. The list picked up on the curb after business. Atchison being a strong favorite, with big calls to the end of January at 9¾ per cent. Southern Pacific, Denver and Rio Grande and Erie were all in demand."

GENERAL EASTERN MARKETS

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Wheat opened stronger and higher on a strong cable list. There was a good commission-house demand early and December opened ¼ to ⅜ higher, at 73¼@73⅜. Prices even went to 73⅝ for a few moments, but at that figure the rush of commission-house orders was overcome by a general disposition to take profits. The corn market was acting in a similar manner, and when longs in both pits began to sell and there was no important bull news to support the market, prices began to slide downward and at one time touched 71⅞. There seemed to be a belief current that the slump was only temporary, and short covering brought a reaction at the close, December closing weak, ⅝ to ¾ lower, at 71¼@72. Corn was very strong at the opening. Spot demand here was firm and river points were still seeking to fill their buying orders in this market. December closed weak, ¼ to ⅝ lower, at 69¼@69⅝. Oats were active, closing ⅛ lower at 37½. Provisions were heavy and dull. Prices were a trifle better at the opening on a small demand for the shorts' account. Hogs were a shade lower, and on liberal offerings prices reacted and closed steady. Pork closed unchanged; lard, 2½ to 5c up, and ribs unchanged.

The leading futures closed as follows:

O. C. JOSLEN, M. D.
Strictly Reliable.

Moderate Fees. Permanent Cures.

I stand entirely distinct from that class of specialists who charge exorbitant fees to make up for their lack in number of patients. In the very beginning of my practice I adopted the policy of moderate charges and absolute fairness in all my dealings, and these commendable methods, together with my unequaled success in curing men, have given me a position among specialists as unique as it is prominent. My practice is the most extensive one in the entire West, and no necessity exists for asking unfair fees, so that my services are in easy reach of the man of slender means. If desired payment may be made in installments as the patient sees his improvement. This is but one reason why you should be treated by Dr. Joslen; another and better reason is that you will certainly receive the permanent cure you seek.

"Weakness."

If other physicians have treated you for so-called "weakness" you were helped only temporarily if at all, and the reason is very apparent when the cause of loss of sexual power in man is understood. "Weakness" isn't a weakness at all, but is merely a symptom of chronic inflammation in the prostate gland, brought on by merely disappation or some contracted disorder. My system of local treatment removes this inflammation, and is the only treatment that has ever or ever can permanently restore strength and vigor.

Contracted Disorders.

Every case of contracted disease I treat is thoroughly cured. My patients have no relapse. When I pronounce a case cured there is not a particle of infection or inflammation remaining, and there is not the slightest danger that the disease will return in its original form or work its way into the general system. No contracted disorder is so trifial as to warrant uncertain methods of treatment, and I especially solicit those cases that other doctors have been unable to cure.

My office and hospital occupy the entire building of twenty-two rooms over the Wells-Fargo Express Office, and there is not a like institution equal in size or equally equipped in the West.

My colored chart will instruct you in male anatomy, and it is free upon request. X-Ray Examinations Free. Consultation and Advice Free.

DR. O. C. JOSLEN, Main and Third Streets, LOS ANGELES, CAL.

Certainty of a cure is what you want.

Dr. Harrison Cures Varicocele in 5 days.

The Health of Man

MY WEAKNESS CURE POSITIVELY CURES all forms of vital force, prematureness and general debility. It rebuilds the wornout conditions of men who have gone to excesses in early life. It restores health and strength to every part of the body. I am treating weak men from what ever cause, with a greater degree of success than has ever before been attained. My patients who follow my instructions grow strong and vigorous and I can promise them superb health under my special treatment directed at the cause of their weakness. Men's nerves will rest from the strain they have been under; men will sleep as a man ought to sleep; you will start the day as a mental worker must who would get the best of which his brain is capable.

By my system of treatment better results are obtained in two weeks than most patients get in two months under the ordinary methods employed.

It is the only rational and speedy way for obtaining perfect health of mind and body.

ONTARIO.

NEW GERMAN CHURCH.

ONTARIO, Nov. 6.—[From The Times' Resident Correspondent.] Stone is being hauled for the foundation of a German church, to be situated on the corner of Euclid avenue and F street. This will be a great advantage to the Germans. Heretofore this congregation has been compelled to hold its services on Sunday afternoons in the Westminster Presbyterian Church, and a church of their own will enable them to hold both morning and evening services. The Ontario colony has thirteen congregations in all, all of which, when the German church is completed, will have church buildings.

REDLANDS.

BRAVE SELF-SACRIFICE.

REDLANDS, Nov. 6.—[From The Times' Resident Correspondent.] C. P. Minor fell from his wagon yesterday afternoon and broke his arm in two places. The accident happened in front of his place on Orange street. He was in the act of helping a child out of the wagon, when the seat tilted and threw him forward. He instantly realized that if he attempted to protect himself he would be thrown directly upon the child. Rather than do this and, perhaps, fatally injure her, he took the full force of the fall in another direction, and landed on the curbing of the sidewalk.

The Redlands Traction Company will open a beautiful park on the north side of San Bernardino avenue, between Orange and Texas avenues. There will be forty acres devoted to this purpose. The managers claim that it will surpass anything in this part of the State, when completed.

The Bear Valley Irrigation Company reports that there is now twenty-nine feet of water in the reservoir in Bear Valley, and this quantity will be carried over for use during the season of 1902. Until that time the natural flow of water from the Santa Ana River will be ample to supply all needs.

The City Trustees at their last meeting decided to submit the petition for use of certain portions of the streets adjoining the Methodist Church property for the erection of a block of brick buildings, to A. K. Smiley, who has not returned from the north as yet. The property in question adjoins the Smiley public park and many people think it would seriously injure the looks of it, if the space petitioned for was inclosed and a large building erected. A telegram was received last night from Smiley Bros. saying that they "strongly oppose the use of the triangle or adjoining space."

Lieut. G. C. Thaxter has received a communication from Gen. M. W. Muller of the Third Brigade, N.G.C., in which he states that he is anxious to have arrangements made for a competitive shoot between from twenty to one hundred men in the Third Brigade and a like number from the First Brigade.

A. Gregory shipped today two carloads of oranges. This is the second shipment made this season. These oranges are not the regular crop, but are known as after-blooms. This is the first season that they have ever been used for shipping purposes, and the growers are getting a good price for them.

The following guests from Los Angeles are registered at the Windsor today: A. A. Allen, Mrs. T. A. Blakely, George Fugard, H. E. Maxson, Elmer Ruts, M. F. McLaurin, A. L. P. French, E. Burg and J. W. Hart.

LEGAL FIGHT FOR RIVERSIDE POWER.

CITY TO CONTEST ELECTRIC RAILWAY'S SUIT.

Has Grown Tired of Furnishing Electricity at a Loss—Driver Hurt by Falling from His Wagon—Edmiston-Fauver Nuptials.

RIVERSIDE, Nov. 6.—[From The Times' Resident Correspondent.] City Atty. Purington was yesterday instructed by the Board of Trustees to defend the suit brought in the form of a restraining order by the Riverside and Arlington Electric Railway Company against the city forbidding the city cutting off the railroad company's electric power. The City Attorney stated that, in his opinion, the Circuit Court has no jurisdiction in the case and that he would enter a demurrer to the complaint alleging such lack of jurisdiction, and also that the complaint does not state grounds sufficient to constitute a cause of action.

HEAD SEVERELY CUT.

Neil Lambert fell from an ice wagon yesterday at Orange and Sixth streets, receiving a severe scalp wound in the back of his head. Not realizing that he was hurt, he got back into the wagon and drove aimlessly about until he attracted the attention of a neighbor, who mounted the driver's seat with him and took him to a physician's office. The wound was long and deep, requiring several stitches to close it.

W. Frasier Fauver of Los Angeles and Miss Edythe Edmiston were married this morning at the home of the bride's mother on Main street, Rev. B. Edmiston, an uncle of the bride, officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Fauver will make their home for a time in Los Angeles, but will leave in the near future for the East, where they will reside permanently.

Yesterday Hays made the remarkably low score of 45, seven of the nine holes being made in bogey.

SANTA BARBARA.

LLOYD FOR POSTMASTER.

SANTA BARBARA, Nov. 6.—[From The Times' Resident Correspondent.] The choice of Clio L. Lloyd by the Republican County Central Committee to fill the vacancy soon to occur by the resignation of Postmaster O. W. Mausiaby, is thought to be almost equivalent to the appointment, and is giving universal satisfaction. Mr. Lloyd is a well-known newspaper man of Santa Barbara. He was chief clerk of the Assembly during the last Legislature, and is vice-president of the State League of Republican Clubs. For years Mr. Lloyd has devoted his time to the interests of his party, and it is generally believed that he will secure the appointment, especially as he has the endorsement of about all the leading business men of the city.

SANTA BARBARA BREVITIES.

It is now practically settled that Mr. Edwards will be elected Mayor of Santa Barbara without opposition. Since the withdrawal of F. M. Whitney from the race, though several candidates have been suggested, thus far none of them has expressed a willingness to run.

Some fine scores were made by the members of the local Naval Reserve at target practice on the Mesa Range. The new silhouette target was used at a distance of 200, 300 and 500 yards. Ira Eaton made the best record at rifle practice, scoring 22 points out of a possible 25. Sidney Heitman won the laurels at pistol practice, making 18 out of 25 points, at 50 yards.

SAN LUIS OBISPO.

COUNTY OFFICERS ENJOINED.

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Nov. 6.—[From The Times' Resident Correspondent.] Ex-Supervisor P. Moore of Arroyo Grande has served an injunction against the County Auditor and Treasurer to prevent them from paying for road sprinkling out of the general fund. Suit will be instituted against those officers if the claims are paid out of the general fund of the county. Mr. Moore contends that claims for road sprinkling should be paid out of the funds of the road district in which the sprinkled roads are located.

PHOENIX NEWSPAPER HAS A LIBEL SUIT.

EDITOR OF A KINGMAN WEEKLY THE COMPLAINANT.

Cowboys Lasso a Big Bear and End Her Career With a Pocketknife Near Wood Camp—Gambler Stabbed to Death at Flagstaff.

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Nov. 5.—[Regular Correspondence.] The Phoenix Republican has a $50,000 libel suit to defend at the present term of the District Court in Prescott. Complainant is Kean St. Charles, editor of the Mineral Wealth, a weekly paper published at Kingman. St. Charles is a sort of Populistic-Democrat, who still carries the name of William J. Bryan at the head of his editorial column. He was a member of the last Legislature from Mohave county, and could be depended upon to furnish trouble on a moment's notice. He was "agin' the government" consistently, though, it was generally believed, honest in his intentions. His suit is based upon a special telegram from Kingman published in the Republican the day President McKinley died, telling that St. Charles in his paper gloated over the assassination. An editorial paragraph in the Phoenix paper, intimating that St. Charles had been "fixed" while a member of the Legislature, furnished cause for further offense. St. Charles intimated that he cares less for pecuniary redress than he does for the exposure of the individual in Kingman who sent the defamatory telegram.

A. L. Simms has been held at Flagstaff on a charge of manslaughter, following his examination for the killing of Theodore Gartin, several days ago. Gartin was a gambler. He and Simms had quarreled while standing before the bar in a drinking saloon. Gartin struck Simms over the head with an unloaded revolver. Simms responded with a long and keen hunting knife, stabbing his adversary four times in the abdomen. Death ensued six hours later.

Three soldiers are in the County Jail at Holbrook, charged with attempting to take the life of Deputy Sheriff Blevins of that town. The soldiers had been drinking, and had been sharply called to order by the deputy. They retaliated by following him to his home and firing at him through a glass-paneled door. Ten shots were fired. Two of them struck the human target, inflicting serious, though not necessarily fatal, wounds on the right side of the body. That night the three soldiers deserted the command with which they had been encamped near the town, but they were overtaken and brought back.

In jail at Flagstaff are two hobos who are believed to have reached the very pinnacle of criminal assurance. They canvassed the town as agents for coal, offering it at a price so low that they soon obtained some orders. Then they borrowed a wheelbarrow, and coolly proceeded to fill their orders from a carload of coal on a sidetrack, the property of the Santa Fé-Pacific Railway Company. The tramps were virtuously indignant at their arrest.

George Cannon, defaulting Town Marshal of Winslow, has been sent to the penitentiary for fifteen months.

Instructions from the Interior Department forbid further grazing on the slopes of San Francisco peaks, whence comes the water supply of Flagstaff.

The San Francisco peaks have assumed their winter mantle, and flurries of snow have been known all over the Mogollon plateau.

Flagstaff's assessment roll this year totals up $425,000, and the tax rate is to be reduced to one-half of 1 per cent.

Large bands of Angora goats have been sheared in Mohave county. One herder alone shipped three tons of hair to Boston. The region appears peculiarly adapted to the industry.

Two cowboys, accidentally out of doors without their shooting tackle, ran across a big bear near Camp Wood. One of them lassoed the bear around its upper jaw, while the second dismounted and tried unsuccessfully with big rocks to hammer bruin to death. Finally the frontier gladiator came to closer quarters, threw bruin over on her back and cut her throat with a small pocketknife. Just his condition at the end of the affair is not told.

Edna Joy Martin, daughter of Editor J. C. Martin of the Prescott Journal-Miner, was wedded lately in this city to J. D. Wakely of Prescott.

At Flagstaff, October 30, were wedded Clarence E. Ellis and Eleanor H. Grider, both of Fresno, Cal.

N. W. Howard, late of the Hotel Metropole, Catalina Island, is the new manager of the United Verde Company's hotel at Jerome.

ZELAYA RECALLS BURMUDEZ.

MANAGUA, Nov. 4.—[Wired from Galveston, Nov. 6.] President Zelaya has recalled by cable Señor Burmudes, who was Nicaragua's commissioner at the Buffalo Exposition and is secretary of the Nicaraguan legation at Washington.

It Saved My Life.

Extreme cases of disease test the real value of a medicine. Many "tonic" and "stimulant" preparations, which have no real medicinal value, seem to brace up the users when they are feeling "played out." Any stimulant will do this whether bought at the liquor store or drug store. The true test of a medicine is when life itself is staked on its remedial power. In hundreds of such cases Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has been the means of saving life when even the "family doctor" had pronounced sentence of death.

"I had been a great sufferer for several years, and my family doctor said I would not be a living man in two years, but, thank God, I am still living," writes Mr. George W. Trustow, of Lipscomb, Augusta Co., Va. "Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is what saved my life. I had heart trouble so bad that I could not lie on my left side without a great deal of pain. I was nearly past work when I commenced your medicine, but I can do about as much work now as any man. I cannot say too much for the benefit I have received."

Many diseases, named for the organs affected, as "heart disease," "lung disease," "liver complaint," etc., are perfectly cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which cures through the stomach diseases which originate in the stomach.

ALWAYS HELPS. ALMOST ALWAYS HEALS.

A Daily Nuisance

A Simple Remedy Which Will Interest Catarrh Sufferers.

In its earlier stages catarrh is more of a nuisance than a menace to the general health, but sooner or later, the disease extends to the throat, bronchial tubes and even to the stomach and intestines.

Catarrh is essentially a disease of the mucous membrane, the local symptoms being a profuse discharge of mucous, stoppage of the nostrils, irritation in throat, causing coughing, sneezing, gagging and frequent clearings of the throat and head.

The usual treatment by local douches, snuffs, salves, etc., often gives temporary relief, but anything like a cure can only be obtained by a treatment which removes the catarrhal taint from the blood and the disappearance of the inflammation from the mucous surfaces.

A new remedy which meets these requirements and which so far has been remarkably successful in curing catarrh is Stuart's Catarrh Tablets.

These tablets act upon the blood and mucous membranes only. They can hardly be called a secret patent medicine as they are composed of such valuable remedies as Sanguinaria, Hydrastin, Eucalyptol and similar cleansing antiseptics which cure by eliminating from the blood and mucous surfaces the catarrhal poison.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are large, pleasant-tasting lozenges taken internally, allowing them to dissolve slowly in the mouth; in this way they reach the throat, fauces and the entire alimentary canal.

If desired, they may also be dissolved in water and used as a douche, in addition to the internal use, but it is not at all necessary to use a douche; a few of them dissolved in the mouth daily will be sufficient. However, when there is much stoppage of the nose, a douche made from these tablets will give immediate relief, but the regular daily use internally of these tablets will cure the whole catarrhal trouble without resorting to the inconvenience of a douche.

Dr. Bement states "that the internal treatment for catarrh is rapidly taking the place of the old plan of douching, and local application, and further says that probably the best and certainly the safest remedy at present on the market is Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, as no secret is made of their composition and all the really efficient remedies for catarrh are contained in this tablet."

Druggists sell Stuart's Catarrh Tablets at 50 cents for full-sized packages. Ask your druggist, and if he is honest he will tell you there is no safer, more palatable, more efficient and convenient remedy on the market.

Orange County Towns—Santa Ana and Fullerton.

FULLERTON ELECTION WILL NOT BE HELD.

TOWN WILL NOT VOTE ON NEW BOUNDARY LINES.

Board of Supervisors Rescind Former Action—Prosecution Rests in Sproul Murder Case—Many Carloads of Various Products Being Shipped to Eastern Markets.

SANTA ANA, Nov. 6.—[From The Times' Resident Correspondent.] There will be no election at Fullerton in the near future on the incorporation of that town. At the meeting of the Board of Supervisors today a petition was presented, signed by thirty-four residents of the town, praying that the election which had been set for November 26, be called off. They gave as their reasons that the proposed boundaries were too small; that there was little or no prospect of the object of the election being obtained, and that the election would entail a heavy expense both upon the citizens of Fullerton and the taxpayers of the county. After some discussion, the petition was granted and the clerk instructed to issue the necessary official notice.

SPROUL MURDER CASE.

There was added interest today in the Sproul murder case on account of the introduction of several new witnesses whose testimony considerably strengthened the case of the prosecution. Witnesses were introduced to show that Sproul, after he left the tamale stand, had applied vile epithets to Lutz. Mack and their companion, who gave chase to Sproul, Lutz coming up with him near the center of the street, where the struggle ensued and where Lutz was fatally stabbed. The witnesses examined this morning for the people were R. H. Dibble, A. M. Culp, Andrew Scott, G. E. Maxwell, E. S. Wallace, J. J. Gerkin, R. Y. Williams, J. W. Murray and James Kagerer. At the conclusion of the testimony of Kagerer, the prosecution rested. The defense put on the stand Drs. Bruner and Freeman, who conducted an autopsy on the remains of Luts. They testified as to the nature of the fatal knife wound. Witnesses were then introduced to show that Luts had a quarrelsome disposition.

The buggy was only slightly damaged, and the horse was not injured.

FULLERTON.

ROMANTIC MARRIAGE.

FULLERTON, Nov. 6.—[From The Times' Resident Correspondent.] Ben Harris, who has resided in Orange county several years, and Miss Edna Banks of Santa Ana, were married here last night by Rev. Baker of the Presbyterian Church. Harris procured his marriage license yesterday afternoon, and Mr. Banks, father of the bride, was in the County Clerk's office at the time, but had no idea what the document was when Harris left the room.

Harris and Miss Banks left immediately for Fullerton, closely pursued by Mr. and Mrs. Banks, who were evidently opposed to the match. Arriving here they were informed of the marriage, which had just taken place, and learning it was all over, they congratulated the newly-wedded couple and forgave them. Mr. Banks told Harris "to settle down and be a good boy," and the couple, with the old people, returned to Santa Ana, where Mr. and Mrs Harris will reside.

BIG GANG OF TOUGHS CAPTURED BY POLICE.

DRAGNET TAKES IN TWENTY-TWO IN A SINGLE DAY.

Ex-Convicts, Thieves and Suspicious Characters Who Came from San Francisco to Do Organized Business Land in City Jail.

The police dragnet was thrown out yesterday, and as a result twenty-two suspicious characters, some of them thought to be ex-convicts, languish in the City Jail.

In the apprehension of these men, the police believe they have broken up a gang of petty-larceny thieves and other crooks who came here a few days ago from San Francisco, expecting to make a good haul in Los Angeles.

In the possession of one of the prisoners, who gave the name of Tom Jones, was found a kit of burglar keys. They are old-fashioned flat-steel instruments, some with double ends. A locksmith, to whom they were shown yesterday afternoon, pronounced them the finest skeleton keys he had ever seen out of the possession of a professional locksmith. Some of them were in the man's socks when he was searched.

The arresting continued throughout the day, and the last of the twenty-two was not apprehended until midnight. He, it is said, had previously run away from the officers who took in other members of the gang.

The gang was first heard of when a Main-street clothing man reported that he had lost fifteen pairs of trousers from his store. Patrolman Haupt found a man carrying a pair of new trousers under his arm, and arrested him. He also arested several others of the gang, among them the chap with the burglar tools. The men are supposed to have come here three days ago. They have been congregating in saloons near the Plaza, and have been watched two days.

After Haupt made his capture, policemen and detectives became generally alert, and a few at a time the visitors were brought in. Patrolmen Hugh Dixon, Lennon and Sheets, and Detectives Flammer and Ritch are credited with the arrests. Patrolman Strode captured the last of the gang in a First-street pool room, just before midnight.

One only is a youngster. He appears to be about 17 years old. It is believed that all gave fictitious names, Browns and Joneses predominating.

Several pairs of the stolen trousers have been recovered. One of the suspects wore a pair when arrested. Goldwater, the merchant who lost the garments, followed him to the Police Station, and demanded the return of the trousers. Accordingly, the prisoner had to disrobe, and two trusties removed the stolen goods.

The gang will be held until the records of all its members can be looked into.

Fighting Penny Dreadfuls.

Stephen Wigney, secretary of the Metropolitan Tabernacle Colportage Association, does not believe in denunciation. "His word is substitution. His colporteurs, numbering between fifty and sixty, manage to turn over more than £5000 a year in selling books of distinctly moral and religious tendencies. Their aim is to offer good literature in the place of bad. The selection of such literature must be a difficult task. How compete with the penny dreadful? Mr. Wigney confessed. 'It is very difficult, indeed,' and added:

"I sometimes spend hours skimming books and periodicals to decide if we can admit them to our list. Of course, I have always the committee, with Pastor Thomas Spurgeon as president, to refer to. Yes, it is delicate and difficult to know where to draw the line.

"In publication for boys I object to slang and vulgar language. The characters, while adventurous, should always be animated by a noble spirit. Such books need not be always preaching, but they should breathe a pure atmosphere. I know that a boy can and does enjoy such a book as 'John Halifax, Gentleman.' We have sold numbers of that book very cheaply. We can now sell for threepence such books as 'Queechy,' 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' and 'The Wide, Wide World.' Speaking metaphorically, they will go on selling as long as the world lasts. A very nice book for the family is 'Ministering Children,' which we can sell for threepence, in paper covers. I like the Tract Society's publications, also some of Cassell's, such as 'The Quiver.'"—[London Academy.

PASADENA CITIZENS FAVOR BOND ISSUE

LITTLE OPPOSITION DEVELOPED AND LITTLE EXPECTED.

Mayor Explains How Voting Must Be Done—Hotel Green Plans for Record-breaking Season—Rose Tournament Funds Increasing Rapidly.

PASADENA, Office of The Times, No. 38 South Raymond avenue, Nov. 6.—[From The Times' Resident Correspondent.] Everybody was talking bonds today. All the influential, public-spirited citizens agree that the Mayor and Council took the proper step when they declared their intention to call an election to give the people a chance to vastly improve the city. There are some questions, however, which are not quite understood by many of the voters. The principal one is as to whether all the different propositions which will be placed on the ballots are to be voted for collectively or separately.

Mayor Wright says that in order to acquire all of the proposed improvements, parks, jail, City Hall, sewers, etc., the voter must vote for each and every one of them, separately. That is, he cannot vote for all of them by marking one of them on the ballot. If a two-thirds majority of the voters should cast their ballots in favor of the parks and ignore the City Hall, Pasadena would have a park, but no City Hall. This applies, of course, to the other proposed public improvements.

The city will very likely have to condemn certain holdings of property owners in order to secure the land needed. There are a number of strips of the tract between Glendale and Vineyard, Fair Oaks and Raymond avenues. Options have been secured upon most of the lots, but not upon all. Some property owners, finding that the city is trying to buy their land, immediately placed an exorbitant figure on their property. The purchasers are willing to pay what the land is worth, the price named by those who will sell reasonably, but not made a standard, but no fancy price will be paid. The "auntie" are "fur'ninat" the improvement proposition sprung by the Council, but they appear to be in the minority.

HOTEL GREEN PLANS.

Hotel Green will open for the biggest tourist season on record, on November 20. Theodore Gittings, Charles H. Carey and Arthur Gleason will be the office staff. Harry Wilcox will be clerk of the west building. J. W. Sparrow, who has been at Poland Springs, Me., for the past ten years, will be chef. He brings with him his entire kitchen crew. E. P. Lee, steward here three years ago, will return. J. Malone will again be head waiter. Fifty waitresses have been engaged in the East and thirty on this Coast.

The cold-storage department has been greatly enlarged and improved. Many changes have been made in different parts of the house. Many of the handsomest suites have been engaged by regular guests, and some guests have been received already. Col. Green and family will not arrive until some time next month.

MONROVIA.

IMPORTANT NEW INDUSTRY.

MONROVIA, Nov. 6.—[From the Times' Resident Correspondent.] Another new industry is about to be established in Monrovia, and one that from the extent of the discovery just made, will be of considerable importance. A few days ago Dave Thomas was in Spanish Cañon, and he saw the outcroppings of what appeared to be a good quality of limestone. He brought home samples of the stone and had a test made, and it went 95 per cent. lime of an unusually fine quality. A comparison has been made with other lime sold in the local market, and the Monrovia product is said to be superior in every way. It is finer grained and whiter. There is an unlimited quantity of this limestone—a mountain of it, in fact—and a company is soon to be incorporated to handle it. Plans are being made for large kilns, to be located somewhere near the railroad track, for convenience in shipping.

STREET IMPROVEMENTS.

As a commencement of the street improvement which the City Council is about to inaugurate, it has been decided that Olive street, and that portion of California street to Duarte avenue, be graded and oiled. The oiling of these streets is an experiment in which the Board of Trade pays half the expense. If the oil proves satisfactory, other streets will be similarly treated. The work will be done under the supervision of Capt. Manning, who has charge of oiling the county roads. A storm drain will be made on White Oak avenue, and also two on Olive street.

PASADENA CITIZENS FAVOR BOND ISSUE.

LITTLE OPPOSITION DEVELOPED AND LITTLE EXPECTED.

Mayor Explains How Voting Must Be Done—Hotel Green Plans for Record-breaking Season—Rose Tournament Trade Increasing Rapidly.

PASADENA, Office of The Times, No. 24 South Raymond avenue, Nov. 6.—[From The Times' Resident Correspondent.] Everybody was talking bonds today. All the influential, public-spirited citizens agree that the Mayor and Council took the proper step when they declared their intention to call an election to give the people a chance to vastly improve the city. There are some questions, however, which are not quite understood by many of the voters. The principal one is as to whether all the different propositions which will be placed on the ballots are to be voted for collectively or separately.

Mayor Wright says that in order to vote all of the proposed improvements, parks, jail, City Hall, sewer, etc., the voter must vote for each and every one of them, separately. That is, he cannot vote for all of them by marking one of them on the ballot. If a two-thirds majority of the voters should cast their ballots in favor of the parks and ignore the City Hall, Pasadena would have a park, but no City Hall. This applies, of course, to the other proposed public improvements.

The city will very likely have to condemn certain holdings of property owners in order to secure the lands needed. There are upward of fifty owners of the tract between Glendale, Vineyard, Fair Oaks and Raymond avenues. Options have been secured upon most of the lots, but not upon all. Some property owners, finding that the city is trying to buy their land, immediately placed an exorbitant figure on their property. The purchasers are willing to pay what the land is worth, the price named by those who will sell reasonably, being made a standard, but no fancy prices will be paid. The "aunties" are "furious" the improvement proposition sprung by the Council, but they appear to be in the minority.

HOTEL GREEN PLANS.

Hotel Green will open for the biggest tourist season on record, on November 20. Theodore Gittings, Charles H. Carey and Arthur Gleason will be the office staff. Harry Wilcox will be clerk of the west building. J. W. Sparrow, who has been at Poland Springs, Me., for the past ten years, will be chef. He brings with him his entire kitchen crew. E. P. Lee, steward here three years ago, will return. J. E. Maloney will again be head waiter. Fifty waitresses have been engaged in the East and thirty on this Coast.

The cold-storage department has been greatly enlarged and improved. Many changes have been made in different parts of the house. Many of the handsomest suites have been engaged by regular guests, and some guests have been received already. W. Green and family will not arrive until some time next month.

POMONA.

CITY COUNCIL MEETING.

POMONA, Nov. 6.—[From The Times' Resident Correspondent.] The City Council held an unusually long session yesterday. There were many petitions from property owners for sidewalks and cross-walks over numerous streets in different parts of the city, all of which were referred to the Street Committee. The City Engineer was instructed to establish the grades on the streets, on which improvements are requested. There were also numerous petitions asking for incandescent street lamps. There is a general desire in all parts of the city for street improvements. The City Engineer advised the construction of some sort of wall on the west side of San Antonio Cañon at its mouth to divert the storm water which ordinarily flows toward Pomona and which caused great damage last year. It was thought some funds for the work might be secured from the County Supervisors. Policeman Petus asked that his salary be increased from $50 to $60 per month. The request was filed. H. P. Wilkinson requested that his salary as Fire Chief be raised to $15 per month. Heretofore it has been $10. The request was granted.

SHOW TRAIN WRECKED AT LONG BEACH.

TWO CARS DITCHED AND SOME WAGONS DEMOLISHED.

Three Boys Sleeping in the Cook Wagon Narrowly Escape Injury—Track Blockaded for Hours—H. C. Bailey and Wife Married Fifty Years.

LONG BEACH, Nov. 6.—[From The Times' Resident Correspondent.] When the Norris & Rowe show train started to pull out of the Southern Pacific yard this morning, one of the wheels struck a bad joint in the switch, and two of the cars went into the ditch. The drop was enough to throw off several of the wagons, and considerable other paraphernalia, but fortunately the show people and live stock escaped injury. The cook wagon with three boys bunking in it turned over twice, but the boys were not even scratched. Several of the wagons were badly broken, and the cars were so twisted about that it was impossible for the train to move out until noon. A wrecking train from Wilmington cleared the track. The show's date at Santa Paula today was canceled. Tomorrow the show will appear at Ventura.

There was considerable opposition to the plan of widening the street when it was inaugurated a year ago, but many of the opponents are now agreed that the work has been a great improvement. The proposition to widen the street for the remainder of its length, from Greenleaf avenue to Painter avenue, will be undertaken by the Council at once.

LOST MAN LAST SEEN IN LOS ANGELES.

CLAUS MANGELS, SAN FRANCISCO MERCHANT, DISAPPEARS.

Recognized on the Street Here Friday, Two Days After He Wandered from Home—Careful Search Fails to Disclose Trace of Him.

On Friday last, as Mr. McCullough, who represents the Armour Packing Company at San Francisco, was standing on Spring street, in Los Angeles, a man brushed by him and said:

"Hello, Mac."

McCullough looked around and said to a companion:

"Why, that was Claus Mangels of San Francisco; I wonder what makes him in such a hurry. I know him well, and I suppose he'll be back in a few minutes."

He didn't come back, and McCullough thought no more of it, until, on the train going north, he read in a San Francisco paper that Mangels had disappeared Wednesday morning, October 29, and could not be found.

McCullough at once telegraphed that he had seen Mangels in Los Angeles, and that they should wire the police here to find him. They did so, but thus far no trace of the missing man has been found.

Claus Mangels is head of the firm of M. and C. Mangels, wholesale grocers, at No. 319 Clay street, San Francisco. He is an old man of unquestioned integrity, but some time ago the firm was robbed by an employé, it is said, and so involved that their affairs have been in very unsatisfactory condition. This has so worked on the aged head of the establishment that his friends believe he left home in a fit of mental aberration.

He left the store at 9 o'clock on the morning of Wednesday a week ago, and that was the last seen of him.

Quite a remarkable thing was the action taken by his creditors in San Francisco, on Saturday last. They decided to cancel all his indebtedness, and expressed the belief that he was a man of unquestioned integrity.

His friends here have made every effort to find him, but without success. It is their idea that he is buried out of sight in some obscure lodging-house, and they propose to continue the search.

Mangels's brother-in-law has come from San Francisco, and is making every possible effort to locate the missing man.

SHE LIKES CANDY.

Fastidious Girl Stops Traffic on Spring Street While She Selects a Suitable Piece of Sweetness.

Traffic stopped on Spring street yesterday afternoon while a girl found a piece of candy that suited her.

She was one of those independent young women. She was so independent that she would wear a golf skirt and a boa, and any woman knows that to be desperation.

She was riding along Spring street on a bicycle, swinging a tiny bag of candy from her handle bars. She tried several times to get a piece of the sweetness from the bag on the fly, but was not successful. Finally she stopped and dismounted in the middle of the street, and gave the subject her earnest attention.

A delivery wagon was coming right behind her, and had to pull up sharp to keep from running her down. There wasn't room to pass, so the wagon had to stand still and wait for her while the driver craned his neck anxiously around.

It didn't worry her a bit.

She opened the neck of the sack and peered inside with critical interest.

A United States mail wagon came dancing along the street, and everything scattered before it, until it came to the girl with the candy. A mail wagon can scatter a St. Patrick's Day parade, but it had, for once, to give right of way. Coming up behind the delivery wagon, it, too, pulled up sharp.

The girl carefully fished inside the bag and pulled out a piece of candy which did not altogether please her. She turned it over, dropped it back, and went fishing again.

A carriage with a driver in livery and chains, that chimped at the horses' necks, drew up behind the mail wagon.

The girl put her hand down and jounced up the contents of the bag, and a Wells-Fargo wagon lined up behind the liveried swelldom. Then a car rolled up and stopped with a jerk, while the conductor said things.

The girl pulled out a luscious chocolate drop, and meditatively bit into it. It tasted pretty good, thank you. She tossed the rest of the tid-bit into her face, and without as much as a glance at the blockade with the horses beginning to get uneasy; with the ladies in the carriage poking out their heads; with the government losing prestige by the minute because of the stoppage of the mails, she mounted her bike and calmly rode away.

CRASH OF CARS.

Pasadena and Ninth-street Trolleys Collide at Fourth and Spring Streets, and a Woman is Injured.

With a crash that partially wrecked them, two street cars collided at Fourth and Spring streets about 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. A woman was slightly cut by flying glass, but was able to continue on her way home.

Car No. 194 of the Ninth-street line of the Los Angeles Railway Company was running south on Spring street, it is said, with the right of way. It was crowded with passengers, and was moving at a rapid rate.

Just as it neared the corner of Fourth street, Pasadena car, No. 97, started around the curve from Fourth stieet to Spring. Motorman Healton of the Ninth-street car saw the Pasadena car approaching. He reversed his lever and applied the brake, but the heavily-laden car could not be stopped at once.

It crashed into the side of the Pasadena car, shattering most of the glass and a part of the woodwork on one side of the north-bound car. The corner post and a part of the front of the Ninth-street car were smashed, and the street for several feet was covered with broken glass and splinters of wood.

J. G. Newell is the conductor who was in charge of the Ninth-street car. The other one was manned by Conductor Packard and Motorman Carpenter.

AID VETERANS' FAMILIES.

Ladies of the G.A.R. Give Entertainment for the Relief of Those Who are in Needy Circumstances.

At the I.O.O.F. Hall on South Main street last night Columbia Circle, No. 24, Ladies of the G.A.R., gave a dance, the proceeds of which are to go toward the relief of the destitute families of war veterans in this city. A charge of 25 cents was made, and a good attendance of young people rewarded the efforts of the ladies who have the relief work in hand. Light refreshments were served during the evening.

The Columbia Circle is composed only of the wives, mothers and daughters of Grand Army men, and the organization is devoted to relief work, for which there is a large field here. Many families come to Los Angeles in search of health for a member who is already practically at the point of death, and when they settle here they are without any means of support. The ladies of the Relief Committee sometimes have as many as a dozen families on their hands at a time, to whom they aim to supply the necessities of life.

Mrs. C. H. Spence, department president of the Ladies of the Grand Army of the State of California, had the entertainment in hand last night, and with the aid of the other ladies of the circle provided a pleasant evening for all.

It thus makes dandruff and falling hair impossible, and promotes a luxuriant growth of hair that soon becomes the pride of the owner. Even on bald spots it soon produces hair as thick and luxuriant as anyone could wish for.

One bottle will convince that it is the only hair restorer that really succeeds.

NEWS AND BUSINESS.

In Memoriam.

In St. Vincent's Church services will be held today in memory of Mrs. John Gabriel Perboyre, martyred in China in 1840, and beatified by the Pope in 1849. Solemn high mass at 9 a.m., and vespers and sermon at 7:30 p.m. by Rev. J. J. Clifford of the Cathedral.

Memorial Meeting.

There will be a meeting of citizens in the Y.M.C.A. parlors this evening at 7:30, to consider raising a $50,000 fund for the McKinley Memorial Hall of the Artesia Industrial School. There will be no solicitation of funds. The meeting is for deliberation and action, and all are invited.

Serious Fall.

Mrs. C. A. Bailey is confined to her bed at her home, No. 1619 South Olive street. In descending a short stairway leading from the front porch she slipped and fell. Her right ankle was fractured and the tendons were torn from the bones. She will not be able to walk for several weeks.

Credit Men's Plan.

The committee appointed at the meeting of those interested in organizing a branch of the National Credit Men's Association has made out a constitution and bylaws. A meeting of the whole body of signers will be held next Tuesday, when the proposed instrument will be submitted to them.

To Patrons.

Advertisers on the "Liner" pages of the Sunday Times are specially requested, whenever practicable, to send to the counting-room as much of their copy as possible on the Friday previous. This request is made to enable the composing-room to more readily handle the great mass of this kind of advertising, which is steadily increasing.

Said to Leave a Million.

From Labreque & Belanger, Quebec, Can., The Times has received an inquiry concerning one Gilbert Gagnon, for many years a resident of California, and who died intestate eight or ten years ago. He is said to have left an estate worth $1,000,000, and his heirs are unknown. His brothers and sisters are now endeavoring to learn when and where Gangon died.

For the Deaf.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Los Angeles Association of the Deaf, organized last month, met yesterday at the home of Mrs. N. V. Lewis, South Vermont avenue. Mrs. A. M. Andrews, president, made remarks, and a hymn was beautifully rendered in signs by Mrs. Henry Dahl. Mrs. E. M. Buchan gave a brief talk. In the evening an ice-cream supper was served, and $5 realized for the treasury. The work is new, but progressing nicely.

Silent Buys Church Property.

The First Congregational Church property, at Sixth and Hill streets, was purchased by Charles Silent for $77,500; terms, one-half down, the rest payable March 1. Judge Silent has not yet indicated what he will do with the property. It is not known whether he bought it for himself or for a client. It is the purpose of the First Congregational Church organization to purchase Simpson Auditorium for a new place of worship, an option on that property having been obtained some time ago.

Will Build New Church.

West End Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has been planning for some time to add to its present building. The official board met last night and decided to give up this plan, and to build an entire new edifice on the present location, southwest corner of Union avenue and Eighteenth street. Thirty-five hundred dollars will be expended on the new building. At a meeting to be held next Monday night plans will be finally adopted, to be followed by immediate building.

Blinded by Headlight.

William Porter of No. 800½ East First street was thrown from his wagon and rendered unconscious when he drove in front of a car at First and Vignes streets last evening. He sustained a severe contusion and bruise on the forehead. Porter soon recovered sufficiently to walk to his home. Car No. 126 of the Boyle Heights-Westlake Park line, Conductor C. S. Cooney and Motorman H. Keegan, collided with Porter's vehicle. The glaring headlight blinded Porter so that he was unable to see where he was driving.

Mysterious Bullets.

Late yesterday afternoon a mysterious shooting was reported to the detectives. Between 4 and 5 o'clock in the morning three bullets were fired through the windows of the disreputable resort of Mrs. Ruth Watson over the Tallyho Stables on Broadway near First street. The missiles passed through two panes of glass, then through a shade, and coming in contact with a lace curtain, fell to the floor, where they were found. There is no plausible explanation of the shooting given by the people of the tough place.

Wheelman Run Down.

W. A. Colwell, owner of a book store at No. 404 South Broadway, was run down by a horse and wagon at Adams and Main streets last evening and severely injured. Mr. Colwell was riding homeward on his bicycle, and turned out to avoid collision with a wagon and almost ran into a street car. A second quick turn sent him directly under the feet of a horse driven by R. S. Hicks, a gardener who lives at No. 204 East Twenty-fourth street. The wheels of the light wagon passed over his body, inflicting a number of painful bruises. Hicks was in no way to blame, as he did not see Colwell until he was under the wheels. The injured man was conveyed to his home, No. 2813 South Olive street, by Hicks.

DENSE FOG PERSISTS.

Some Signs of Clearing Along the Thames, but Reports from Most Points are Very Depressing.

[BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

LONDON, Nov. 6.—[By Atlantic Cable.] There are indications of the fog breaking up at some points, but the reports from the busiest ports show little amelioration.

England is now suffering the most severe cold known in years for this time of the year. At Market-Yarborough, Leicestershire, this morning, it was snowing, and there were 16 deg. of frost.

From the Mersey, the British Channel, the Humber and the Clyde arrive stories of the destruction of traffic. A number of vessels have been stranded, there have been numerous collisions on the Thames, and hundreds of vessels are fogbound, the pilots refusing to assume the risk of taking them to the wharves.

The River Thames, however, shows signs of clearing. Passengers who left London at 8 o'clock yesterday evening arrived at Calais at 8 o'clock this morning, after passing the night at sea. Five hundred Yarmouth fishing boats have been unable to return to port on account of the fog.

Great relief is felt at Douglas, Isle of Man, owing to the arrival there of a well-filled passenger steamer, which was twenty hours overdue from Liverpool.

After three races had been run at Liverpool today the rest of the programme was postponed until tomorrow on account of the fog.
